Farmer's Department.

Growing Clover Seed.

CLOVER seed, if well managed, is a profitable crop, more so, in fact, than most farmers appear to be aware of. They do not seem to consider that usually two crops are grown in a year, one of hay and one of seed; and that these crops are often of considerable value, say an average of 1½ tons of hay, worth, at $10 per ton, $15, and 2½ bushels of seed, at $5 per bushel, also $15, making $30 to an acre in one season. And these are ordinary crops; often two tons of hay and four or five bushels of seed—seven bushels have been grown in this way in this country—are grown to the acre, while prices are often much higher, giving from $40 to $50 per acre for hay and seed.

This is the usual way of growing the small kind. The other variety, being a larger and later plant, requires different management. There is not so much of this kind grown, but the price being higher, now and then a farmer makes it profitable. A friend of the writer is quite successful with this variety, his general average being five bushels per acre. Last season he grew forty-three and one-half bushels on eight acres—nearly five and one-half bushels per acre. This seed has probably sold for some $8 or $9 per bushel, which, with the pasture—it is fed close up to the 10th of June, and the seeds comes off early in September—makes it a very profitable crop: and this, too, it should be remembered, is grown without any expense for tilling the land or other cultivation.

If a good crop of seed from the small kind is desired, the first cutting must be early. When it is as soon as the first of July, there will often be double the seed grown in the second crop, that will be secured if the first cutting is ten days later. Still but few farmers take pains to cut clover hay early. Often, to save tilling a week or two, the clover stands until the tenth or fifteenth of July, when of course the following crop of seed must be light. Although the farmer thinks little about it at the time, yet he has sacrificed a large part of his crop of seed, perhaps makes it so late that it will not be thought worth saving, and lost from ten to twenty dollars an acre to save a few dollars for hired help. Each year's observation proves that this is often the case; and no doubt thousands of farmers lose, or fail to realize, hundreds of dollars each, every year by such mismanagement with clover and clover seed.

Keep the Surface of the Ground Loose.

THE editor of the Horticulturist says he has for many years watched the varied results of the cultivator who keeps frequently stirring the surface of his soil, and the one who hoes and cultivates only when the weeds compel him to work; and as he has watched and recorded his notes, the result has always been in favor of the constant stirring of the surface soil. We do not advocate deep tillage during the growing season, but we would have the ground deeply and thoroughly stirred early in the season, whether it were an old or new plantation. Once however, that vigorous growth of top and root has commenced, all deep tillage should cease, because, by pursuing it, constant and continued checks are given, and a truly healthy growth prevented by a repeated breaking and tearing asunder the roots and fibers, the supplying pipes of elongation, expansion and evaporation of the branches and leaves. By the repeated surface stirring of the soil, however, no roots are broken; the sun, air and moisture are enabled to penetrate and assist in the chemical transmutation of the earth's compounds and fitting them for absorption by the roots.

Sawdust—Its Use.

THE New England Farmer devotes considerable space to the consideration of sawdust and its uses as a fertilizer and the manner of treating it, preparatory to its application to the land. As preliminary, it forms a soft and excellent bedding for stock, while it absorbs and retains the larger portion of the urine which would otherwise run to waste. Besides, it forms a more cleanly bed for stock than most other kinds, and to farmers in the vicinity of sawmills is easily attainable. Though slow in decomposing, its retentiveness is such as finally to impart to the land on which it is used, increased liveliness and strength, if packed down closely, and occasionally watered for some time before being applied to the land. Properly prepared before being used, it may be placed in or used as a top dressing for meadows in the Spring, though it is probably more effective when turned under.

Don't Eat Raw Ham.

THE lessons to be drawn from the recent cases of trichinosis in Springfield is summed up in just these four words. While authorities differ in many other things with regard to this new disease, all agree that if ham and pork are thoroughly cooked there is no danger in eating either. Sometimes the disease has been communicated by eating imperfectly cured "dried beef," but here, too, all danger disappears when the beef is well cooked. These and other facts of special interest to the medical profession are admirably set forth in a communication to the New York Medical Record by Dr. Rustine, of Marion, Ind., who has treated several cases of the disease. Dr. Rustine sums up the case as follows:

1. That symptoms indicating the presence of young trichinæ in the tissues are observed as early or earlier than the fourth day after the ingestion of the trichinous meat.

2. That cysts are formed as early as the twenty-fifth day.

3. That, other things being equal, the severity of the symptoms is in direct proportion to the amount of trichinous meat eaten.

4. That an active cathartic, given while the worms are still within the intestinal canal, is effectual to a certain degree in causing their expulsion and mitigating the severity of the disease.

5. That youth affords no immunity destroys the effects of the disease.

6. That salting and smoking do not destroy the vitality of the parasite.

7. That thorough cooking accomplishes the object.

For the Young Folks.

The Crimson Suit—A Fairy Story.

EARL BOTOLF was old enough to go to Court; but his lordship was poor as a mouse, and had no horse to ride, or clothes, to wear. In this perplexity he walked out one night, thinking what on earth to do; and wal ked till he came to a shop at the door of which stood a man.

"Would your lordship like a new suit?" asked the man. "We have got one that will fit you to a T."

"No," answered Botolf. "I have no money."

"That makes not the least differ ence," answered the man. "You can have anything that may please you in my shop on one condition."

"And what is that?" asked Botolf.

"That you shall wear the clothes that you may select for a year and a day."

"That is easily done," said the Earl. And going into the shop he selected a magnificent suit of crimson velvet, embroidered with gold. On putting it on he felt something rattle in his pocket, and took out a little ivory horse, and twenty little ivory men. As soon as these touched the ground they began to grow; and the Earl found himself not only with a handsome new suit, but with a fine horse and twenty followers.

Of course, the first thing his lordship did was to go to Court; and the second was to fall in love with the Kings daughter, and marry her in two months.

All this time the Earl Botolf wore the crimson velvet suit, as he had promised; for though he had tried to find the shop again, he never succeeded.

"So the least I can do is to keep my promise, and wear the clothes for a year and a day."

"By-and-by, however, his wife said to him, "My lord, why do you wear that crimson velvet suit? I am sick of seeing it."

The Earl made her some answer to divert her attention; but the Princess would talk about the suit. When she found that he paid no attention, she began to cry; then she pouted; then she coaxed.

To all this the Earl only said, "I have promised, and I must wear it."

"Fiddlestick!" cried the Princess. "Promised an old clothes man. So you care more for a tailor than you do for your wife."

And being now quite determined to have her own way, she went to her father to complain of her husband's unkindness.

"Be patient," said the King. "He cannot refuse me."

So the next day he sent the LordHigh Fiddlesticks with ten wagon-loads of splendid garments.

"The King begs you will accept all these garments," said the Lord High Fiddlestick, "and send him in return that crimson velvet suit that you have worn now for nearly a year."

"I am very sorry," replied the Earl, "but the promise that I made in poverty I will keep in prosperity. I cannot wear any other clothes."

The King flew into a passion when he heard this.

"We will see," said his Majesty. And he ordered one of his officers to take the Earl to prison.

The Princess was very sorry for that; but the King was now so angry that he would not listen to her; and the Earl was shut up in the King's dungeon till the year and the day was quite past.

On this last day, as he lay on his straw bed half asleep and half awake, he heard two mice talking together; and one said to the other, "The year and a day is now past, and the wicked genius who wished to destroy Earl Botolf can no longer touch him; but if he had not so strictly kept his word, and at any time have taken off his crimson suit which was enchanted, then he would have been destroyed at once. Do you see?"

"I see," answered the second mouse. And then they went back to their holes.

But Botolf sent for the King; and told him what he had heard, and how the year and a day was passed, and he might wear all the colors of the rainbow if he liked; whereupon this highly reasonable King took him out of prison, and no more was heard about the tiresome Crimson Suit.

Josh Billings on Bed Bugs.

I HAVE never seen ennybody yet but what despised bed bugs. Tha ar the meanest ov awl crawling, creeping, hopping or biting things.

Tha dassent tackle a man by dalite, but sneak in after dark and chaw him while he is fast asleep.

A musketo will fite you in broad dalite, at short range, and give you a chance to knock at his sides—the bea is a game bug, and will make a dash at you even in Broad way—but the bed bug is a garroter, who waits till you strip then picks out a mellow place to eat you.

If I wuz ever in the habit of swaring, I would not hezitate to damn a bed bag right to hiz face.

Bed bugs are uncommon smart in a small way—one pair of them will stock a hair mattress in 2 weeks with bugs enuff to w last a small family a whole year.

It don't do enny good to pray when bed bugs are in season; the only way to get rid of them is to bile up the whole bed in aquafortis and then heave it away and buy a new one.

Bed bugs when tha have grown awl tha intend to, are about the size ov a blue jays eye, and have a brown complexion; when tha start out to garrote tha are as flat as a greese spot, but when tha git thru garroting are swelled up like a blister.

It takes three days to git the swelling out of them.

If bed bugs have enny destiny to fill it must be their stummaks, but seems to me tha must have been made by ackident, just ez slivers are, tew stick into somebody.

If tha wuz got up for some wise purpose, they must have took the wrong track, for there kant be enny wisdum in chawing a man aul nite long and raising a family besides to follow the same trade.

If there iz some wisdom in aul this, I hope the bugs will chaw them folks who can see it, and let me be, because I am one of the hereticks.

A YANKEE youth and a pretty girl sat facing each other at a husking party. The youth, smitten with the charms of the maiden, only ventured a sly look, and now and then touched Patty's feet under the table. The girl, determined to make the youth express what he so strongly felt, bore with these advances a little while in silence, when she cried out, "Look here! if you love me, say so but don't dirty my stockings."

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

HOOFLAND'S

GERMAN BITTERS.

HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,
AND
Hoofland's German Tonic.
Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.
The Great Remedies
FOR ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, STOMACH, or DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

Hoofland's German Bitters

Is compounded of the pure juices, (or as they are medicinally term ed, Extracts) of Roots, Herbs and Barks, making a preparation, highly concentrated, and entirely free from alcohol. No admixture of any kind.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Is a combination of all the ingredients of the Bitters, with the purest quality of Santa Cruz Rum, Orange, etc., making one of the most pleasant and agreeable remedies ever offered to the public.

Those preferring a Medicine free from Alcoholic admixture, will use

Hoofland's German Bitters.

In cases of nervous depression, when some alcoholic stimulus is necessary,

Hoofland's German Tonic

should be used.

The Bitters or the Tonic are both equally good, and contain the same medicinal virtues.

The stomach, from a variety of causes, such as Indigestion, Dys pepsia, Nervous Debility, etc., is often deranged. The result of which is, that the patient suffers from several or more of the following diseases:

Constipation, Flatulence, Inward Piles, Fulness of Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried or Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, etc. Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

These remedies will effectually cure Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Chronic Diarrhœa, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a Disordered Liver, Stomach, or Intestines.

DEBILITY,

RESULTING FROM ANY CAUSE WHATEVER; PROSTRATION OF THE SYSTEM, INDUCED BY SEVERE LABOR, HARDSHIPS, EXPOSURE, FEVERS, ETC.

There is no medicine extant equal to these remedies in such cases. A tone and vigor is imparted to the whole system, the Appetite is Strengthened, food relished and enjoyed, the stomach digests promptly, the blood is purified, the complexion becomes sound and healthy, the yellow tinge is eradicated from the eyes, a bloom is given to the cheeks, and the weak and nervous invalid becomes a strong and healthy being.

Persons Advanced in Life,

And feeling the hand of time weighing heavily upon them, with all its attendant ills, will find in the use of this BITTERS, or the TONIC, an elixir that will instil new life into their veins, restore in a measure the energy and ardor of more youthful days, build up their shrunken forms, and give health and happiness to their remaining years.

NOTICE.

It is a well-established fact that fully one-half of the female population are seldom in the enjoyment of good health; or, to use their own expression, "never feel well." They are languid, devoid of all energy, extremely nervous, and have no appetite.

To this class of persons the BITTERS, or the TONIC, is especially recommended.

WEAK AND DELICATE CHILDREN

Are made strong by the use of either of these remedies. They will cure every case of MARASMUS, without fail.

Thousands of certificates have accumulated in the hands of the proprietor, but space will allow of the publication of but a few. Those, it will be observed, are men of note and of such standing that they must be believed.

TESTIMONIALS.

Hon. Geo. W. Woodward,
Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pa., writes

Philadelphia, March 15, 1867.

"I find Hoofland's German Bitters is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit, and want of nervous action in the system.

"Yours truly,
"GEO. W. WOODWARD."

Hon. James Thompson,
Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 28, 1866

"I consider Hoofland's German Bitters a valuable medicine in case of attacks of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my experience of it.

"Yours, with respect,
"JAMES THOMPSON."

From Rev. Joseph H. Kennard, D.D.,
Pastor of the Tenth Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

Dr. Jackson—Dear Sir: I have been frequently requested to connect my name with recommendations of different kinds of medicines, but regarding the practice as inappropriate to my sphere, I have in all cases declined; but with a clear proof in various instances and particularly in my own family, of the usefulness of Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters, I depart for once from my usual course, to express my full conviction that, for general debility of the system, and especially for Liver Complaint, it is a safe and valuable preparation. In some cases it may fail, but usually, I doubt not, it will be very beneficial to those who suffer from the above causes.

Yours, very respectfully,
J. H. KENNARD,
Eighth, below Coates st.

From Rev. E. D. Fendall,
Assistant Editor Christian Chronicle, Philadelphia.

I have derived decided benefit from the use of Hoofland's German Bitters, and feel it my privilege to recommend them as a most valuable tonic to all who are suffering from general debility or from diseases arising from derangement of the liver.

Yours truly,
E. D. FENDALL.
