SUMNER'S speech on the Alabama Treaty has created quite a sensation in England. Unqualified condemnation is heard on every side, but no attempt to refute Sumner's arguments has yet been made. Our British neighbors are heartily sick of the ugly question of the Alabama claims, for they know our claims are just and we have the power to enforce them, but they are loathe to acknowledge their wrong. After this bit of bluster is over we shall soon have them negotiating for a settlement; for while we can, they cannot, afford to leave it an open questioned for the distance of the fourth and fifth generations are numerous.

They have since then defended and advocated the cause of one of the most iniquitous rebellions that ever disgraced the annals of christendom. They are already heartily ashamed of both, though Competitive Examinations.—John Stuart Mill, the celebrated English author of works on political economy, has recently written a letter on the subject of Competitive Examinations, as applied to the civil service in the United States. He says: "I have long thought that the appointments to office, without regard to qualifications, are the worst side of American institutions; the main cause of what is justly complained of in their practical operation, and the principal hindrance to the correction of what is amiss as well as a cause of ill repute to democratic institutions all over the world. If appointments were given, not by political influence, but by open competition, the practice of turning out the holders of office at every change in politics, in order to re ward partisans, would necessarily cease, and with it nearly all the corruption and the larger half of the virulance of mere party conflict."

Supposing that a storm was coming on, one of the gentlemen stepped to the door, but not a cloud could be seen nor any object from which the light could have proceeded. The only solution of the phenonenon which they could arrive at, was that a very large and brilliant meteor had passed athwart the heavens, and caused the sudden and startling phenomenon.

The Spanish Cortes, by a large majority, have carried the articles of the new Constitution which provide for liberty of the press, freedom of meeting and association, and the right of petition. All the liberal movements which took place in Europe in 1848 proclaimed these liberties, and, whenever they had the power, established them. But the reaction which has since swept over Europe has destroyed again in most States the fruit of the revolution of 1848, and, outside of England, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland, there are now few countries in Europe which really enjoy them. Spain will there fore rank in this respect among the freest nations of Europe, if the Constitution should ever be carried out.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10th, 1869. A YER'S CATHARTIC PILLS, OR ALL THE PURPOSES OF A LAXATIVE

MEDICINE. Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have used it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cured them; those who have not is that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drag, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscors to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, uch derangements as are the first origin of dissase.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on uch derangements as are the first origin of the sase.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Billous Headache, Sick Headache, Januadice or Green Sickness, Billous Colic and Billous Feerers, they should be judiciously taken for each asse, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it
