Here the matter rested until last Tuesday morning, the 1st of August. Crouse, it appears, had given over all idea of any further difficulty. In conversation that morning with his wife he expressed his regrets at what had passed, stating that if he had it to do over again he would not do it. He expressed himself as being very sorry that he had mistook Schell Reed for his brother, but said he "it is all over now, there will be no more of it." He came down street and as he passed Mann's corner he met his murderer. W present the facts elicited before the Coroner's

A few words passed between them, Crouse took off his coat and threw it on a post near by, Reed reached to his side and presented a pistol, Crouse reached for and obtained two stones, and for a moment regarded the movements of his antagonist. In the meantime Reed had cocked his pistol. Crouse hesitating no longer threw a stone striking Reed on the hip, and in a moment more Reed aimed and discharged his pistol and Crouse sank to the earth and expired in a few minutes. Men-

LORD RUSSELL and Mr. Gladstone each have a son for whom the fathers were anxious to secure seats in the British Parliament. The former sent his son to Leeds, where he made a silly speech and was defeated. Gladstone did better. He took his son to a desired constituency, showed him to the uesired constituency, showed him to the independent voters, made a very sensible speech himself, while "young hopeful" wisely held his tongue, and the result was a triumphant success, but his father was himself defeated in his own district. He might have fared better had the son made the speech they for him. speech then for him,

AN IMPORTANT PENSION DECISION.—We learn that the Commissioner of Pensions has decided that persons disabled by wounds received in battle while temporally scrving with any regularly organized military or naval force of the United States, since March 1, 1804, but not regelarly enlisted, and the widows, dependent methers or sisters, or minor children under sixteen years of age, or those who, serving in like manner, have been or may be killed, are entitled, on satisfactory proof, to the benefit of the act of July 14, 1862, on the conditions therein prescribed. Proof of service, in cases arising under the ninth section of the act of July 4, 1864, must be furnished by a commissioned officer under or with whom such unenlisted person served, showing the nature, period and circumstances of such service.—Proof as to the disability or death of a person so serving must be shown in the same manner, when practicable, or by the affidavits of two non-commissioned officers is practicable. If the officer furnishing such evidence is not at the time in the service, his certificate must be duly sworn to and his signature authenticated.
