LETTER FROM HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Pa., April, 17, 1869.

AN ATTEMPTED OUTRAGE.

One of the most infamous and powerful combinations that has attempted to rule legislation here for many years has been hanging like an incubus over the capitol for the past week. The movement was commenced in the House on Monday night and took the form of an amendment to the general tax bill. The object was to remove the present tonnage tax from railroad corporations and impose a tax of one-fourth of a contract of the present tonnage tax from railroad corporations and impose a tax of one-fourth of a contract of the country will be held to-day to make suitable provisions for the destitute, and to raise a fund for their relief, many of whom are in a pitiable condition.
