

IS PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY MORNING, BY J. R. DUBORROW & JOHN LUTZ

On JULIANA ST., opposite the Mengel House, BEDFORD, BEDFORD CO., PA.

TERMS: $2.00 a year if paid strictly in advance, $2.25 if not paid within three months, $2.50 if not paid within the year.

RATES OF ADVERTISING: One square, one insertion, $1.00

One square, three insertions, $1.50

One square, one month, $4.50

Administrators and Executors notices, $3.00

Attorneys notices, $1.00 per line

Notices of death, $1.00 per line

Professional & Business Cards

ATTORNEYS AT LAW JOHN PALMER

Attorney at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

J. B. CESSNA, ATTORNEY AT LAW

Attorney at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

JOHN T. KEAGY, ATTORNEY AT LAW

Attorney at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

J. R. DUBORROW & JOHN LUTZ, ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Attorneys at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

E. SPY M. AISP, ATTORNEY AT LAW

Attorney at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

M. A. POINTS, ATTORNEY AT LAW

Attorney at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

K. IMMELI AND LINGENFELTER, ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Attorneys at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

JOHN MOWER, ATTORNEY AT LAW

Attorney at Law, Bedford, Pa.

Particular attention paid to the collection of Military Claims

DENTISTS C. S. BUCKNER, G. MISSICK, JR.

DENTISTS, Bedford, Pa.

Office in the Bank Building, Juliana Street

PHYSICIANS DR. R. F. HARRY

Respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Bedford and vicinity

J. L. MARBOURG, M. D.

Having permanently located respectfully tenders his professional services to the citizens of Bedford and vicinity

HOTELS BEDFORD HOUSE

At Hopewell, Bedford County, Pa.

U. S. HOTEL, HARRISBURG, PA.

CORNER SIXTH AND MARKET STREETS

EXCHANGE HOTEL, HUNTINGDON, PA.

BANKERS RUPP, SHANNON & CO., BANKERS

BANK OF DISCOUNT AND DEPOSIT

JEWELER, &c. DANIEL BORDER

PITTSBURGH, PA. WATCHMAKER AND DEALER IN JEWELRY, SPECTACLES, &c.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE JOHN MAJOR

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE, BEDFORD COUNTY

Bedford Inquirer

A LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWSPAPER, DEVOTED TO POLITICS, EDUCATION, LITERATURE AND MORALS.

BEDFORD, Pa., FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1865. Vol 38: No. 28

Bedford Inquirer

MORE REVEALED TESTIMONY.

Sanford Conover again on the stand.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, June 27. The Court met at 11 o'clock, when Judge Advocate General Holt, recalled Sanford Conover, alias J. W. Wallace, as a witness for the government.

Q.—Do you remember how many persons named Wallace gave testimony on that trial? A.—There were three, so far as I know: William Pope Wallace, J. Watson Wallace and J. W. Wallace.

Q.—What were the names of the persons who were present at the trial? A.—I was formerly a resident of the Confederate States; I know James A. Seddon; he occupied the position of Secretary of War; I should say the signature to the papers, M. N. and O., are those of the said Seddon; I have, on several occasions, seen the signatures of James A. Seddon.

Q.—What did Tucker say, so far as the purpose of setting fire to houses in New York? A.—I did not see a certified copy of the report at Montreal. I met the conspirators. I had not been there long when they discovered that my testimony had been published.

Q.—Did you know that Kerr had knowledge of these menaces? A.—It must have so appeared to him, as Tucker said if I did not sign the paper I should never leave the town alive, and that they would follow me to hell.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

Q.—Did that paper appear in the Telegraph and was it afterwards copied into the New York World? A.—It did.

Q.—The paper was read. It appeared in the Montreal Evening Telegraph of June 10, and is to the effect that if President Johnson will send him, James W. Wallace, a passport to go to Washington, on his return to Montreal, he would proceed thither and go before the military court, in order that they may see whether he was the same Sanford Conover who swore as stated. This is dated June 8, 1865, and signed James W. Wallace.

THE JAGUAR HUNT.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

The dark jaguar was abroad in the land; His strength, his fierceness, what he could with stand.

Then up rose the Farmer; he summoned his sons; Now saddle your horses, now look to your guns.

Oh! their hearts, at the word, how they tingled and stirred; They followed, all belted and booted and spurred.

Then said one, "He must die!" And they took up the cry; "For 'tis last justice of his he must die!"

Then shrilled his fierce cry, as the riders drew nigh; And he shot from the lough like a bolt from the sky.

Oh, then there were carnage by field and by flood; The green soil was crimsoned, the rivers ran blood.

With wide nostrils smoking, and flanks dripping gore; The black stallion bore his bold rider before.

In April, sweet April, the chase was begun; The snows of four winters and four summers were run.

Then the monster stretched all his grim length on the ground; His life-blood was wasting from many a wound.

Then up spoke the slow eldest son, and he said; "All he needs now is just to be fostered and fed."

But the Farmer flung back the false words in his face; "How is none of my race, who gives counsel so base!"

Peace is raised from the dead! In the radiance shall be the halo of glory that shines round her head.

By the halo of glory that shines round her head, Fair gardens shall bloom where the black jungle grew.

"That man will be the death of me yet," said Paul Levering.

"He looked worried, but not angry. 'That means Dick Hardy?'"

"What has he been doing to thee now?" the questioner was a friend named Isaac Macartin.

"He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is."

"No, he was only looking over his fence. He has a spite against me and mine, and does all he can to injure me."

"I know what first set him out. I kicked an ugly dog of his once. The beast, half-starved at home, I suppose, was all the while prowling about here, and snatching up everything that came in his way."

THE POLITICO-RELIGIOUS QUESTION.

From the Freeman's Journal, (Roman Catholic).

The Presbyterians are very uneasy. They exhibit enlargement of the pupils of the eyes and itching of the nose.

They are such deliverances as the inspired prophet spoke of—they have brought forth wind only.

Some "religious" body, lately Presbyterian or Methodist, wanted to make a religious matter of insisting on the admission of negroes to the right to vote.

There are, however, two bodies, each claiming to be the Presbyterian Church, in these States.

The sudden death of the American war has warned the Emperor Maximilian of the necessity of putting his house in order.

The "emigration movement," as it is called, which might more truly be called the "spontaneous invasion movement," has subsided in New York, but it represents a sentiment deeply rooted in the American mind.

Meanwhile, the Mexican question is one which exposes us to some danger. If the United States Government should show a disposition to enforce the Monroe doctrine, we shall hear again of the arrogance and insolence which characterize democracies.

LEON MANUFACTURE.—The iron trade, at present, is exceedingly dull, although a decided improvement is anticipated during the summer.

EMIGRATION FROM CANADA.—The exodus of Canadians to the United States is a novel and curious feature of these times.

INCREASE OF INTERNAL REVENUE.—The revenue returns of the Second Congressional District of Ohio, (the western district of Cincinnati, and Hamilton county), in 1862, were about two hundred thousand dollars.

SELECT POETRY. From the Atlantic Monthly.

THE JAGUAR HUNT. The dark jaguar was abroad in the land; His strength, his fierceness, what he could with stand.

Then up rose the Farmer; he summoned his sons; Now saddle your horses, now look to your guns.

Oh! their hearts, at the word, how they tingled and stirred; They followed, all belted and booted and spurred.

Then said one, "He must die!" And they took up the cry; "For 'tis last justice of his he must die!"

Then shrilled his fierce cry, as the riders drew nigh; And he shot from the lough like a bolt from the sky.

Oh, then there were carnage by field and by flood; The green soil was crimsoned, the rivers ran blood.

With wide nostrils smoking, and flanks dripping gore; The black stallion bore his bold rider before.

In April, sweet April, the chase was begun; The snows of four winters and four summers were run.

SELECT POETRY.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

THE JAGUAR HUNT. The dark jaguar was abroad in the land; His strength, his fierceness, what he could with stand.

Then up rose the Farmer; he summoned his sons; Now saddle your horses, now look to your guns.

Oh! their hearts, at the word, how they tingled and stirred; They followed, all belted and booted and spurred.

Then said one, "He must die!" And they took up the cry; "For 'tis last justice of his he must die!"

Then shrilled his fierce cry, as the riders drew nigh; And he shot from the lough like a bolt from the sky.

Oh, then there were carnage by field and by flood; The green soil was crimsoned, the rivers ran blood.

With wide nostrils smoking, and flanks dripping gore; The black stallion bore his bold rider before.

In April, sweet April, the chase was begun; The snows of four winters and four summers were run.

Then the monster stretched all his grim length on the ground; His life-blood was wasting from many a wound.

Then up spoke the slow eldest son, and he said; "All he needs now is just to be fostered and fed."

But the Farmer flung back the false words in his face; "How is none of my race, who gives counsel so base!"

Peace is raised from the dead! In the radiance shall be the halo of glory that shines round her head.

By the halo of glory that shines round her head, Fair gardens shall bloom where the black jungle grew.

"That man will be the death of me yet," said Paul Levering.

"He looked worried, but not angry. 'That means Dick Hardy?'"

"What has he been doing to thee now?" the questioner was a friend named Isaac Macartin.

"He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is."

"No, he was only looking over his fence. He has a spite against me and mine, and does all he can to injure me."

"I know what first set him out. I kicked an ugly dog of his once. The beast, half-starved at home, I suppose, was all the while prowling about here, and snatching up everything that came in his way."

SELECT POETRY.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

THE JAGUAR HUNT. The dark jaguar was abroad in the land; His strength, his fierceness, what he could with stand.

Then up rose the Farmer; he summoned his sons; Now saddle your horses, now look to your guns.

Oh! their hearts, at the word, how they tingled and stirred; They followed, all belted and booted and spurred.

Then said one, "He must die!" And they took up the cry; "For 'tis last justice of his he must die!"

Then shrilled his fierce cry, as the riders drew nigh; And he shot from the lough like a bolt from the sky.

Oh, then there were carnage by field and by flood; The green soil was crimsoned, the rivers ran blood.

With wide nostrils smoking, and flanks dripping gore; The black stallion bore his bold rider before.

In April, sweet April, the chase was begun; The snows of four winters and four summers were run.

Then the monster stretched all his grim length on the ground; His life-blood was wasting from many a wound.

Then up spoke the slow eldest son, and he said; "All he needs now is just to be fostered and fed."

But the Farmer flung back the false words in his face; "How is none of my race, who gives counsel so base!"

Peace is raised from the dead! In the radiance shall be the halo of glory that shines round her head.

By the halo of glory that shines round her head, Fair gardens shall bloom where the black jungle grew.

"That man will be the death of me yet," said Paul Levering.

"He looked worried, but not angry. 'That means Dick Hardy?'"

"What has he been doing to thee now?" the questioner was a friend named Isaac Macartin.

"He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is."

"No, he was only looking over his fence. He has a spite against me and mine, and does all he can to injure me."

"I know what first set him out. I kicked an ugly dog of his once. The beast, half-starved at home, I suppose, was all the while prowling about here, and snatching up everything that came in his way."

SELECT POETRY.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

THE JAGUAR HUNT. The dark jaguar was abroad in the land; His strength, his fierceness, what he could with stand.

Then up rose the Farmer; he summoned his sons; Now saddle your horses, now look to your guns.

Oh! their hearts, at the word, how they tingled and stirred; They followed, all belted and booted and spurred.

Then said one, "He must die!" And they took up the cry; "For 'tis last justice of his he must die!"

Then shrilled his fierce cry, as the riders drew nigh; And he shot from the lough like a bolt from the sky.

Oh, then there were carnage by field and by flood; The green soil was crimsoned, the rivers ran blood.

With wide nostrils smoking, and flanks dripping gore; The black stallion bore his bold rider before.

In April, sweet April, the chase was begun; The snows of four winters and four summers were run.

Then the monster stretched all his grim length on the ground; His life-blood was wasting from many a wound.

Then up spoke the slow eldest son, and he said; "All he needs now is just to be fostered and fed."

But the Farmer flung back the false words in his face; "How is none of my race, who gives counsel so base!"

Peace is raised from the dead! In the radiance shall be the halo of glory that shines round her head.

By the halo of glory that shines round her head, Fair gardens shall bloom where the black jungle grew.

"That man will be the death of me yet," said Paul Levering.

"He looked worried, but not angry. 'That means Dick Hardy?'"

"What has he been doing to thee now?" the questioner was a friend named Isaac Macartin.

"He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is."

"No, he was only looking over his fence. He has a spite against me and mine, and does all he can to injure me."

"I know what first set him out. I kicked an ugly dog of his once. The beast, half-starved at home, I suppose, was all the while prowling about here, and snatching up everything that came in his way."

SELECT POETRY.

From the Atlantic Monthly.

THE JAGUAR HUNT. The dark jaguar was abroad in the land; His strength, his fierceness, what he could with stand.

Then up rose the Farmer; he summoned his sons; Now saddle your horses, now look to your guns.

Oh! their hearts, at the word, how they tingled and stirred; They followed, all belted and booted and spurred.

Then said one, "He must die!" And they took up the cry; "For 'tis last justice of his he must die!"

Then shrilled his fierce cry, as the riders drew nigh; And he shot from the lough like a bolt from the sky.

Oh, then there were carnage by field and by flood; The green soil was crimsoned, the rivers ran blood.

With wide nostrils smoking, and flanks dripping gore; The black stallion bore his bold rider before.

In April, sweet April, the chase was begun; The snows of four winters and four summers were run.

Then the monster stretched all his grim length on the ground; His life-blood was wasting from many a wound.

Then up spoke the slow eldest son, and he said; "All he needs now is just to be fostered and fed."

But the Farmer flung back the false words in his face; "How is none of my race, who gives counsel so base!"

Peace is raised from the dead! In the radiance shall be the halo of glory that shines round her head.

By the halo of glory that shines round her head, Fair gardens shall bloom where the black jungle grew.

"That man will be the death of me yet," said Paul Levering.

"He looked worried, but not angry. 'That means Dick Hardy?'"

"What has he been doing to thee now?" the questioner was a friend named Isaac Macartin.

"He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is. He's a sly one, that's what he is."

"No, he was only looking over his fence. He has a spite against me and mine, and does all he can to injure me."

"I know what first set him out. I kicked an ugly dog of his once. The beast, half-starved at home, I suppose, was all the while prowling about here, and snatching up everything that came in his way."