farm, Garden & Mousehola. HOW TO GET THE BOYS TO STAY ON THE FARM.

The exodus is not yet arrested. We have been doing our best for ten years to make the labors of the farm attractive and profitable, so that the old homestead might at least re-tain one of the sons, and remain in the fami-The labor has not been lost, for no busiand visible progress during this period. We simply benzine with, perhaps, slight additions have our State and County Fairs well organ-Northern States; we have model farms and such stuff by unskilled hands, deserves the ized and doing a good work in all parts of the farmers, better drainage, better implements, better tillage, and larger crops, in part as a consequence of the good seed that has been sown in these pages. Yet the outflow from the farm goes on, and about as many boys are strapping their trunks and saying goodbye to the farm, this fall, as ever. Some few of the number have their facts turned in the right direction, but many, we know, are making a great mistake, and have before them less of thrift and happiness than they could find in the calling of their fathers. This restless spirit is owing somewhat, doubtless

But with all due allowance for these things, there are causes still at work upon the farm that early alienate the affections of the boys, and drive them to other pursuits. The boys catch new ideas much more rapidly than their fathers, and, with the impulsiveness of youth, want to test them. They go to the fairs, and see the fine stock, the new tools, the premium fruits and vegetables. They read the papers, if they have them at home, and if they have not, they borrow them. Agricultural papers are greatly multiplied, and no religious or political paper quite does its duty without furnishing a column or two, weekly, of agricultural matter for its readers. People who read at all cannot very well keep themselves in the dark in regard to the changes that are coming over our husbandry. If the father keeps up with the times, he has agricultural papers and books, reads, thinks, and practices, he retains the confidence of his boys, and can readily guide them. But if he is a man of routine. and keeps in the ruts, the boys soon become sted with farming. They do not want to break their backs over the scythe, when a mowing machine can do the work better, and at a little of the expense. They want ted-ders, horse-rakes, and horse hay-forks. They want subsoil plows, tile drains, and barn cellars. They want blood stock in the stable, and in the sty. They want to move a little faster, and to do business on a little larger The boys have the facts and the argu ment on their side, and if you want to retain them upon the farm, you must keep up with es, and make farming a live b The subsoil plow has spoiled the ruts for this

Another thing, the boys want an interest is the business, and the sooner you give them an investment in the farm or its stock, the more likely you will be to make farmers of them. It is true, the law gives you a right to the avails of their labors until they reach their majority. It may be true that these services are no more than a fair compensation for the expenses of their childhood. The intercourse of parents and children should not always be graduated by the legal scale. You do not want your son for a servant, but for a companion, and a support in your declining years. You want to attach him by affection and interest to the soil that he cultivates. Begin, then early to identify his interest with your business, as if he was under no obligations to you If he fancies stock, give him what he likes and let the increase be his. Especially encourage him to plant orchards or vineyards o the finest varieties of fruit. Teach him to bud, graft, prune, ripen and market, all the fruits of your climate. Furnish him with all the books, and facilities that he needs to study and to practice pomology and horticulture. If properly encouraged, he will take an inter est in these things very early, and before he is old enough to think of leaving your roof, his tastes will be formed, and his course in life will be determined. His heart will go down into the soil with the roots every fruit tree that he plants, and the orchards and gardens of the old homestead, or of another lose by, will be his paradise, from which nothing but necessity can drive him month is quite long, but most of them have been previously shown up in the Agriculturist and others are so precisely similar that would seem to be impossible for any one to nistake their character. Follow our advice, and do business, as far as possible, with those only who are well known and reliable dealers Wright Bros. & Co. are filling the country with their circulars, offering rare chances t obtain the watches valued at from $45 to $1000 for only a $10 greenback, and a trifle for a case and postage. Among other styles is a Silver Hunting Chronometer, valued at $100, pocketful of tickets we "dropped in" to their place, or rather, we climbed up, and found their very small rooms on the top floor, and examined some of their stock. It is the kind known among dealers as bogus, and that word means the same all over the country, though it may not be in the dictionaries that is, not what it is represented to be. We purchased the Hunting Chronometen, valued at $100, as a curiosity. It has a little silver in the case, perhaps two dollars worth; the movement is very showy, and it will tick a few times if shaken very hard, and kept bottom upwards; turn it over, and it is dead as a hammer, and as a time-keeper it is utterly useless. The "American Watch." described silver hunting cases, we saw, and "the man" told us that both case and movement were made in this city; it was stamped "Union Watch Company, New York." There is no such institution in the city, and no such watches were ever made here. An importer in Maiden Lane examined our $100 Duplex, and offered to sell the same article, which he or $9.50 greenbacks. The Union Watch Company's Watch in Hunting Case, precisely like the one at W. B. & Co.'s, and which we were informed was white metal, and not silver, was offered for $8.25 greenbacks......We warn our readers again, that those parties who are induced by private circulars and tickets to buy watches or other articles, represented as worth several times the price had in stock and showed to us, for $6.75 gold, asked, will find their money gone and themselves sold......C. L. Van Allen, who told us while ago that his name was A. D. Bowman now assures us that there is no such person He is advertising, however, in the name of A. D. Bowman & Co. Mr. Van Allen advertise also to sell rights to make "Eureka Oil, which is represented as very cheap, not ex plosive, can be made by everybody, etc. We recived a letter from a chemist, stating that this article is very dangerous, so we obtained a sample bottle of the "Eureka Oil." It is and explodes as readily as gunpowder. Any man who recommends the manufacture of gallows or the penitentiary for life. Don't ... Kelley & Co.'s Grand Gift Concert is again postponed. Keep the tickets as a warn ing to make no more such investments, which not only reduce capital, but generally good nature too ..... We have numerous inqu about Concerts for Soldiers' Widows and Orphans, Libraries, etc., where tickets are sold and prizes drawn by some means "strictly honest," and "entirely legal," etc. We class them all together, without any exception lotteries, and all lotteries as humbuys ..... Beware of parties who take great pains to a the masses, to that love of adventure which is a characteristic of the Yankee race, and to the apparent profitableness of their callings.

ited States authority." All respectable business men pay for U. S. license, and many who are not respectable, and such license gives no authority to disregard State laws, as has been decided over and over again The medical humbugs are still extant, though we have not given them much attention o late. The most recent demonstration that we have seen is that of Dr. H. R. Burner, whose four page circular is a curiosity in its way. It informs us that the "Union Com-bination Medical Association of Great Britain" has invested $275,000 "in the United States, to aid and assist suffering humanity, which is a very handsomething of them to do They publish a certificate from "the Execu tive Department, Washington, D. C.," sign ed "G. F. Attendon, General Surgeon. Now we would like to know just what the 'Executive Department' does with a surgeon, though if it must have one, "Attendon' is a good name for him. "Remember," says the circular, "he, (Dr. Burner,) is not to be classed with the Traveling Imposters of the land." Very like not, but as he "guarantees a cure in every case undertaken," him with those belonging abroad. This Doctor B. is endorsed by the "President" of the Union Combination Medical Association, branch office, No. 209 Broadway." Th seeker after this office on Broadway would appropriately bring up in St. Paul's Church yard, which is where 209 would be, if there were such a number. The superstition might think this indicative of the fate of thou who take the "French Remedies," or try to prove the statement of the circular that "the Doctor has a balm for every wound."-Amer

MENDING ROADS .- About the worst feature n the construction of our roads, is the prac ice of working them only once a year, and then never thinking of them again, no matter now bad they get. We ought to have more or less work on them throughout the entire season, for it is much less work to fill a small and hole than to fill a large one. In Europe hey put men on the road when it is necessary As soon as the rut is seen it is filled imm diately with broken stone, large heaps of which are kept lying along the road ready for ase. Our dirt roads should have a broad base, and the ditch should not be too close to the road, well drained, and then the road will dry When the ditch is close to the road the apillary attraction will always keep the road
