of reapers and mowers at Auburn last season, occurs this timely and suggestive passage on the carelessness of many farmers with respect to their implements: - "It is unjust to the maker, whose reputation suffers in consequence; it is unjust to the agricultural interests, because the rapid deterioration in  $v_{4}$  ue of the machine lessens the real economy of its use; it is unjust to the consumer, because everything that enhances the cost of production necessarily adds to the price of the product." With reference to machines and their treatment, the report continues:-"As soon as the last work is done, the jour nals and bearings should be wiped, and all ast moved from the exterior, and the machine should be placed under cover, in a level ition, where no part is subject to strain. We are surprised that such advice should be needed. but as it clearly is, we can assure our readers that they will profit greatly by taking heed to it." When one sees valuable maes exposed to the weather for months, as they are in many instances, this rebuke of the practice cannot be regarded as untimely or impertinent.—Farm and Fireside. or impertinent.-Farm and Fireside.

WHAT IS PROGRESSIVE AGRICUL-TURE?

The New York Observer answers this ques tion in a few words, but very comprehensive ly, as follows:

Under its influence spring up tasty and convenient dwellings, adorned with shrubs frae hame wi, the first train." and flowers, and beautiful within with the smiles of happy wives, tidy children in the lap of thoughtful age-broad hearts and acts, as well as words of welcome. Progressive agri culture builds barns and puts gutters on them, builds stables for cattle and raises roots to feed them. It grafts wild apple trees, by the meadow with pippins or greenings; it sets out new orchards and takes care of old ones. It drains low lands cuts down horshes income mower, house tools and wagons, keeps good fences and practices soiling. It makes hens lay, chickens live, and prevents swine from rooting up metabox.
