Mr. Williams objected to the first amendment, because it only provided for one bond. It is impossible to fund the whole debt with a single bond.

Mr. Cole objected to the amendment, because he thought the bond would run too long.

Mr. Scott said he would favor the bill, with a provision that the nexpotiation of the loan be carried on without employing and outside agencies. The proper way would be to advertise in the regular way, and dispose of the loan to the highest bidders.

Mr. Corbett withdrew his first amendment for the time being.

Ga., March 13.—The officers of the Brunswick and Albany Railroad have telegraphed to General Terry to hurry up troops to the scene of the difficulty. for the protection of the fives of Colonel Halbard, superintendent, and the loyal emp oyes of the road. Troops have been ordered there at once. But four miles of the road remain to be finished by the 18th, so as to secure to be lini-hed by the 18th, so as to secure State aid on the condition of 50 miles. Advices are that the demon tration is not for the purpose of obtaining extortionate, wages on the part of the employes who are engaged in the disturbances, as was first engaged in the disturbances, as was first supposed, but that trouble arose from the influence of the Central Rairroad, in an appeal to sectional prejudice against the road, it being owned and controlled by Northern men. Prominent Democratic journals indicate that by the election of a Democratic Legislature, as would be the result of the adoption of Bigham's amendment to the fifteenth amendment, it would become inopperative in Georgia.
