It is from the very fact that men have become used to taking life without suffering the pecualty of the law that these murders prevail. It is the absence of the dread responsibility, that the death penalty imposes that leads to these seasons when bloodshed and murder run riot over the land. The same causes have been at work in our own county during the rebellion and we are now reaping, all over the country, the bitter futtive, that have always been the result of great wars, when for a season life has been taken without fear of the death penalty. We firmly believe that the riot, bloodshed and murder that are now so prevalent all over the country are the legitimate and insertiable fruits, not of the enforcement, but of the suspension, for a season, of the death penalty. The remedy is not in its abolition but in the rigid enforcement, of it. When the men, who have learned murder in the bloody and irresponsible work of war, shall once more be furty, considered with their own inexorable doom as fixed by our present laws for the crime of murder, they will learn again to respect the lives of their fellow men. We are heartly tired of this sickly, sentimental cant about the cruelty of the death penalty. It comes from a season of their fellow men. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

After the reading of the journal the Speaker announced the first business in order to be the consideration of the resolution offered by Mr. Butler (Mass) last Tuesday, for the appointment of a joint se leet committee on Indian affairs, consisting of three Senators and six members, to which shall be referred all matters relating to treaties with Indian tribes and payment of an nuities, and with power to consider all questions arising under such treaties, and whether they may be abrogated, annulled or modified, etc., and to consider the expediency of determining by law what shall be the legal status of persons of Indian descent and what course should be taken that will better tend to their civilization, Christianization, and ultimate citizenship.

Mr. Butler made an explanation of the resolution, in the course of which he stated that there were one hundred and seventytwo different acts to be consulted by any one desiring to find out all the legislation bearing on Indian affairs, besides a large number of treaties that had been made, modified, and altered, going back to 1864. So long as the Indians were treated as independent nations and as the House had no jurisdiction, in one

So long as the Indians were treated as independent and another of the Senter, and the House had no jurisdiction, in one theory of the law, except to vote appropriations to carry out such treaties, so long would the Executive, with the aid of the Senate, make treaties with the Indians before the House could get any jurisdiction in the matter, and a law would have to be made to put an end to such treaty making system. That have could only be got by the consent of the Senate, and by an adjustment of the terms on which it should be made to put an end to such treaty making system. That have could only be got by the consent of the Senate, and by an adjustment of the terms on which it should be made given their land to the Government, and where the Government had agreed to pay anounties to them such treaties must be endered. He assented to that. The Indians must be paid that which they were promised but where treaties had been simply that Indian tribes should keep the peace, he believed that these treaties had been simply that Indian tribes should keep the peace, he believed that these treaties had been simply that Indian tribes should keep the peace, he believed that the Indians should be abroady and the with them, either by the nation or by individuals. The nution should govern them by, law as it governs all other denizes on the soil, whether citizens or not—according to just laws, but not according to treaties and been decay and the second of the content of the sense on the fourth Monday of March.

Augusta, March 12.—Charles Wallace, editor of the Warrenton (Ga.) Clipper, was shot and instantly killed this morning. Mr. Wallace had applied for admission into a Masonic Lodge at Warrenton and was blackballed by Dr. G. W. Darden, who had promised not to oppose his application. Wallace then attacked Darden through the columns of his paper, denonneing him as a liar and a villian. As Wallace's was passing Darden's office, the latter shot him from his window with a rifle, the ball passing through Wallace's head. The affair causes intense excitement in Warrenton.
