This subject is always in order among farmers whose soil has been long under cultivation, and its fertility partial exhausted. Western farmers occupying a virgin soil, who a few years since thought there was no use POSTERS OF ANY SIZE, for it, and moved their barns to get out of the way of its accumulation, begin to see the utility of saving and applying it; they find that better crops are raised with it. I shall not attempt to suggest anything new, for it would seem impossible after all that has been said and written on the subject; but a frequent reiteration of similar precepts may induce some one to adopt a better system of saving and applying his manure. Does the reader make the most of his resources? Is there nothing left that can be converted into fertilizing material? When every resource is exhausted, then it is time to resort to commercial fertilizers. How is it with the hogpen? Is that well supplied with good mate rial to absorb the liquid as well as ammonia A free supply will tend to keep the hogs clear and furnish a quantity of rich manur

Then there is the privy, which is too frequently allowed to waste its ammonia, in stead of having absorbents supplied to fix it A tight vault, into which dry muck, plaster loam, &c., may be introduced and mixed, will supply several loads of poudrette, supe rior to what the market affords, with little labor. Then hen-roost will supply several barrels of good guano, the quality of which there is no question, when home manufactur ed, by supplying dry lcam, plaster, &c., with frequent overhauling. A pit so constructed that it may receive all the slons and wash from the house without waste, will, by filling in loam, muck, fine coal dust, &c., give sev eral loads of rich material to be applied to any garden or field crop. Wood ashes, composted with dry muck, or loam, bones broken and mixed in a cask with fine loam and kept constantly wet with urine will dissolve and make good bone phosphate. Then oftentimes animals die from accident or disease which may be converted into manure by be ing cut up, and composted with some of the various absorbents to be found on every farm. Urine of all kinds is the most valuable of manures, and should be saved by having absorbents applied as bedding; when it is convenient stables should be so arranged as to be drained into pits or tanks. Were every farmer to save what is at present wasted, the inquiry "Where shall I get fertilizers for my ground, that I may have the wherewith to good crops?" would be less frequently heard. -Boston Cultivator.

TREES A PROTECTION TO GARDENS .- A belt of trees on the north and west sides of a garden is valuable as a protection to plants. Flowers, fruit and vegetables come forward earlier in the spring, where such a protection exists to ward off the cold winds that come from the west and north. They also mature better in autumn, where snch a shelter exists The Gardner's Monthly says:

We are often astonished at the great differ ence between exposure and shelter. In ou own neighborhood, as we write, Salvia splen dens, Helitrope, Geraniums, etc., are in full bloom in gardens sheltered by trees on the northwest; while not a hundred yards from the one in our mind's eye, the same flowers are black, and have been for weeks back; and in the middle of winter, a place surrounde by evergreen belts will be more like a spring scene, than the winters it would be expo--and the rare and choice trees and shrubs will grow in such sheltered spots with vigor when in other places they can scarcely b made to exist at all, and are then truly class ed with the half hardy class.

Tall trees are not advisable to grow as a protection to gardens, evergreens are better adapted to that purpose.

BEST WAY OF CULTIVATING LARGE OR-EMARDS .- Many have found a practical difficulty in the way of cultivating large orchards with hoed crops when the trees are planted equal distances each way, by not wanting so to cultivate the whole surface while the trees are young. In commencing a forty acre or chard, I have planted a few acres in rows three rods apart one way by one another. Some of the advantages of this plan are: With the use of a two-horse plow and cultivator, u space each side of the trees more or less extended as the roots advance, can be kept ey clean quite cheaply, and the remaining part of the land is unobstructed for the use of the reaper and mower in gathering crops of grass or grain. Every alternate tree in the row can be an early-bearing variety, to be taken out when they interfere, and for pears it is a good thing to have plenty of trees after the blight takes its share. By deep plowing on the liest have the state of the blight takes its share. By deep plowing on the liest have the state of the liest have been plowing on the liest have the state of the liest have the liest have the state of the liest have the state of the liest have the the line where the trees are to be set, and then form something of a ridge with the plow, a deep soil is had to give the trees a start .-

STRAWBERRIES.—The crop has turned out much better than was expected a month ago. Having set out last year a bed of Russell' Prolific it has proved true to its name. It has produced abundantly, and the berries are of larger general size than any we have ever raised. The quality is fair, hardly equal to the Hovey and inferior to the Triomphe, which latter we consider in point of flavor to be better than any now cultivated. The "Ja cunda," a new variety, we are informed is a poor thing. We are experimenting with a quite new and unknown variety, and shall know something about it another season. So far as our present experience goes we prefer the Triomphe, Hovey and Russell varieties, and it will be well if people do not allow themselves to be humbugged with new soris got up by sharp speculators to make a big penny out of them, before their character is established. - Germantown Telegraph.

Gor Country Gentleman.

Dogs .- The Wool-Growers' Association of the State of Ohio, at its recent convention, determined to urge upon the government that a tax be levied on dogs sufficient either to raise a considerable revenue for the government, or materially diminish the number of dogs, or both. The desire to secure the same end, ar ends, is by no means confined to wool growers. The enormous number of useless and bad dogs in the country constitute one of the serious nuisances of the times, and there is nothing we think that will practically reduce the number but such an amount of taxation as will make it an expensive business to keep a worthless dog. All dogs which have no owners when the assessors go their rounds, should be killed, and a heavy fine imposed upon those who fail to report the number of dogs they possess.—Exchange.

INCREASE OF RATS.—The Farmer's Gazette (English) asserts and proves by figures that one pair of RATS will have a progeny and descendents not less than 651,050 in three years. Now, unless this immense family can be kept down, they would consume more food than would sustain 65,000 human beings.

AS See "Costan's" advertisement above.

1866. RATS versus BIRDS.—Whoever engages in thooting small birds is a cruel man; whoever aids an exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their expein exterminating rats is a benefactor. We should like some one to give us the benefit of their experience in driving out these pests. We need something besides dogs, cats, and traps for this business.—Scientific American, N. Y.

"COSTARS" RAT EXTERMINATOR is simple, safe, and sure—the most perfect RAT-iffication meeting we have ever attended. Every Rat that can get it, properly prepared, will eat it, and every one that eats it will die, generally at some place as distant as possible from where it was taken.—Lake Shore, Mich. Mirror.

HOUSEKEEPERS troubled with verman, etc.
be so no longer, if they use "Costar's" Externinator, We have used it to our satisfaction; end if a box cost $5, we would have it. We have tried poisons, but they effected nothing; but "Costar's article knocks the breath out of Rats, Mice, Roaches, Ants, and Bed-Bugs, quicker than we can write it. It is in great domand all over the country.—Medina, Ohio, Gazette.

A VOICE FROM THE FAR WEST.—
Speaking of "Costan's" Rat, Roach, Aut. &c., Fxterminator—"more grain and provisions are destroyed annually in Grant County by versinin that would pay for tons of this Rat and Insect Killer."—Lancaster, Wis. Herald. FARMERS AND HOUSEKEEPERS—should recollect that hundreds of dollars' worth of Grain, Provisions, &c., are annually destroyed by Rats, Mice, Ants, and other insects and vermin—all of which can be prevented by a few dollars' worth of "Costan's" Rat, Roach, Ant, &c., Externinator, bought and used freely.
