A GREAT FARMER'S MAXIMS.

We have aiready made a notice of a dis course by Rev. L. M. Glover, D. D., Jacksonville, Ill., on the death of Mr. Jacob Strawn, who was spoken of as "The Great American Farmer," and who died at Jacksonville, Ill., in August last. His biographer has recorded many excellent characteristics of this "distinguished farmer," who has met with great sucsess in all his business opera tions, which is attributable chiefly to the following maxims, which we copy for the benefit of those farmers who are somewhat tardy in performing the operations of the farm.

When you wake up do not roll over, bu roll out. It will give you time to ditch all your sloughs, break them up, harrow them; and sow them with timothy and red clover. One bushel clover to two bushels timothy is

"Make your fence high, tight, and strong so that it will keep cattle and pigs out. If you have brush, make your lots secure, and keep your hogs from the cattle, for if the corn is clean they will eat it better than if it

"Be sure to get your hands to bed by sever o'clock; they will rise early by the force of

"Pay a hand, if he is a poor hand, all you promise him; if he is a good hand, pay him a little more; it will encourage him to do still

"Always feed your hands as well as you do yourself, for the laboring men are the bone and sinew of the world, and ought to be well treated.

"I am satisfied that getting up early, industry, and regular habits are the best medicines ever prescribed for health.

"When it comes rainy, bad weather, so that you cannot work out of doors, cut and split

Make your tracks when it rains hard, clean ing your stables, or fixing something which you would have to stop the plow for and fix in good weather.

"Make your tracks, fixing your fence or a gate that is off the hinges, or weatherboarding your barn where the wind has blown off the siding, or patching the roof of your house

"Study your interests closely, and don" spend any time in electing Presidents, Senators, and other small officers, or talk of hard times when spending your time in town whit tling on store boxes, etc.

"Take your time and make your calculations; don't do things in a hurry, but do them at the right time, and keep your mind as well as your body employed."

MANURING IN LATE AUTUMN.

In November, however, after a few cold nights, nature has provided the farmer with something nearly equal to the plank road or a continuous railway over his farm, upon which he can convey his heavy articles with comparative ease. He can now move on with arge loads without straining or discouraging his team, or putting his own shoulder to the wheel, or mutilating the fair fields which he had laid down at much cost and care.

The question whether manure is more efficient in the soil, placed there in the fall, than when deposited there in the spring, is one that requires some investigation and perhaps experiments. Uncovered manure is always losing some portion of its valuable properties, so long as it remains in that posi on; they may be slight where it is in the cellar or in large quantities together; but even then there is a constant loss. If all the drop pings of the stock,-both solid and liquid,could be at once mingled with the soil upon which crops are to be placed, we are of the opinion that it would be more effective than it is as usually applied. This course, how-ever, cannot be adopted with any economy. But, generally, all the manure that is accumulated during the summer can be applied to the soil and plowed under in the fall. Where this is done, and the land is again plowed in the spring, we have found the best seed beds and the most abundand crops that we have ever seen. On turning it over in April or May, the soil was very dark, almost black, and remarkably fine and light. The manure seemed to have had a wonderful effect upon it, not only in increasing it by its own bulk, but in throwing it up, somewhat as yeast raises the dough for making bread .- New England Farmer.

LABOR SAVING-LABOR MAKING.

Labor saving implements were once thought to be destructive to the interests of the working man, just in proportion as they saved the drudgery of labor; This seems reasonabe at first, but a little thought will correct the error. How then do the farm laborers, thrown out of work by the introduction of improved implements, ultimately find work? Plainly by the increased amount of tillage which horse power, machinery and tools make possible in the country. In a section where all he soil is under cultivation of some kind, it will lead to more thorough system of farming. In the case of our own country; it leads to the faster extension of civilization westward, the rapid subjugation of wild lands, and the ter better cultivation of that already under the plow. For instance, the Western grain grower, who now devotes 75 to 150 acres to corn and other grain crops, with the meager facilities of thirty years ago, could not have managed one-fourth part that amount in a similar manner. This increase of agriculture, not only keeps good the original number of farm laborers, but creates a new demand for laborers in every other field of industry. More ships and railroads are required for transportation, more manufacturing establishments, more mechanics to construct these, and men to manage them, more miners, machinists, etc. In fact, the whole body politic thus receives vital refreshment from every really labor-saving invention. This is a forcible illustration of the fact that whatever fairly advances the interests of one class, be comes a benefit to all classes in the commu nity.

PASTURING MEADOWS.

It is not an uncommon practice with many farmers to turn their cattle or sheep on the meadows after the hay crop has been remov ed, and allow them to pasture there until winter. In seasons very favorable to the growth of grass, it may not be injurious to allow a portion of the after-growth to be eaten off, but in dry seasons the result is bad, and so in all causes where the growth is kept down throughout the season. Where the grass is cut down close to the ground, the roots will be severely to sked to furnish a second growth and the farmer—can much better afford to feed his cattle grass from the soiling patch, or roots, than to have his next year's crop of hay injured by over-pasturing the meadow just mown. A top dressing of some well pre pared manure will generally produce very per ceptible results, and may be profitably used, ecially on spots where the grass has been ather light. - Western Rural.
