Destructive fire.—On Tuesday afternoon last, about three o'clock, the house of Major Talliaferro, one of the handsomest in town, caught fire on the roof from a burning chimney. The roof and the upper story was destroyed; nearly all of the furniture was saved, some of it considerably the worse for hard usage. The Major's library on the second figor, consisting of quite a large collection of valuable books, was entirely destroyed. Also most of his private papers, and several files of newspapers were burned. Probably the house might have been saved with very little damage, if our fire engines had been brought to play within the compass, say of a little less than half an hour;—more than an hour passed before they were at work. Unusual regret was felt by every body at the loss sustained by our veteran soldier, and it heart felt sympathy were a sufficient compensation, then he has already been fully paid for the damages he has suffered. There was no insurance.

Robbery at Altoona.

A correspondent of the Harrisburg Telegraph, writing from Altoona, the 16th inst., gives account of a series of robberies which occurred there, and the arrest of the perpetrators. He says: For the last three months or more, there has been a considerable quantity of goods missing out of the through freight trains of the Pennsylvania railroad. For want of room in the yard the trains are frequently left at the lower end of the town until the passenger trains pass—perhaps three or four hours, and at times longer. by this act, shall be deemed gunty of a misue meanor. It was at first thought that the goods were taken by employees on the trains, but a few days ago suspicion fell on a young man by the name of Bishop Cousin, as he and his wife offered some goods for sale. An officer was sent in the morning to arrest him and his wife, but he made his escape without hat or coat. His wife was arrested, also a brotherin-law by the name of Hawk, at whose house a dray load of goods were found. (Cousin and Hawk are married to sisters of the Burkholder family.) Last night a secret guard was placed around the house of Mr. Burket, at which place it was thought that Cousin had concealed himself. About 10 or 11 o'clock he came out at the back door, when he made good use of his legs in jumping fences and running, but hat or coat. His wife was arrested, also a brotherin-law by the name of Hawk, at whose house a dray

he came out at the back door, when he made good use of his legs in jumping fences and running, but was finally arrested under a bed in a nerro shanty.

This morning he was brought before Esquire
Humes, and there turned State's evidence.

He said that they had not fohnd the "big pile"
yet—that they should go to his father-in-law's farm, about four miles below town, and look among the hay in the barn. With this information the officer started, with a good force of deputies, and three or the place the whole family of Burkholders were arrested, and then search was made for goods, which were found in various places—in the hay, potatoe pile, pig pen, corn-crib and even in the hee-hives, and every conceivable place, until they got enough to fill a large wagon. They compelled Mr. Burkholder to hitch up his team and bring the goods to town. The goods found thus far will amount to $3,000 or $4,000.

The whole family is now under bail to appear at court. Mr. Burkholder denies knowing anything about the goods or how they got into his barn. It is supposed that more goods will be found and other arrests made.

A Card.

The undersigned with full, and most grateful hearts take this method of tendering their long to be cherished thanks to their fellow citizens of Bedford, male and female, for their Herculean efforts to save their valuable property from entire destruction by fire on the 14th inst. Stout hearts and strong arms performed all they could for the old soldier and his family, in their old age. Sympathy is not, and was not wanting in this our great temporal trial and loss, but God will provide.

Her Christian life and triumphant death did much in effecting the spiritual interests of this community. Never have we witnessed such calmness in suffering or such triumph in death. Three orphan children and many friends that loved her were the ties that bound to earth. With these she parted in the full prospect of dwelling with Christ which is far better.
