

We announce this week the additional names of Andrew J. Albertson of Greenwood, Lewis Enke, of Berwick, and Mordecai Millard of Centre township, as Candidates for Sheriff.

Mr. SROUWER has sold his interest in the Bakery and Confectionery in the Exchange Block, to Enos Jacoby. Mr. Widmeyer remains a partner. All know the fact and energy of Mr. Jacoby, and the new firm will undoubtedly do a rushing business.

We are glad to announce that the Small Pox has disappeared from Danville, and there is not the slightest danger in visiting or transacting business in that Borough. Only two cases proved fatal. The people and authorities are entitled to credit for the vigorous measures taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

An organ-grinder, the first of the season, accompanied by a distressed looking maiden, with a tambourine, furnished our citizens with any quantity of music on Tuesday of last week. From door to door, followed by a train of boys, they ground out a variety of pieces and gathered up the extra pennies. Truly, a hard way of obtaining a livelihood.

Our readers have all heard of Prof. J. M. Macallister, the renowned musician, and many of them have seen his wonderful entertainments. On Wednesday night we witnessed some of his performances, and they seemed almost miraculous. In connection with the entertainment he distributes each evening 100 presents, some of which are very valuable. The programme is changed each evening, and the entertainment will continue during the week, at Snyder's Hall. Admission 35 cents.

The correct pronunciation of the Spanish words in the debate given upon our first page, will not be delivered by most of our readers without explanation. In Spanish 'h' has the sound of a 'j' of 'h', and 'a' has uniformly its Italian sound of 'ah' as in 'father'. The letters 'q' and 'c' consequently the words referred to are to be pronounced as follows:

Navejo—Nah-reh-ho. Nasque—Nah-que. Baka—Bak-ah. Pecos—Pee-co.

P. JOHN'S ardent support of Greeley in his act of becoming bail for Jefferson Davis, is not altogether appreciated or relished by his radical associates. This converting of the "sour apple tree" upon which Davis was to be hung, into a harmless bond with radical surerites, is not exactly "the entertainment to which they were invited."

Greeley goes tall to set Jeff. Davis free, Instead of having him hung on a sour apple tree, And Pateman John, as true as a ba-ba, Goss hurzing away from the sour apple tree.

LOUR FALLING EAST.—By our latest telegrams from the West, we have the important intelligence of a further and rapid decline in flour. Many of the farmers who held on to their grain in anticipation of famine prices are being badly bitten; and panic stricken are hurrying it into the market. Let consumers and millers note the fact. People who speculate in the necessities of life deserve this misfortune for their mercenary endeavors to keep up prices. Let 'em break and bust up!

A FEW days since another robbery came near being perpetrated at Mr. Silas Conner's in Orange. It appears that one or two men entered his stable after his family had gone to bed, and pushed out his carriage, laid out the harness, and then went for the horses. In separating the one from the other they commenced whinnying which aroused Mr. Conner. He went out, and finding the stable door open, ran back for his gun, and at the same time awakened his brother. The thieves, however, finding they were discovered made good their escape, but without any booty.

P. JOHN says we are "num" about the "Fishingcreek Confedency." Some of his followers and creatures called on us a few weeks ago and begged us, for the sake of their families, not to expose them. They are now on their good behavior. For his information we would state that for months we have been collecting evidence in this matter, and now have the telegrams sent and received during the Columbia County Invasion. At the proper time this whole matter will be made public, and P. John will have no reason to be proud of his record, in his efforts to get his fellow-citizens arrested, and murdered by military commissions.

The Members of the Bar of Northumberland county have procured a very beautiful and correct painting of Hon. Alexander Jordan, President Judge of that district, (the 8th,) and hung it in the new Court House, just behind the Bench. It was painted from a photograph and is an excellent likeness, and cost nearly five hundred dollars.

Judge Jordan is the last remaining member of the old bar of Northumberland county. Bellas and Grenough and Donel and Heppner are gone. It is a fitting and deserved testimonial to an upright Judge, an able lawyer and an honest man.

Col. E. OVERTON, who has lately been appointed Register in Bankruptcy for this District, gave us a call on last Wednesday. He requests us to say that in order to oblige suitors in this section he will hold courts here whenever occasion demands.

Our people will find him a clever and obliging gentleman, and since we must have a Radical Register, we know of no one in the District of that creed, who would suit better. Col. Overton served with distinction in the late war.

CAPTAIN GEO. H. MOORE, former publisher of the COLUMBIAN, now residing in Washington City, has been appointed a first-class Clerk in the Pension Bureau, Department of the Interior.

The editor of the Cleveland Herald is offering five dollars in cash for 1888 cents. We are willing to purchase on similar terms. Those having cents to dispose of on these terms may apply.

The facts we publish this week concerning the plunder of the Treasury to the amount of millions of dollars, for the support of Indians in New Mexico, explains one of the abuses of administration by the War Department, and the necessity for very heavy taxes upon the people.

CORNER STONE.—The corner stone of the new Catholic Church, at the corner of Centre and Ferry streets, was laid with appropriate ceremonies, on Sunday, Rev. Arthur McGinnis, of this place, was assisted by a number of his brethren. Rev. Maher, of Harrisburg, delivered an eloquent address in English. A very large concourse of strangers and citizens were in attendance.—Montour American.

The Republican this week contains its usual boast that it has a larger circulation in this county than any other paper published in it. Now, sir, the COLUMBIAN claims to have not only the largest circulation in this county, but to have a circulation in the adjoining counties greater than any other paper published here. Now, P. John, if you are in earnest let us have an examination of the books, and thus settle the question.

All our readers know that McKelvy, Neal & Co., have recently restocked their store with an unusually fine selection of goods; but it is not so generally known that they are sole agents in this town for the sale of the Odessa Collapsing Hoop Skirt. This is said to be one of the greatest improvements of the age so far as "women's fixins" are concerned. It can be altered instantly into any desirable shape, will fit better around the waist than any other kind of a skirt, (or even a man's arm), is manufactured from the best of material, and is made in the strongest and most durable manner. Call and examine.

Our readers must not forget that the delegate election will take place on Saturday, the 27th of July. All of our voters should attend, and see that delegates of good standing and reliable character are chosen. The State Convention has set the example of giving us a good candidate, and we should follow suit. Because we have a large majority in the county, it will not answer to place men in nomination of doubtful character or ability. The people need, and the times demand our best men,—men who are true and tried,—who have always been faithful to the party and its interests, and whose characters are unimpeached.

As this is the season usually adopted for repairing our roads we commend the following extract to our readers: "In road making, the most requisite is the ready and total removal of the water. There cannot be a good road where water stands by the side of it, or on it. If the ditches have no ready outlet, the road bed will soak up the moisture more or less by capillary attraction, and thus remain ratty and muddy. It is vain to think of having a good road on a subsoil filled with stagnant water. Even on side hills, if water remains on the upper side, it will injure the road by passing under. Provide then, if possible, for the thorough drainage of your roads either by surface or covered ditches. See that the roadbed is evenly and slightly rounded, so that the water can readily find its way to the drains. If the soil is clayey or loamy, give it a few inches of gravel, or even coarse sand, and you will have a fine and pleasant passage-way. If the soil is sandy, it needs an addition of clay to correct it, and this will correct it so that good roads may be had over the lightest sandy soils."

Candidates for Nomination. The following gentlemen have been nominated for nomination to the several County offices to be held at election the present year, and their names will be read at the organization of the Democratic County Convention. FOR SHERIFF: MORDECAI MILLARD, CENTRE TOWNSHIP. ANDREW J. ALBERTSON, GREENWOOD TOWNSHIP. LEWIS ENKE, BERWICK. JOSIAH H. FERMAN, BLOOM TOWNSHIP. JAMES LAKE, SCOTT TOWNSHIP. SAMUEL KLINE, BOSTON TOWNSHIP. FOR TREASURER: ROBERT STOUT, MADISON TOWNSHIP. CONFECTIONERY, FRUIT, NUTS, &c., &c. STÖINER & WIDMAYER, MANUFACTURERS, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in PLAIN AND FANCY CONFECTIONERY, AND DEALERS IN FOREIGN FRUITS AND NUTS. Exchange Block, Bloomsburg, Pa. ORANGES, LEMONS, BALSAM, PEARS, ROCK CANDY, SHERBETS, BAKERS, LAYER BAKERS, CURRANTS, CITRUS, PISOS, BOLLAS, &c., of all kinds. ENOS JACOBY, FRED E. WIDMAYER, Bloomsburg, April 5, 1887. M. E. JACKSON, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, Berwick, Columbia County, Penna. M. M. TRAUGH, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, Berwick, Columbia County, Penna.

THE KALEIDOSCOPE:—A map of busy life—its fluctuations and its vast concerns. NO. XXV. HADRIAN TO HIS SOUL. THE Roman Emperor Hadrian, or Adrian, was born in Rome, A. D. 76, and died in A. D. 138. He succeeded Trajan, August 11, 117, and showed great administrative ability. His learning was considerable for the age in which he lived, and his love of it induced him to gather at his court the most celebrated authors and artists of his time. He is recorded to have been a fluent speaker and a polished writer. He is reported when on his death-bed, to have made the following "address to his soul": "Nunc uppono vagula, mandula, Hinc, conose propterea, Quae tunc abbas in leat? Non tunc domus datus puer?" Of which Mr. Alexander Pope, the poet, gives us the following prose translation: "Alas, my soul! thou pleasing companion of this body, thou fleeting thing that art now deserting! Whither art thou flying? To what unknown region? Thou art all trembling, fearful and pensive. Now what has become of thy former wit and humor? Thou shalt jest and be gay no more." The Emperor's reading had doubtless brought him acquainted with that new philosophy which was taught by the philosophers of the East, for it was during the reign of his predecessor, that the famous letter of Pliny, upon the doctrine and character and conduct of the christians, was written. Paul and Peter—Paul most certainly—had preached the gospel in Rome, and this sect, which had been everywhere spoken against, had taught this heathen Emperor that the soul was immortal. For the first time, perhaps, had he given the matter a serious thought, but this address and his sermon that started the waiting courtiers, and the query which the Emperor puts to his soul, must have been repeated from month to month, and how many may have been awakened from spiritual sleep by the question, "Quae tunc abbas in leat?" to ask the still important one—"What must I do to be saved?" But my object in this paper was to afford my readers an opportunity of comparing this celebrated "address" with several translations of it, made by poets of ability and renown. The first is by Matthew Prior, a poet and diplomatist of considerable reputation, born about the year 1664. Does little poetry, fluttering thing, And dost thou longer live together? To take the flight thou know'st not whether 'Tis heaven, or earth, or air, or nothing, Lies all neglected all forgot? And dost thou still thy former wit not lose, And dost thou still thy former wit not lose? Lord Byron calls this an imitation, and perhaps not without cause, rather than a translation, for in fact, a literal poetical rendering is next to impossible, as any one will find upon examination. Mr. Pope's rendering of it is supposed to have been made some time after the prose translation of it already given. And fleeting spirit! wondering thou, That long has warn'd my tender breast, Must thou not more than once be lost? No more a cheerful pluming guest? Whether, oh, whether art thou flying, And where art thou? Whither, dying, And art thou longer to be seen? Lord Byron gives us his view of the address, among his juvenile productions; and it is doubtful if he could have improved upon it at any time. Yet none of the three is particularly vigorous or exact. And gentle, flowing, wandering spirit, Friend and associate of this day? To what unknown region shalt thou fly, Will thou not more than once be lost? No more, thy former wit not lose, Nor more thy former wit not lose. I know of no more profitable literary exercise than the comparison and study of this "address." The original is vigorous and comprehensive. Pope's is weak beside it, and neither of the poetical versions do it justice in power and condensation. The writer who shall turn that into English verse which shall equal the original, will secure a permanent seat among deathless names. Thus, the Emperor may be forgotten; his words and his conquests and his triumphs have substantially passed from the knowledge of man; but the five lines addressed to his soul in the hour and article of death for more than seventeen hundred years have floated along the stream of time, attracting the attention of the poet, the philosopher, and the Christian, and inspiring from each, an answer that only the last can give. Let me ask—can you tell where the soul is going?
