WHEN THE SULTAN GOES TO ISPARAN. When the Sultan Shah Zamo

Goes to the city Ispahan, Even before he gets so far As the place where the clust ered palm-tr

are, At the last of the thirty palace-gates, The pet of the harem, Rose in Bloom Orders a feast in his favorite room,-The pet of the haren, Kose in bioon, Orders a feast in his favorite room,-Glittering squares of colored ice. Sweetened with syrop, tinctured with spice, Creams, and cordials, and agared dates. Syrian apples, Othmanee quinces, Limes, and circulas, and apricots, And wines that are known to Eastern princes: And Nubian slaves, with smoking pols Of spiced meats and coaljest fish And all that the curious nalste sould wish. Pass in and ont of the cedarn doors: Scattered over mosaic floors Are anemones, myrtles, and violets, And a musical fountain throws its jets Of a hundred colors into the air. The dusk Sultan loosens her hair, And stains with the henna-plant the tips Of her pearly nails, and bites her inps Till they bloom again,-but, alas, that rose Not for the Sultan buds and blows! Not for the Sultan Shah-Zanan When he goes to the city Ispahan. Theo et a ware of her sunny hand.

Then at a wave of her sunny hand, Then at a wave of her sunny hand, The dancing-girls of Samarcand Float in like mists from Fairy-land! And to the low voluptnous swoons Of music rise and fall the moons Of their full, brown bosoms. Orient blood Runs in their veins, shines in their eyes: And there, in this Eastern Paradise, Filled with the fumes of sandal-wood, And Khoten musk, and aloes and myrch, Sipping the wines of Astrakhan; And her Arab lover sits with her. That s when the Sultan Shah-Zaman Goes to the city Jepahan.

Now, when I see an extra light, Flaming, flickering on the night From my neighbor's casement opposite I know as well as I know to pray, I know as well as a tongue can hay, That the innocent Sultan Shah-Zaman Has gone to the city Ispahan.

HOPE AND COURAGE. True hope is based on energy of charac-ater. A strong mind always hopes, and has always cause to hope, because it knows the mutability of human affairs, and how slight a circumstance may change the whole course of events. Such a spirit, too, rests upon itself; it is not confined to particular objects; and if at last all should be lost, it has saved itself its own integrity and worth. Hope awakens coarage, while despondency is the last of all evils; it is the abandonment of good--the giving up of the battle of life with dead nothingness. He who can im-plant courage in the human soul is the best thysician. To seek to govern men by their fors of itself cowardice. Love inspires ourage and hope, and this is doubly the giver and preserver of life. Whatsoever teaches us boldly to combat the manifold what true courage is --as well in social and domestic as in public affairs--and by what means it may be best sustained.
