nost the full fruition, of abundant harvests Edinburgh Review (Whig.) of all kinds of crops. The summer harvests were reported variously from different see tions, but on the whole, we believe, the amount of wheat, oats and barley is fully up to the usual average, as well as to just expectations. The hay erop is a little short on an average, and in some sections it will be im peratively necessary for farmers to make the ost of the straw and corn fodder, and we drop the hint that it is easier and cheaper to buy straw at this season than at any other, especially if the buyer will take it away as fest as it is thrashed. Corn fodder is best bought at husking time, especially if the husking is done at the shocks in the field.

This month and the first part of October is the time for Agricultural Fairs. Every day, "Sunday's excepted," from the 4th of September to the 20th of November is devoted in some place or places to an agricultural fair. It is particularly unfortunate that so many are held upon the same days, so that people are in straights as to which to attend and which to neglect. This might all be ob viated by a little correspondence, or if the Secretary of the United States Agricultural Society, which we believe has existence enough to meet and elect officers, would take the matter in hand. We can hardly urge too strongly upon farmers to plan to go themselves at any rate, and take one or more of their sons, to one or two of the best county fairs near their homes, and if possible to go to the State fair also. There is a great deal to learn, the knowledge of which will make a man s better farmer, help put notions of leaving the farm and going to the city to be a merchant out of the boys' heads, giving them an inter est in their own profession, and an ambition to raise as fine grain, fruit and vegetables as they see, and to have improved implements and well-bred stock.

We know their are men who would rathe not have their boys get such notions, and think that the old ruts are smooth, easy go ing, and good enough, but these are men who think in ruts as well as work and run the farm in them. The boys will think, and read and see, and it is harder to keep then in the ruts than the old fogys think. There is a great deal of work to be done in September, but it is not all of that driving hurrying kind like much of the summer and spring work, - American Agriculturist.

HINTS ABOUT WORK.

The crops that now require attention are: BUCKWHEAT, which must be cut before fros hurts it, and if put up in neat gavels, the tops being bound to shed rains, will go on filling out, so that, though very few grains may have been fully formed at the time of cutting there will be few not filled out at the end o a few weeks .- and

Tobacco, which is hopelessly damaged by a slight frsot. If tobacco has grown well, the greater part of it will have been cut before he end of the first week in September. ROOT CROPS may generally at this seas receive some attention. Weeds should b pulled when they appear, and the ground kept clean. The soil may often be stirred, especially among carrots, to great advantage, and the best way is to run a subsoil plow midway between the rows. Turnips need hoeing and thinning, and cabbages coustant hoeing

POTATOES .- The decay of the vines indicates the maturity of the potatoes, and early sorts may be dug and housed at once; but if there is any appearance of rot, leave them in the ground. It makes less work to dig only sound ones, and the decaying will b chiefly over before the last of October; how ever, it may pay to dig and market early.

CORN, which promised so very little in July. probably never looked better in August than this year. It is only a little late. Do not top it so as to expose the ears to the frost, cer tainly not until it is thoroughly glazed. Go through the best pieces to SELECT SEED CORN .- Trust this to no hired man, but do it yourself. Select by feeling ears a little above medium size (no monstros ities,) close, firm, well tipped over, tight and full at the butt. Mark these in some way, as with a dab of paint, or by tying a string around the ear. Then in the husking these may be unhusked, or broken off and ther husked, leaving the husks attatched. Finally select from these the well ripened ones, and those with fewest irregularities, false or shor rows of kernels, and braid them up in strings for thorough drying.

SEEDING TO GRASS .- Grass seed may be sowed alone on good soil, on which fine com post has been harrowed in, and, if the ground is not both poor and clayey, will stand the winter well and much better than it sowed with winter grain. Oats and buckwheat are occasionally sown as a protection to grass. The grain should be sparingly sown. It dies in the winter, but affords the grass a mulch.

Soiling .- Wheat and rye are sown this month for early soiling crops. Next spring, as soon as the rye is fit to be mown, its feed ing daily will produce a very great difference n the yield of milk. This is the earliest crop. Wheat follows soon, then very late sowed rye, then spring sowed oats, corn, etc. The rye and oats will be off the ground in time for summer crops, and as they do not seed, do not exhaust the soil perceptibly. It should be in good heart and tilth, however. American Agriculturist.

and less liable to derangement than other machines.

3. They are capable of executing perfectly, without change of adjustment, a much greater variety of work than other machines.

4. The stitch made by these machines is much more firm, clastic, and durable, especially upon articles which require to be washed and ironed, than any other stitch.

5. This stitch, owing to the manner in which the under thread is inwrought, is much the most plump and beautiful in use, and retains this plumpness and beauty even upon articles frequently washed and ironed until they are worn out.

6. The structure of the seam is such that, though it be cut or broken at intervals of only a few stitches, it will neither open, run, or ravel, but remains firm and durable.

7. Unlike other machines, these fasten both ends of the seam by their own operation.

8. With these machines, while silk is used upon the right or face side of the seam, cotton may be used upon the other side without lessening the strength or durability of the seam. This can be done on other machine, and is a great saving upon all articles stitched or made up with silk.

These machines, in addition to their superior merits as instruments for sewing, by a change of adjustment, easily learned and practiced, execute the most beautiful and permanent embroidery and ornamental work.
