SINKING OF THE STEAMER LADY EL-GIN

Over Three Hundred Lives Lost.

Сніслав, Sept. 8, 1860.

The steamer Lady Elgin was run into this morning by a schooner off Waukegon, and sunk within twenty minutes after the collision took place.

She had upward of 350 passengers aboard, including several military and fre companies .---Only sevenceen passengers have been saved as far as known.

Col. Lumsden, of the New Orleans Picayune, and family are supposed to be among the lost CHICAGO, Sept. 9 .- The clerk of the steamer Lady Elgin, who is among the survivors, makes the following statement.

"The Lady Elgin left Chicago at haft rast eleven o'elock on Friday for Lake Superior .---Among the passengers were the members of the Union Guard, of Milwaukee, composing part of some two hundred and fifty excursionists from that eity. At half past two o'clock this (Saturday) morning, the schooner Augusta, of Os-wego, came in collision with the Lady Elgin when about ten miles from shore. The vessel struck the steamer at the midships gangway on the larboard side. The two vessels separated instantly, and the Augusta drifted by in the darkness. At the moment of the collision there was music and dancing going on in the forward cabin. In an instant after the crash all was still, and in half an hour the steamer sunk. I passed through the cabins; the ladies were pale but silent; there was not a cry or shrick. No sound was heard but the rush of the steam and the surgo of the heavy sea. Whether the ladies were not fully aware of their danger, or whether their appaulling situation made them speechless, I cannot tell.

"A boat was lowered at once, with the de-ign of going round to the larboard side to examine the leak. There were two oars be-longing to the boat, but just at that moment some person possessed binself of one of them, and we were powerless to manage the boat .--We succeeded once in reaching the wheel, but were quickly drifted away, and were thrown upon the beach at Winetka. Only two boats were left on the steamer. One of them contained thirteen persons, all of whom were saved. The other bore eight persons, but only four of them reached the shore alive, the four others being drowned at the beach. Before I left the steamer the engine had ceased to work, the furnished us with sundry particulars in regard to the ill-fated steamer Lady Elgin and her captain. They will no doubt be read with lively interest, in connection with the less of that unfortunate craft and her immense human freight.

The Lady Elgin was built in Canada about nine or ten years ago, and named aftar the wife of the then Governor General of Britis' America, Lord Elgin. She was a side-wheel mail steamer, of about 300 feet in length, and one thousand tons burthen. She was a fast and favorite boat, and went on three or four excursions annually. For the first five years after her construction the Lady Elgin was employed ! in the Canadian traffic of the lakes, and carried the mails along the northern shores, while the Grand Trank Railway, which now performs that service, was yet incomplete, or even in embryo.

Four or five years ago she was purchased by Hubbard, Spencer, & Co., of Chicago, to whom she belonged till the calamity which it is our painful duty to record to-day put an end to the history of her now tragically famous career. When she passed into the hands of the Chicage firm of Hubbard, Spencer & Co., Capt. John Wilson became her commander, in which post he continued up to the time of her loss, and it is to be feared that he has undoubtedly shared her melancholy fate. Capt. Wilson was a gentleman of ten years' experience in the navigation of the upper lakes, a fine, off-hand, and vigilant man, and a popular commander among travellers on Lakes Michigan and Superior .----He was also a man of family, his family residing in Chicago.

Since the Lady Elgin became the property of her last owners she has been engaged in the travel between Chicago and Bayfield, on Lake Superior, about one hundred miles from the head of navigation of that inland sea. She used to call at the most prominent ports and harbors lying between Chicago and Bayfield to land and receive mails, passengers, specie, and other freight. This last was in a great meausure copper on the downward trips, the products of the mines of the giant of the lakes. The ports at which she always stopped were Marquette, portage Entry, Copper Harbor, Eagle River, and Ontonagon, and on her last and fatal trip she had passed all of these places, and had, therefore, a vast number of passengers on board.

The Lady Elgin used to make three similar excursions, annually, to the one in which she was engaged at the time of her loss. The last was invaribly the one on which she conveyed the largest number of excursionists and passengers. It was on the last excursion trip of everybody. the season she was employed when she met with her calamitous and uplooked-for fate. It is believed that the Lady Elgin was insured, but this is not certain.
