A GOLD CARRIER.

In a late number of Harper's Magazine ve find the following description of a Wall street character and a Wall street load:

All the bullion and coin of Wall street is stried about the streets in common open carts, precisely as are used in carrying ordinary merchandise. For twenty-two years past one cartman, John C. Barkley, best known in the street as "Honest John," whose three carts stand at the busy corner of Wall and Broad streets, has done the arting for the bullion dealers and bankers of the city, who would trust bim in robust and ruddy, Honest John has in his countenance precisely the expression which we should expect to see in the face of one who for so many years has borne so honorable a name. He began in the street twenty seven years ago, after his fifth year, The house in Lafayette place has nothing remarkable about it. In New York, where everybody of a certain rank in society is restore the financial balance between the thousands of other houses, this plain two- two continents by conveying gold to and Inside it is comfortably furnished-but cances, down hill, a million dollars in gold, which weighs two tons; but his opinion is bule from which you pass up to the bed that seven hundred thousand dollars is cooms, two of which are used for clock about as much as a humane man will ever rooms when there are receptions. When permit his horse to draw over these rough pavements for any considerable distance. gold, when it goes across the town, is usually accompanied by a clerk of the house to which it belongs; John is quite alone when he has as much gold on his cart as a horse can draw. For such service he gets higher compensation than when he carries an office-desk or a load of printing paper; and, indeed, he has the air of a man who could show a little gold and silver of his own if there were occasion.

THE BENEFIT OF BEING KNOCKED ABOUT IN THE WORLD.

It is a good thing for a young man to be 'knocked about in the world,' though his oft hearted parents may not think so. All ouths, or if not all certainly nineteen twentieths of the sum total, enter life with a surplusage of self-conceit. The sooner hey are relieved of it the better. If, in neasuring themselves with wiser and older nen, they discover that it is unwarranted, and get rid of it gracefully, of their own accord, well and good; if not, it is desirable, for their own sakes, that it be knocked out

A SENATOR THAT HAS GOT RICH.

From the Cincinnati Commercial. I look across the street and see in front of Senator's house the carriage of another enator. The pair of blooded horses cost ome thousand dollars. The gilded harness s in keeping. The close, handsome, shining such is one of Brenton's best, haed with ilk velver, and graced with the choicest and hickest of plate glass. On the coachman's seat sit two of God's creatures, called men; one a bright mulatto, the other a white man and both in livery. They sit in solemn silence under their gay robe of furs and white loves. Directly, the door of the house pers, and two ladies, carrying a poor man's ortune on their backs, descend the steps. The footman swings down and opens the loor, with an easy grace the master cannot mitate. The door closes with a bang, the botman mounts, and the coach rolls away. Well, it seems but yesterday that the owner of all this came here a poor man.

We remember the fairy tale where the old witch touched the pumpkin and turned it into a coach, and so the ugly witch of the obby touched the poor man, and out of raud came the coach, and out of theft came the house, and swindles, drives, and stealings, oil and burnish. Like that witch, I tle pen of mine, and carriage, horses and all would disappear. For honor and honesty would claim their own, and the very clothes would fall from the backs of wife and daugh-

TWO KISSES FOR A DIME. As'a weary traveler was wending his way brough the mud in a far west region of the ountry, he discovered a young maiden seated in front of the door of a small log house. He rode up in front of the cabin, and asked the girl for a drink of water. He drank it, and she being the first woman he had seen for several days, offered her a dime for a kiss. The young maiden ac epted the offer, and received both the kiss and the dime. The traveler was about to esume his journey, but the girl never having seen a dime, asked: "Wnat am I to do with the dime, ?" "You may use it as you wish," he replied, "it is yours." that's the case," said she, "I'll give you
