A PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF "COM MON SENSE IN FARMING."

Just at the present time, we venture to say half our tarmers are scarcely doing more tha caring for their stock. In harvest when every hand is wanted and every hour precious a hand will be kept from the harvest field, by each of these same men, to chop enough wood to cook the meals for the harvest hands. We know from personal observation that this is annually the case with hundreds of our far-Why not economize time now? Du mers. Why not economize time now? During the milder days of winter enough wood can be cut, hauled home, and sawed and split into stove wood to last the family until an other winter. This doubtless sounds very matter of fact and simple, yet it is neglected from year to year by many who would angrily resent the intimation that they were not model farmers in their management and economy in farm work. If this simple rule of preparing fuel in winter for the whole year were pursued by all our farmers, their good es would be saved a vast amount of worr and trouble. Slow fires and smoked dinne would be much less frequent, and they would he saved the shame and disgrace of having their wives and daughters, found doing the work in the busy days of summer, that lazy or mismanaging fathers and sons neglected to do when they had abundance of leisure in the winter. Chopping wood is not proper work for farmers wives, but we have often seen them do it and it did them no discredit in ou estimation, but we ever after despised the fathers and sons that permitted them to do such work. How many will take a hint from this plain statement and during the remaining days of winter store away under cover a bountiful supply of ready prepared fuel? How many will apply the same philosophy to a dozen similar things that may be done in winter so as to economize the precious hours of seed time and barvest?

AMERICAN AND ENGLISH FARMERS.

The former says "plow and re-seed every few years to renovate the grass land;" the latter on no pretense whatever thinks of plowing an old established grass field. If mowed too many years in succession, and the crop becomes light because manure cannot be con veniently applied, by grazing with cattle and sheep for two or three years together the grass will thicken and rapidly improve in every respect, especially if kept short by putting stock enough upon it to prevent bunche of old grass being left uneaten from the mid dle of May till the end of August; for there are so many varieties of grasses growing in a permanent pasture that, if allowed to be stocked lightly, the coarser kinds will shade and kill all the finer and more nutritious Look at a pasture field in America-wher

Blue grass is similar to some English grass and is most excellent to have in pastures and mowings likewise; for the finest and best meadow hay in England is made from a mix-ture of grasses, the stems of which are all as thin as white clover, and, as the English farm er is not foolish enough to let his grass be come nearly ripe for seed before cutting, his meadows continue to have a thick-set sward n to the Royal Agricultural Society of England, sell grass seed having about seventy varieties in it-price one guinea per bushelwhich will soon become good for alternate grazing and mowing; but if grazed continually, and if on good deep soil, it will become feeding, and every kind of stock put on it will soon get fat, or if mowed season after season manure will be needed to keep up the stami-na, and it will wast repeated rolling and bush harrowing in the spring.

PLEASURES OF GARDENING.

flowers are harmless and pure; a streak, a tint, a shade becomes a triumph, which, though often obtained by chance, is secured alone by morning care, by evening caution, and the vigilance of days. HEALTHFULNESS OF APPLES: There is carcely an article of vegetable food more widely useful and more universally liked than the apple. A raw, mellow apple is digested in an hour and a half, while boiled cabbages require five hours. The most healthful desert that can be placed on the table. If eaten frequently at breakfast, with coarse bread and butter, without flesh of any kind, has an admirable effect on the general system, removing constipation, correcting acidities, and cooling off febrile conditions more effectually than the most approved medicines. If families could be induced to substitute apples -sound and ripe-for pies, cakes and sweetmeats, with which their children are too frequently stuffed, there would be a diminut in the sum total of doctors' bills in a single year, sufficient to lay in a stock of this delicious fruit for the whole season's use

This Company, National in its character, offers, by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public.

The rates of premium, being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the insurers as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Dividends and the misunderstandings which the latter are so apt to create smong the Policy-Holders.

Several new and attractive tables are now presented which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the INCOME-PRODUCING POLICY and RETURN PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policy-holder not only secures a life Insurance, payable at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income—equal to team percent. (10 per cent.) of the par of his policy.
