A POLITICAL MEETING.

LETTER FROM PILGRIM.

Pilgrim does not profess to be a politician. He claims the privilege of doing justice to all, of loving every body and of standing upon his own platform. Having familiarized himself with the past history of our country, and with the manœuvreing of party tacticians for some years-the instincts of patriotism, of morality and of virtue, prompt him to be true to the flag of our country, and to affiliate with the men who adhere to the principles of democratic representative government as taught by our revolutionary fathers, and promulgated by Washington, Jefferson, the Adams, Webster, and the gallant Harry Clay in the palmy days which are past. Hence Pilgrim shrinks from Secession, Treason and Rebel rule as from the blighting simoom of Rebel rule as from the blighting simoom of the desert, or the death-distilling shades of the upas tree. Let not the readers of the WHITFIELD, all of Bedford county. the upas tree. Let not the readers of the INQUIRER be alarmed. It is not the writers object to bore them with a dull and prosy article upon the abstract questions of Govern ment, State Rights, and Constitutional powers. He simply designs to relate an incident or two, and then take his staff and hasten on his pilgrimage. During the late canvas in the good old Keystone State, he chanced to be in a small village, not one hundred miles distant from the celebrated Bedford Springs. The dim twilight of a calm autumnal evening and spread its magic charm over valley and mountain. The usually quiet village was astir! "My Policy" men-a small division of the bread and butter-brigade, were to have a meeting in the dingy dilapidated old school house on the out-skirts of the village. Pilgrim was caught in the motley stream of mingled humanity flowing toward the place of meeting. It seemed as though the Prince of of this class are entitled to $100. All appli- Pandemonium had given holiday. Oaths cations to Durborrow & Lutz, Bedford, wil and imprecations burdened the very air. Had any pure spirits been hovering round, they certainly spread their bright pinions, and soared away from that scene of darkness and of sin. Reaching the school house, he did not realize what he had anticipated, "A feast of reason, and a flow of soul." The young others are still inquiring "What must we do orator might possibly have done better with a better cause. He stated that the "Negro was the issue," but beyond that point he ven tured not. He looked as though he had seen better days, and mingled in better society. In his opening remarks he informed the audience that he had formerly been an "old-line whig." We almost involuntary exclaimed, "Poor sinner

he has fallen from grace, and is in a backslidden state!" What a sad sight to see a former follower of the gallant Clay affiliating with the clan of political non-descripts, who RY'S DRUG STORE, where he is prepared to stood not firmly by the flag of their country during the dark days of sorrow and trial.
