FARMER'S SONS.

It is not the custom now for a f to grow up on the farm, work as his father worked before him, and bring up the family at the old homestead, or, what is better, in a new one and a finer one. Young men seek the cities. They wish to dress in fine clothes all the time and stand behind counters. They get an education and consider it wasted unless they engage in commercial pursuits and be come "citizens," instead of "countrymen. We have great respect for the commercial interests of the nation, and do not wish to join the popular sneer at counter jumpers and clerks. We have need for yourg men in every by a vigorous effort, he took a glimpse at his ery department of honest labor. But we do shoulder, another at the house, a third at his think that the hard out door work of Agri- hand, and exclaimed, "Well, that is a careless liness of character than the confined labor of it standing out all night for people to run counting house or shop. Farming is not against."

ONE creating at a social gathering a young son with the mercantile pursuits. Young men, too, in a majority of instances, desert the twenty-four pages. A gentleman, in referring farm and seek the city because they wish to it next day, said they were favored with escape the harder labor which is supposed to be the lot of the farm. They wish to lead an easier life than their fathers led, and attain the same success. A few years of experience behind the counter or the desk diss pates the idea that the mercantile life easier one; but at the first view it has fascing tions to the young man's eye which agriculture has not. Is there not considerable of NEW FALL AND WINTER GOODS! sons? We need a certain amount of fresh blood and fresh brain from the raral districts in every branch of metropolitan industry; but we do not need the rush of applicants for positions which lowers the salaries here, while the rural districts are suffering for work hands.—N. Y. Evening Gazette.

THE HOMESTEAD.

Do not break the horse's wind by hauling the manure over too great a breadth of land, nor kill yourself and boys in undertaking to get over the same. Apply the dressing to a less quantity of land, and get more crops as the result, and with less labor for m beast. When the writer was a boy his father used to plant from eighteeen to twenty five acres of corn, broom-corn and potatoes an twenty bushels. And it was worth the from fifty to sixty-seven cents per bushel. I have since, on some of the same farms, pro els to the acre, and it is worth $1 per bushe But in order to do it I heeded the injunctions given above and was careful of my horse's wind. And after that crop was removed, and the land seeded down, which was done with winter wheat, producing nearly twenty-sever bushels to the acre, the land produced good heavy crops of number one hay. Now which is the most profitable course to pursue, viz to cultivate three acres well and get mor an inferior crop. To work like the d-your-self all summer, to get the hoeing done, and keep the boys on the jump all the time, or take the things a little more coolly? You may make your own answer. Will it spoil that piece of land to lie without cropping for resting a little? Think of it, before you ve ture to take up too much land, and contrive too much work for the boys. If the grass is run ing out turn it over, after having, manure and re-seed.—New England Homestead.

An Ancient Post.—I have noticed a num ber of articles in the Country Gentleman about the durability of posts, and enclose a paint or shelter, as a monument marking one of the corners of "Sharon," for 118 years. It is of red cedar, and stands in black, pesty meadow soil, top upwards, as it grew in the tree. It is about four feet in height above elements-not by decay, as a scratch with the finger-nail will show the sound wood as firm always settled up. as when placed there. The top is cut to shed the rain like a pitched roof, and, although sound, is much battered. At the surface of the ground it is more worn, but not decayed -in fact, the old senti feet, and looks if it might doduty for 100 years more. From appearances, this post has been cut from a tree not much large, in diamete than its size, and probably from the top, as it the present position in 1749 I have positive evidence.—Barclay White, Sharon, near Johnstown, N. J., in Country Co. 1 Johnstown, N. J., in Country Gentleman.

WHAT CAN WE DO IN JANUARY. - Thirty or forty years ago there was little work done up on the farm or in the garden in January, except in the neighborhood of large cities, with the darry. A great deal of time was spent in aleighing frolics, sitting behind the stove the most of the day, or what was worse, visiting country bar-rooms. Among our farmers now who understand their business thoroughly there is not much of this indulged in. A farmer who is at this day a frequent visitor to bar-rooms would not be much respected, at least his business would not be considered good. The capable farmer now finds always something profitable to do about his premises He is never idle except now and then an odd day when the inclemency of the weather in-terposes. His tools, implements, harness, carts, wagons, cribs, or buildings, with the cattle and marketing or disposal of his crops as well as pruning in orebards and gardens employ all his time. And it is well that it is so, for there is nothing that so much unfits a man for his business as a season of prolong ed idleness. - Germantown Telegraph.

No Turacoto has yet been invested that will in any degree compare with this for beauty of effect. In fact, it seems to me to be abcolutely perfect.—

Wm. A. Johnson, Pipe Organ Builder.

ENTRY'S Cottage Organs are without a superior for exceedingly quick articulation and round tons—the essential features in instruments of this class.—Geo. Jardine, Pipe Organ Builder.

The Cottage Organ is the best of its class I ever saw, and the best adapted for church music of any in use.—C. Heintz, Organist, Findlay, O.

I am much pleased with the Cottage Organ which I purchased from you; it combines sweetness and power in an unusual degree, and in quite a favorite in our family circle.—Bishop Simpson. We know of no organs of the class which possess so many valuable qualities.—Independent.
