An active man with a good team will hau on an average, one ton of earth an hour, half a mile, when the travelling is such that the the team may haul two tons per load. And per day, if he hauls only four loads per day, making eight tons, it will cost ten dollars to top-dress one acre. The grass produced by such a dressing over and above what would have grown in a single season, will ordinarily more than pay all this expense. But, in the winter, when farmers have little to do besides their daily chores, they can work a few hour every day at top-dressing in this manner, and it will cost them even less than we reckoned will be better for both men and teams to labor moderately, than to remain idle. When there is a preponderance of clay in the soil. sand, or sandy loam, or muck may be hauled instead of clay. The frost and rains will al most surely reduce it fine before the growing season commences, and it will answer the double purpose of a mulch and fertilizer. When the snow is off the ground on a mild day, the lumps, if there are many, may be broken up and spread by a harrow turned upon its back .- American Agriculturist.

DRAUGHT OF HEAVY AND LIGHT

The momentum of a plow in its passage through the soil is an appreciable force. There is no advantage arising from the use of a heavy plow, from its relieving the team in overcoming obstacles. On the contrary, there is considerable disadvantage in the draught of a heavy plow, as every unnecessary pound absorbs a certain proportion of the effective muscular force of the team. If a plow weighing one hundred pounds, which is heavier than many good plows, be sufficiently strong, the addition to its weight of thirty or more pounds will tax the team to haul tha annecessary weight from day to day, to no purpose. A dynamometer (or draft-measurer is not delicate enough to indicate the difference which there actually is between the draught of heavy and light plows. If a plow cuts a furrow slice one foot wide, then in plowing one acre, if it weigh thirty pounds more than is necessary, it will absorb an amount of the effective force of a team sufficient to move 1,980 lbs, a distance of one eighth of a mile, dragging it along on the ground. These facts lead us to discourage the use of unnecessarily heavy plows, out of regard to the teams, if not to the plowmen.-American Agriculturist.

DON'T PLOW TOO MUCH.

John Johnson says that he has noticed tha those farmers who have most difficulty to make both ends meet always plow most and keep most stock. Now those men take the true plan to k eepthemselves always poor and bring little. It is a good profit to raise three hundred hushels of wheat from ten acres; but when it takes thirty acres to raise that amount it is raised at a loss. So it is with cattle and sheep. You will see the thinking farmer making four year old steers worth from sixty to eighty dollars each, and his neighbor's at the same age, not over twenty-five or thirty. If his land is exhausted-and a great many farms are—then he should plow no more than he can thoroughly manure. Seed with clover and grass, and let it rest for even two years and that field will not only pay for tillage but it will furnish manure (if rightly managed) to make another field of the same size rich also. It is bad policy, when a field is once highly manured, to continue cropping it with VALUABLE grain until the manure is used up. The latter end of that land will be worse than the first. But let the land lay in clover, even one year-but two is better-after it is manured. and then it will stand six good crops before it requires manuring; if clay subsoil it certainly will .- Genessee Farmer.
