

OUR SUBSCRIBERS will notice that we have made a material change in the size and appearance of our paper this week. Owing to this change and the necessary labor attending it we have been compelled to issue only a half sheet.

PEACE OVERTURES.

The Herald, criticising our recent articles favoring a Presidential Proclamation in the interest of Peace, says:

"As we understand THE TRIBUNE, it wants a proclamation in behalf of these leaders of the Rebellion, giving them some greater inducements for submission."

The Herald will please understand us better. We have not suggested any specific proposition to be made to Rebels of any grade or position. If we had any such suggestion to make, we should, for obvious reasons, address it privately to the President. But, while we would have specific overtures made from the highest quarter, our concern is more with their spirit than with their letter. We greatly desire that the Southern people should realize that the loyal millions do not hate them, do not seek their extermination, but are most anxious that they should turn from their erring ways and live. Such we know to be the feeling of the great body of our friends and neighbors; such, we are confident, are the feelings of a large majority of the people of the loyal States. We do not believe that the torture unto death by exposure to inclemency and starvation of so many thousands of our captured brethren was authorized or desired by the great body of the Southern Whites. We do not believe that a majority of those Whites ever gave an unconstrained assent to the mad scheme of Disunion. We do not believe they have ever preferred to be vassals and feudatories of some European monarchy rather than the citizen of this free republic, yet we are all assured that their chiefs have attempted to bargain them away to whomsoever would aid in consummating Disunion. We have ever regarded with good will, but without sanguine faith, the various efforts to open negotiations with those chiefs; for we could not but feel that they must necessarily be the very last men in the Confederacy to consent to a restoration of the Union; but that a great and steadily increasing majority of the Southern People would gladly accept such a pacification as our Government could honorably accord, we have long and unwaveringly trusted.

Now, then, we ardently desire that the President should make a direct, specific appeal and overture to the Southern people, urging them to return to loyalty and peace, and giving them substantial reasons for so doing. Those people are now kept in the coils of treason mainly by positive and constantly reiterated assertions that they have nothing to gain by submission, nothing to lose by persistence in rebellion, and may as well fight to the last and give up and be exterminated as well as stripped naked after their surrender. (See Jeff. Davis's late manifesto, the address of the Rebel congress, Howell Cobb's speech, &c. &c.) Now let the President counteract these damaging misrepresentations by a simple, clear, straightforward overture, setting forth precisely who are to gain and what is to be gained or saved by pacification, and we are confident that a large portion of those who have hitherto aided, or seemed to counteract the Rebellion, will insist that this overture be accepted and the tide of wholesale carnage and devastation be thus arrested.

And when those who thus feel and act shall have declared for peace, there will not be enough left in rebellion to keep each other in countenance. If even one-eighth of the insurgents were now to throw down their weapons, the Rebellion must collapse forthwith.

The issue of the contest is no longer doubtful. We must have this day at least 250,000 combatants between the Susquehanna and the Potomac, while all the Rebel forces within those limits cannot number 150,000. Our men are well fed, well provided and splendidly armed; the Rebels are in want of everything, hope indicated. To fight longer is to squander blood and treasure; there should be speedy peace, and our Government should unambiguously evince the anxiety it feels for an early and final pacification. The discomfited Rebel leaders may hold their lives very cheap; but we, who are the victors, should realize that all the lives and property sacrificed hereafter are just so much loss to our country.

We have saved the Republic; now let us try to save as many of its people, as much of its property, as we possibly can.—A. P. T. Tribune.

SPLENDID COMBINATIONS. General Grant's despatch, which states that he has received SHERMAN'S report of operations from the time when he left Fayetteville until the 22d inst., although brief, does not sustain the Rebel despatches, which claim victories over SHERMAN at Averysville and Bentonville. How fortunate General SHERMAN'S march has been in shown by the fact that he reports his entire loss since he left Savannah at twenty-five hundred men many of whom are but slightly wounded. At the same time SHERMAN confesses to hard fighting, which brought him two thousand prisoners.

Other despatches, not official, but which may no doubt be relied upon, say that the battle at Averysville was a defeat to the rebels, who retreated and left all their dead in the hands of Major-General JEFF. C. DAVIS. The retreat of this body upon Bentonville, where it was reinforced by JOE JOHNSON, led to the battle at that place, of which we have heard much through General LEE. DAVIS was checked at first, fell back, was reinforced and drove the great JOHNSON forward and at night remained master of the field, which the Rebels abandoned, and fell back across the Neuse River to Spotsfield. The opposition at this place was expected to check the advance of SHERMAN, and to prevent his junction with SCHEFFIELD, but having failed it gave to our troops the opportunity to perfect their combinations. SCHEFFIELD, who arrived at Goldsboro' on the 21st, pushed on, and six miles from that town met the advance of TRACY'S column from Wilmington. This joyful meeting was shortly afterward intensified in interest by the appearance of the head of SHERMAN'S columns, which now came up, marching upon the road from Fayetteville.

This was SHERMAN reinforced by SCHEFFIELD and by TRACY. When we consider the length of time occupied by the march from Savannah, the advance from Newbern and the operations at Wilmington, and understand that they were all so arranged that the three armies should converge at Goldsboro' or in the neighborhood, when we reflect that they are all there, and met to the day, and almost to the hour originally intended, and when we take into mind the tedious marches, natural obstacles military impediments and obstructions which were to be vanquished, we may well ask ourselves, in view of the fulfillment, whether war is not to be ranked among the exact sciences. The astonishing precision of these immense movements, the great ability shown in the arrangement and in furnishing the means of execution can only be the work of one man and that man is the originator of the whole campaign, the director of all, the genius of our military superiority, ULYSSES S. GRANT.

Oil.—We understand that O. E. Shannon has purchased some valuable oil territory in the oil regions. The maps and other papers are at the bank of Kupp, Shannon & Co. Those who take an interest get an absolute title to the land to the extent they take. We believe it is a developing party, and as soon as arrangements are completed, the party intend to go to work. The territory being surrounded by producing wells, it looks like a good thing.

Those who desire an interest would perhaps do well to take it soon. We clip the following from the Norristown Herald: Capt. John Feight, Co F., 18th P. V., has been appointed and mustered in as Chaplain of the Regiment. Chaplain Feight has been a most gallant and faithful officer, and is a moral and obliging gentleman. Lieut. M. S. Bortz succeeds him as Captain, and 1st Sgt. C. P. Calhoun has been promoted to 1st Lieutenant. Lieut. Calhoun's "straps" were well earned by long and faithful services.

Tribute to Respect. At a meeting of the returned members of Company "E," Keystone Zouaves, (76th P. V.), upon the occasion of the death of one of their number, LEVI J. AGNEW, Lieut. Levi Smith was called to the chair, and on motion of D. S. Elliott, the following resolutions were read, and unanimously adopted:—

Whereas, We have been informed of the death of Levi J. Agnew, late of our Company, this intelligence has created feelings of the deepest regret and most profound sorrow among us, his fellow members, we have met together to express our sentiments as individuals and friends, and thus mark our associate action with that unanimity which comes from the heart and voice of each. To know that he is no longer living and that hereafter he will be no more among us forever, leaves us his late associates and fellow members sorrowing and sad. Respect for his memory, services and character, his noble qualities, and a solemn sense of the Providence which has cut short his days, in the promise of his manhood, induce us to

Resolved, That the members of this Company mourn the death of their late comrade in arms, Levi J. Agnew, who with patriotic devotion was willing to do battle for his country in her hour of trial and danger, and who has thus linked his name with the thousands of heroes who have gone to the Christian's and Father's Heaven.

JACOB LINE, our fellow citizen, was killed by the enemies of our country, June 22d, 1864, aged 34 years.

He lived, not long, but well. From boyhood he was remarkable for filial obedience, morality and general propriety of demeanor. In very early manhood he was converted to God and received into the Methodist E. Church, and was at the time of his death an acceptable member of the same. His life was a beautiful example to a Christian people.
