LABOR'S WAR SONG.

BY CHARLES O. HALPINE Ur, brethren, up! The world is not So bad as some would make it, Although we till a stubborn lot, The plough of toll can break it; And wheat-a sea of amber froth-White apple-bloom and blushing cherries, Will soon replace the thighe growth And bitter bramble-berries. For life's a field, a goodly field, Where skill and long endeavor Can make the barren wilderness An Eden bower forever.

Whenever Reason bids you go, Be prompt and firm to follow: Ne'er build a house on Age's snow-Tradition is but hollow. With eyes that never sum the light, Even though it show your post missian Bide down the phentom broad of night With troops of gallant fancies,

For life's a fight, a stubborn fight. Where hope and fresh endeavor an overcome the bests of Care Should sorrow hem you in upon

Some bleak and lonely mountain,

Ne'er sigh for the forsition lawn,
And willow-shaded fountain;
But on the lightning-shivered top Learn of the eagle self-reliance, And let the whirtwinds, as they drep, Bear down your bold denance. For life's a fight, a gallant fight, Where heart and strong endeavo Shall win the pain and wear the paini Forever and forever.

Besieged in Want's despised retreat And with resource but sennty, Fling over half you'd like to eat, That men may think you've plenty; 'Twas thus the Goth was driven from Rome And 'tis a maxim broadly Roman, Whate'er the tears that fall at home.
Lough lond before your forman. For life's a siege, a long-drawn siege, A fleree, protracted trial, Where fate forever gives the palm. To hope and self-denial,

Should those you friended in distress
Forget you—tis the fishion—
Ne or let them know their worthlessness Had power to move your passion; Be cool, and smile—the war of life Again may place you far above them, And should you chance to meet in strife Then prove how much you love them: For life's a fight, a varying fight, Though Wrong may triumph for awhile Hight wins ere all is ended!

Should she who shared your Summer lot Now shun your cold caresses, Oh, blame her not—oh, hurt her not! But loose her golden jesses;
She never loved, no power on earth
Can change a woman's true affection,
Nor is the haggard falcon worth
A moment's sad dejection.

Avoid the fearful strife of creed,

Forget her frailty in the fight Where brain and bold endeavor Still win at will a changeless crown Forever and forever!

You cannot turn nor guide it; Let Heaven award the victor's meed, And Priest with Priest decide it! Believe that life is fleeting breath, Be just to man and love your neighbor, And take this ritual for your faith— "Truth, Temperance, and Labor!" And thus the clouds of wrong that veil The heaven of life will sever, And the palm be his who wears the mail Of Faith and firm Endeavor,
