The Gazette of week before last publishes a Old Man of the Sea, who had habitually long argument of Judge Black, purporting strangled to death all whose kind and friendly to have been delivered before the Supreme Court of this State, and in which an attempt is made to show that the law of last session, for the sale of the State Canals to the Sunbury in the main triumphed, accomplished many and Eric Railroad Company is unconstitutional. The Old Man of the Sea.

When Sinbad the Sailor, in one of his memorable voyages, was cast ashore as the sole survivor of the wreck of his ship, he saw an old man who begged his assistance to reach the opposite shore of a stream, where fruits were plenty and enjoyment abounded. Moved by a feeling of kindness and compassion, Sinbad complied with the request, the old man mounted upon his shoulders, and the stream was forded. When this had been done the old man was politely asked to dismount, but instead of doing so, he laughed at the request, and twined his legs so closely around Sinbad's neck that he was almost strangled to death. Day and night the old man retained this position, wearying the very life out of Sinbad, until at length was enticed by the latter to drink wine, when Sinbad got rid of his burden by tossing him from his back, and summarily disposing o The crew of a friendly vessel, which finally came to his relief, informed him that the adversary he had contended with was the dispositions had permitted him to mount upo their shoulders.

But he has done so. He has refused stained him groans in agony beneath the heavy burden he has imposed upon it; its vitality is rapidly oozing away beneath his re-peated attacks, and if a remedy be not soon

When the Democracy of the Union elected James Buchanan he was expected to adhere to the Cincinnati platform and the doctrine of solved to violate the pledges of 1856, it was at least hoped that he would not add to the unfortunate political effect of this desertion by making a test of his treachery, and punishing those who were faithful. Yet he did. And even at this moment this policy is persisted in. Sir Gore Ouseley.

Those persons who were at a less to know what this emissary was about when he was manouvring around Washington, last winter, have an opportunity now of gratifying their reasonable curiosity. It will be remembered that Sir Gore was a sort of household companion of the President, and a centre of attraction to the toadies who followed in the train of Mr. Buchanan. Well, the gentleman has turned up at last, in a rather startling character, which shows that he was up to enuff at Washington. A correspondent says:

"The British government seems disposed to relieve us of any trouble in asserting the Monroe octrine, by ordering a fleet down to the waters of Central America as an advance guard to Sir Gore Ouseley. After eighteen months of hob-nobbing at the White House, during all of which time he was in constant and confidential communication with his own government, the mission of Sir Gore, always mysterious heretofore, is at length revealed. He succeeded in pulling wool over the eyes of our very statute diplomaey mongers and having acquired all he wanted to know, drew out his stakes, and parted very affectionately, from his dear friend, Mr. Buch-The first notice we get afterwards is that a British fleet is to be dispatched to Nicaragua under the pretence of keeping out fillibusters. Well, we shall see that our Monroe doctrine democrats, who are so clamorous against British influence, while consorting with British agents; making homage to little British titles, without pedigree or property, and adopting British policy as against American progress and industry, will swallow this precious pill .-We had a sample of the same sort of tactics in the case of Sir Henry Bulwer, but the Bourbons who are now in power differ from those whom Talleyrand knew, inasmuch as they forget everything and learn nothing."

There is one very remarkable indication in the Pennsylvania election. Hitherto, the Democrats have carried that State by denying their principles and pledging themselves to measures that they found means of evading North protesting against it, with the disasters measures that they found means of evading of the late election to set forth its folly and when the trial came. "Polk, Dallas, and the his friends, the Administration is regardlers of been deceived into voting for free trade and for the enslavement of Kansas. But it has failed. The same old stories were repeated; but they fell this time upon heedless ears. The Democrats boldly repudi-ated the English bill, although in so doing they knew that they were repudinting the President, for he has made the principle of that bill a test else that can be said. We trust that the good who were echoes and creatures of the Union question; they everywhere passed resolutions in favor of admitting Kansas as a free State, on the same terms that were demanded of he his favor was universal, and the organ of the as a slave State. In 1858 the Congressional candidates who only represented in a modified form the odious features of his policy received but 134,038 votes, and were in a minority of 73, 572. In 1856 the Democracy carried fifteen out of the twenty-five Congressional districts - at the late election the Lecomptonites were in a minority in every district except the Tenth Legion," where Dimmick escaped defeat by a majority of less than 1400, by a constituency which has in former times sent Democratic Representatives to Congress by larger jorities than any other district in the U. States This Congressional rote speaks volumes of the popular abhorrence of Lecompton tests, the English bill finality, and the persecution of Douglas. There is no State more devotedly attached to the Democratic party, for the sake of the party, than Pennsylvania, as she has repeatedly shown; and it is this devotion alone which has given even a decent show of strength to the Lecompton Congressional candidates, for many thousands voted for them who totally disapproved of their course, and whose mental verdict when they heard of their defeat, was like that of the Western jury-"served them right."- Phila. THE WASHINGTON UNION .- This paper of quote for the benefit of our neighbor of the Post. The Union says:

"Analyze the cry of protection as you may and it can be reduced to nothing but a cry for "bread" from the federal government. What an idea! Great States, Sovereign States, appealing to the federal government for "bread!" "Tax the people of the Union," say Massachusetts to the federal government, "to feed my factory op-eratives." "Tax the Union," says Pennsylvania, "to feed my miners and forgers." "Tax the, Union," say the protectionists in Virginia, "to enable our foundries to sustain themselves and flourish." This is a new commentary upon Virginia's ductrine of strict construction and State overeignty! Can a State be sovereign which consents to appeal to a foreign government for bread and protection."

This hardly accords with what our neighbor said the other morning about "the democracy" being the only party that could secure us a pretective tariff .- Pitts. Gaz.
