It must be evident that the present system of renting in this country is radically wrong The practice of tenants generally appears to be to get the largest crops off the land with the least outlay. The consequence is, that the land they till is skinned and robbed of its fertility without any return in the shape of manure. There are in fact men who live in this manner, who rent old places already worn out, and then pursue a systematic cours of robbing, by ploughing a great deal of ground, manuring none, sowing no grass seed, and lastly sowing impoverishing crops, such as oats, buckwheat and the like, immediately following a crop of corn. Of course no soi can bear for any length of time with treatment like this. When it is thoroughly done for they can move away and try the plan

In England the practice is very different. The tenantry generally occupy farms for a long period of time, and it is therefore to their interest to keep the soil in the highest state of cultivation, raising crops which appea astonishing to us. It is evident that this is sound policy to pursue.

There is another fact to be considered. We hear the constant complaint from tenants that the present rates of rent are entirely too high. and that it is impossible for them to make more than a living.

So long as this system of changing about so frequently continues this will remain to be the case; but rely upon it, so soon as our renters begin to farm and manure as if the land was their own, we will note a new state of affairs. They can afford to pay much higherrents and yet grow rich. It would be an advantage to all concerned. FILIUS AGRICOLE.

REMARKS .- This reform will never take place, however, until landlords are willing to do something too, instead of expecting everything from the tenant. The usual term of renting in England is nineteen years, but farms are frequently continued in the same family for generations, who become sometimes independent in their circumstances. Will any landlord here rent for such a period, or for ten years? Hardly. Still tenants, as a rule here, will use up a farm in short order, during the few years, if more than one, they will consent or are permitted to remain. The whole system is defective, and will never grow better until landlords shall unite in some decided reform .- [ED. Germantown Tele-

It need not cost much money to adorn the place one lives in. Begin by digging out the briers and thistles of the door yard. Plant a few trees; then add a few flowering shrubs. Perhaps that will answer for one year. Next year, make a gravel walk or two, and set a few flowering plants by their sides. Your few flowering plants by their sides. ## SCRATCHES IN HORSES.

A correspondent of the last New England Farmer thus refers to "bright varnish" as a cure for cuts, wounds, and especially scratch-

"When I worked at my trade in the city, I had occasion to use different kinds of paints and oils; among them was what is called 'bright varnish.' Frequently I would cut myself, sometimes so severely that I have been laid up for weeks. I would try all kinds of laid up for weeks. I would try all kinds of salve, but the wound would be a long time healing. One day I cut my hand severely, and as I had nothing at hand to put on it I thought I would try some of the bright varnish; as it is a sticky substance, I thought it might stick the wound together; accordingly I bound up my hand with it and kept on a work; the varnish relieved the pain, I had no soreness in the wound, and in one week it was entirely healed. My son was sawing through a board one day, and carelessly put his hand under the board. He had his forefinger bone entirely sawed off. I putthe ends together, put on the varnish and bound it up.

The result was, that after one week the bandwas removed, and the finger had nearly grown together. My horse once had scratches so badly that it was difficult to get him to move about. I rubbed the parts effected with this. about. I rubbed the parts effected with this cure. The varnish can be bought at the paint shops for six or eight cents per quart.

How to MAKE GLOSSY SHIRT BOSOMS .-Take two ounces of fine white gum arabic powder, put it into a pitcher, and pour on it a pint or more of boiling water, according to the degree of strength you desire; then, after having covered it, let it stand all night, and in the morning pour it carefully from the dregs into a clean bottle, cork it up and keep it for use. A tablespoonful of the gum water stir-icites, GOOSENEERRISS, STRAWERPLYS. a pint or more of boiling water, according to

Y. has a compost heap—a mixture of "fleshings of hides, hair, lime ashes, weeds, chip manure, etc., really everything." It was pied up in a conical keap, and he recently found it "dry and very hot," and being burned up. He wants to know what is to be done. Simply work it all over, making a new pile and mingling it with at least its own bulk of muck or peat, or sods and parings of turf, or simple soil. This will stay the destruction in a measure. The mistake was in the original mixture. There probably ought to have been a greater proportion of vegetable matter, weeds, chip manure, etc., but there ought not to have been any lime or ashes mixed with the fleshings, hair, and other animal matters. When lime and animal matter are mixed, as in some of the refuse of tanneries, the influence of the lime must be counteracted as far as possible, by the addition of muck, soil, etc. The deleterious action of lime and alkalies in such a heap is to expel the ammonia in gaseous form, which is hopelessly lost. A loss just of the same character takes place whenever manure heats and burns.—American Agriculturist.
