Previous to the re-instate-Court, and that in the meantime Secretary Stanton would have the pleasure of standing aside and awaiting the slow circumloon of that tribunal. And it is stated that the President asserts that he had made arrangements with Gen. Grant to that effect, and then, again, it is denied. Whether the President had ever approached Gen. Grant or not on the subject, is not fully determined, but it is evident that the General was not a party to any understanding of this kind. Upon the receipt of the intelligence that the Senate had re-instated the Man of Iron, General Grant immediately turned over the War office to him and an hour later informed the President of his action. So that Stanton had a full hour's start of the Executive. Whether Andy swore, or did any rash or unwarranted act, under the impulse of the moment, we have not been able to learn even from the Associated Press dispatches. It is asserted he simply indulged in a few harmless threats, perhaps took an extra drink, sent for Stansbery and no doubt asked him to prepare an opinion of sixteen columns close type, on the unconstitutionality of the resolution of the Senate restoring his old enemy, which will, no doubt, appear in the nal Intelligencer in due course of time.

Andy's friends first announced that Stanton would not be recognized by the President. It is now authoritatively announced, such is the statement, that Stanton will be allowed to exercise the functions of his office until the close of his term. If this depends on the stage, then the General and again the Secretary of War.

THE NEW RECONSTRUCTION BILL.

The general principle of the new Reconstruction bill may be thus defined-it makes the General of the army the executive of the law, and takes from the President the power of appointing or removing the military commanders. Because it changes the Executive, and practically puts General Grant in the piace of Andrew Johnson, the Democrats insist that it is unconstitutional. any chance, admitted to be the fundamental charter, which, properly interpreted, secures to men of all colors freedom and the full right of citizenship. The Constitution, in the opinion of the Democrats, is an iron chain by which the nation is fettered to the past; if it be what they declare it to be, it would be better for the United States to charter, which, properly interpreted, secures have no Constitution.

The new bill will probably do good, as it reduces to a simple code the military laws by which the Rebel States are to be governed until the civil governments are formed. Therefore we should be glad of its passage, yet we see in it another illustration of that fatal policy which Congress has for two years pursued—a policy which has made Congress, equally with Andrew Johnson, responsible for the delays of Reconstruction and the negative description of the delays of Reconstruction and the negative description of the delays of Reconstruction and the negative description of the delays of Reconstruction and the negative december of the work required. Gen. Grant is of opinion that time arrives he cannot spare a man. He therefore recommends that the present maximum be retained in service. and the unsettled condition of the country This is the Patch-work policy-the contin ual cobbling and mending of old laws, which were not very good when they were new.

The whole business of restricting and hampering the President, to which Congress has addressed itself since 1865 is a blunder. When it found in the White House a man whom it was necessary to tie up hand and foot, it should have known that it had found a man whom it was right to expel from of fice. Its main legislation-and especially this latest act-is avowedly based on its knowledge that Andrew Johnson is unfit to be President, and that it dare not trust him with power. And in what way does Congress treat this unfit President? By exercising its authority to the utmost, it takes from him all those powers-hithertoyielded to the Presidency by common consentwhich it can, within constitutional limits, claim the right to reassume. This is the clumsy and the cowardly way to deal with a national crisis, which is, after all, nothing more than a personal affair—the result of one man's treachery. Congress finds Andrew Johnson unfit, and appoints another officer to perform the ordinary duties of the Presidency. Congress finds him in league with Rebels, and passes laws to in league with Rebels, and passes laws to restrain his action. What should it do? Why, Impeach him! Impeach him! What clse can it do if it would do its duty? Its whole legislation is an argument for improved the state of the second that the state of the second that the peachment, a justification of impeachment and we may add that the result of its legislation is to-day a proof that impeachment is lation is to-day a proof that impeachment is the only remedy. This new Reconstruction acts. acts.

WE have just received from Hon. H. re-instated Hon, E. M. Stanton, in the of-fice of Secretary of War, from which he had ment of Agriculture for November and December, 1867. From it we learn that the ment we had daily rumors that the Presi- | Corn crop of 1867 amounts to 775,820,000 dent would contest the constitutionality of bushels; and is 53,000,000 bushels less than the Tenure of Office Bill before the Supreme the crop of 1860; also that the cotton crop of 1867 is estimated at 2,340,000 bales, or 20 per cent. more than that of 1866, and less than half of that of 1860. The present extreme dullness of the wool-growing and manufacturing interests is shown to be the result of excessive importations of foreign woolen goods, in anticipation of an increase of the tariff duties at the close of the war; the amount of such importations, during the year immediately preceding the enactment of the present tariff, was nearly as great as the total of the six preceding years. The enemies of our American industry are now trying to make it appear that the present stagnation is the result of the tariff, whereas the tariff alone has saved this branch of our industry from utter annihilation. The case is doubtless the same with many other branches of manufacturing instatement should prove true, it manifests more discretion than we supposed the President to be capable of. If he had disregarded the action of the Sonate, Congress would have been compelled to proceed with his impeachment at once. A little discretion may save him some very unpleasant moments, and an unenviable page in history, if he could possibly have a more unenviable one in history than he already has. With Edwin M. Stanton once more in the office of Secretary of War the friends of equal and exact justice to black and white, will receive fresh courage and push on the car of progress until, in the United States of America, there will not remain a single individual who can point to a statute upon our books that discriminates against him of honorable members. The General, so far from volunteering opinious, minded his own business, as he said he always did in some recently published evidence, and extended himself with commending the rhetoric of his friends. When the subject of reconstruction comes before Gen. Grant, he will decide upon it, and not until then Secretary Stanton is at the War Department, apparently quite happy and contented. He receives his friends very cordially, and disposes of all the business that comes and disposes of all the business that comes before him with his usual promptness and dispatch. THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL.

THE PITTSBURGH COMMERCIAL.

It is unnecessary to occupy time or space in setting forth the character of the Commercial. Its standing as the leading newspaper in Pennsylvania—although the most recently established of the first class papers of the country—is already assured. At no time an experiment, it has steadily grown in circulation, strength and patronage, until it has become recognized everywhere not only as the leading journal in this State, but the favorite with the reading public in a large part of Ohio, West Virginia and even beyond their borders. It employs the telegraph on a scale equalled only by the great papers of the larger cities. As a Commercial paper it has a recognized standing at home and abroad, and is read by the most intelligent of all classes, among whom it exerts an influence second to no other in the State. Its Market Reports are carefully prepared by competent reporters are carefully prepared by competent reporters and we employ every means to insure completeness and reliability.

Republican in politics, the Commercial does not scruple to be independent and criticises freely the leading men of the party. Adhering firmly to the fundamental principles of that party, it believes success is most surely achieved by freely discussing propositions and measures, with the view of assisting the reader to arrive at correct conclusions.

Entering, as we now are, on the Presidential year, a preference for Gen. Grant for the Presidency has already been expressed. In this respect, the Commercial was one of the first to take a decided stand; and it has the satisfaction of having already seen expressed. the accepted of the great majority of the Republican party.

In State affairs the Commercial is the unflinching advocate of a Free Railroad Law and a Liberal System of improvements for the development of the vast resources of our State, whereby she will be enriched and the welfare of her citizens advanced.

Our aim from the first has been to make the Commercial second to none as a Green's Our aim from the first has been to make the Commercial second to none as a General Newspaper. We leave nothing untried to accomplish this object. So well have we re-deemed our promises that we deem it useless to make new ones in this or any other particular. TERMS OF THE DAILY COMMERCIAL,
