"An extraordinary change, in fact, has ta ken place in the trade, by virtue of which the long and the fine short wools have changed places, the former having advanced and the latter receded in price, especially lamb's wool, which formally was the most vulnable of any kind of native growth. This description has fallen to about 14 pence, or 28 cents per lb., while Leicestershire teggs or hoggett's wool from the same sheep will fetch, or gett's wool from the same sheep will fetch, or large the same sheep will fetch and the same sheep will fetch, or large the same sheep will fetch and the same sheep will be same shee has fetched 2s. 6d., or 60 cents per lb, the fleece weighing 14 lbs. The causes for so strange an alteration in the wool trade are various, but may be traced in the introduction of the Alpac or Lama wool from Peru. The length and fineness of this material enabled the manufacturer to make a kind of fabric entirely new to the British market, namely those light gossamer stuffs known as alpacas, so much prized and worn by our fair country manufacturers to work to attempt imitations of it from the long wool of British growth. In this they succeeded, especially since the inven- to which we invite attention. tion of combing wool by machinery about fourteen years ago, which greatly improved the operation, as well as the uniformity of the material upon which it was employed. By the use of this machine, wool can now b combed of two-and-a-half inches in length but it is the long Lincolnshire, Yorkshire, Romney Marsh, and Cotswolds that have so much increased in value since the introduction of Lama and Alpaca wool. The facility tion of Lama and Alpaca wool. The facility for perfecting these wools for the purpose of making imitations of Alpaca fabrics, is one of BUILDING, Julianna Street, a few doors South the causes of the advance; for the enormous demand for such fabrics for foreign countries with the supply limited to the growth of the United Kingdom, has rendered this far more scarce than the short wool, of which the amount from our colonies of Australia and New Zealand is annually increasing.

WINTER CARE OF CATTLE How many farmers there are who toward the close of winter, complain of being short of fodder and are compelled to purchase hay at high prices to carry their stock until pas ture time. I know from experience wha this is and find it does not pay. There are two causes and also two reme dies for this state of things, viz: Too heavya stock and too wasteful feeding. For the former the remedy is obvious; for the latter, a great many farmers have not yet discovered a preventive; but go in the old way of feeding in common square racks in the yard, either cornfodder, straw or hay. Here is where the loss occurs, and did every farmer know the great gain there would be in cutting up everything he feeds, instead of feeding it whole, there would be no more complaints of "shor fodder." I have tried it and find that I can winter ten head of cattle on cut fodder now, where I only wintered five last year, and what is more, keep them in better order! I use a fodder-cutter, (worked by hand or horse as the case may be,) and feed in the yard in troughs six feet long, eighteen inches deep and two feet wide at the top, sloping to one foot at the bottom. My cattle eat it up clear -hard buts, stalks and all; and one ordinary bundle of fodder-such as would be generally given to a steer at one meal-lasts an animal a whole day.

Another advantage is, my manure is all short, easily handled in the spring when I more quietly.

who has been worried to know how to get his cattle through the winter rightly without buying hay, try this plan, and if he does it right, he will never regret the outlay for the cutter. My saving of fodder in one winter will I think, pay for my cutter.

Cannot some of the rest of our farmers, who have tried it, give us their experience for the benefit of the hundreds who have not? Chester county, 11th mo. 1865. -Germantown Telegraph.

A CHEAP AND GOOD SMOKE HOUSE. A Western New York farmer publishes his plan of a small, cheap and good smoke-house which, as it may contain some practical hints for our own readers, we append it:

"No farmer should be without a good smoke house, and such a one as will be fire-proof and tolerably secure from thieves. Fifty hams can be smoked at one time in a smoke-house seven by eight feet square. Mine is six by seven, and is large enough for most farmers. I first dug all the ground out below where the frost would reach, and filled it up to the surface with small stones. On this I laid my brick floor, in lime mortar. The walls are brick, eight inches thick, and seven feet high with a door on one side two feet wide. The door should be made of wood and lined with sheet iron. For the top I put on joints, two by four, set up edgewise, and eight and a half inches from centre to centre, covered with brick, and put on a heavy coat of mortar. I built a small chimney on the top in the centre, arching it over and covering it with a sin gle roof in the usual way. An arch should be built on the outside, with a small iron door to shut it up, similar to a stove door, with a hole from the arch through the wall of the smoke-house, and an iron grate over it. This arch is much more convenient and better to put the fire in, than to build a fire inside the smoke-house, and the chimney causes a draft through into the smoke-house. Good corn cobs or hickery wood are the best materials to make a smoke for hams. The cost of such a smoke-house as I have described is about

YOUNG FRUIT TREES. We see it recommended in more than one agricultural journal, that the best way to protect young fruit trees-such as apples, pears, cherries, &c .- against frost, is to apply agood mulch of manure or straw. Perhaps in more northern latitudes this may be of service, provided there are no mice about; otherwise the mulch will prove a good harbor for them, and the the bark of the trees excellent food.

Now, we would suggest a different procedure: In the last of November or beginning of December, increase the depth of soil over the roots, and pile it up to a point around the stem of the tree some six, eight or more inch es, well spanked down. It will be found, we think, to be a sure protection against mice and frost .- Germantown Telegraph.
