Poetry. THE SHADOW ON THE WALL.

My home a stately dwelling is,
Which arching doth above,
And velvet on the floor;
Rich and costly building,

My pictures are the pride of Art,
And drawn by cunning hands;
But the painted figures never move,
Nor change the painted lands;

My stately husband never bends
To kiss me on the lips;
His heart is in his iron safe,
His thoughts are with his ships;

My garden paths, broad and high,
Shut in its costly ways;
And through the ordered paths all day
The silent gardener toils;

My beauty is the talk of fools,
And by the gaudy's glance,
In glittering dress and gleaming gems,
I know that I am fair;

My stately husband never bends
To kiss me on the lips;
His heart is in his iron safe,
His thoughts are with his ships;

My garden paths, broad and high,
Shut in its costly ways;
And through the ordered paths all day
The silent gardener toils;

My beauty is the talk of fools,
And by the gaudy's glance,
In glittering dress and gleaming gems,
I know that I am fair;

My stately husband never bends
To kiss me on the lips;
His heart is in his iron safe,
His thoughts are with his ships;

Miscellaneous. THE WORTH OF MEN AND OF THINGS.

A policy of productive industry that is ruled by prices—that would limit a whole people to the products which they can make...

Men are not made for products, but products for men. Or, if price must run all through the argument, we ask leave to suggest that men shall be treated as having the value of the products...

Miscellaneous. THE PUNISHMENT OF CHILDREN.

No long ago an editor in the northern part of the State of New York told his son, about eleven years old, that he would whip him in the course of a few hours, and looked him in the eye...

The punishment of the child should be in proportion to the nature of the offense. It should be inflicted with the utmost self-possession; for the donee in a towering passion it takes the character of revenge...

Miscellaneous. ANECDOTES OF GENERAL GRANT.

"A Woman" writes to the Philadelphia Press, from Ashland, Pa.: The following stories about General Grant:

In the winter of 1862, when the army arrived at Memphis, after long, weary marching and trials that sicken'd and weary'd the men, two-thirds of the officers and soldiers were in hospitals...

"Again, a few months after, I was on board headquarters at Milliken's Bend, where quite a lively gathering of officers and ladies had assembled. Cards and music were the order of the evening...

"When the army lay around Vicksburg during that long siege, the time that tried the patience of the army was not less than that of the people...

"At a celebration on the 23d February before the surrender of Vicksburg, while the soldiers were drinking to the victors champagne, I saw General Grant...

"The pastor sent a few moments in deep thought, and he was about to speak when Mr. Wade said: 'I now see this thing in a different light; I will have nothing further to do with it...'

"The idea of a girl in Italy is indissolubly connected with that of being divinely all moral sense, infallibly preferring wrong to right, and who can only be kept from harm and evil by the most incessant prayers...

Miscellaneous. A VERY OLD LADY.

I recollect returning from school one evening when a child, and finding myself, as I entered the 'door-yard,' at home, in the midst of a group of visitors, who were taking leave of the family...

"How old are you, little girl?" she asked. "Six years old." "Are you?" "I was six years old a hundred years ago."

"I do not mean merely the laying up of 'much goods' for the 'many years.' An honest old age has a right to be independent, and to be no more cumbered with 'much stuff' than a young man...
