LOCAL AFFAIRS.

To the Union Men of Bedford County.

Since David Over has undertaken to establish a new paper in this Borough, a considerable interest has been manifested to know the terms of the agreement in regard to the sale of the INQUIRER. Over, we are informed, is endeavoring to excite a sympathy towards himself, by representing that he was compelled to sell out his newspaper establishment-that we "held the lash over him," and threatened to start an opposition paper if he did not sell out to us. Neither INQUIRER could probably be purchased. We came to Bedford soor after hearing this. We immediately sought out Mr. Over, and on our first interview with him he offered to sell the INQUIRER to us for three thousand dollars. Not a word was said by either of us about starting another paper. This was a large INQUIRER could probably be purchased. We came sum, larger than we expected to pay. A good deal of dissatisfaction at Mr. Over's course as an editor was expressed to us, and every leading Union man in the County, with one or two excentions, who could the County, with one or two exceptions, who could Surgeons were recaptured by two regiments of caval be consulted in regard to the matter, salvised us to establish a new paper; promising us the united sup-port of the Union party in this County.
