Changing a Vote.

The Northumberland Conference adopted no rules for their government. They were therefore acting under the general principles of parliamentary law when the 202d ballot was taken and at all other times. By that law a member of the conference had an undoubted right (of which his colleagues could not deprive him) to change his vote before a final result on any ballot was announced by the chair. We give again the plain and strong words of the general rule applicable to the case upon the high authority of Barelay's Digest.

"A MEMBER HAS THE BIGHT TO CHANGE HIS VOTE BEFORE THE DECI-SION OF THE QUESTION HAS BEEN FI-NALLY AND CONCLUSIVELY PRONOUNCS "D BY THE CHAIR." (Barelay's Digest, p. 197, ed. 1865.)

This rule is grounded in the practice of the earliest times.

The ancient method of taking the vote in the Roman Senate was :-- The President of the body separated the members into two parties opposite to each other, (according to their opinions upon the question to be determined,) in order to the more easy counting of the voles. "After they had voted any one might retrace his opinion by passing over and ranging himself with the con- ty and integrity into the Senate. To trary party." (Sutherland's Manual, p. 193, 5th edit.)

The secoder's candidate quotes the special rule of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives limiting the general right of changing a vote. This would be to the purpose if the Conference had adopted the rules of that House for their government, which they did not. They could only have such a rule or act upon it after they had adopted it.

It is then undeniable that Mr. With ington had a clear right to change his vote. Although the Conference by a twothirds vote authorized him to make the change, their consent was quite unnecessary. It was superfluous because it could add nothing to a right which was parfect before. But we do not think the resolution of the Conference was untimely; for it gave openly and distinetly the sanction of a two thirds majority to what was done and was well. calculated to satisfy fully a sense of justice and fairness in all persons not famillar with parliamentary law. And it would have conferred authority upon Mr. Withington to change his vote if he had not otherwise possessed it.

The Assault on Senator Jackson

The Danville Intelligencer, through the kindness of its stockholders managed by Thos. Chalfant, makes an inexcusable assault on Senator Jackson in its issue of the 10th inst., asserting that publican support is not yet openly menhe voted for the "Herdie Bills" &c. The tioned, but has been suggested by one cause of this attack is Mr. Jackson's of his leading supporters to be the trad. friendship for Mr. Buckalew, and the ing of of the State ticket for Chalfant solid support given the latter by Sulli-

So that in case the two Democratic surdidates make a fair and equal division of their vote, each will have 5,000, and thus give the Re-publican nomines 2,000 majority. publican nominee 2,000 majority. Some of the Republicans in this quarter seem disposed to support Mr. Chalfant, Bat before this is done with any degree of manimity, he must give certain pledges with good security for their redemption. He must treat Gov. Genry fairly and honestly, and if he could go for the X Vth Amendment, it would help him. After all, we think it aftest to support a Re-publican candidate, especially when there is a chance of success. Republi-cans naturally feel a little "skittish" about alding and abetting the election of a Copperficial, even if he does peel off his old skin. We have no special interest in the question as to which of the opposing Jury called, same day verdict for Plff. Deed Poll from Sheriff to Hiram C Hower for lot of ground in Bloomsburg. These, with our 7,000 votes, will give us the Senator by from one to two thousand majority. We therefore urge our conferences to se-fect a good Republican candidate, and once again this Egyptian district may have a Republican Senator. But this was not all, a young couple had just taken contracts of each other for life, and this of course had to be duly commemorated by the younger classes of the community; tin cans, buckets, kettles and every conceivable instrument on which or by which more noise could be made was brought into action. The wildest excitement prevailed. The horses harnessed to vehicles danced as they passed the large crowds of people standing and dancing around the Doctor's wagon and the piper's hogshead. Steel left the medicine wagon and joined the dance. (Ife has been since discharged.) The ale was distributed very generously. The moon looked down calmly on the scene rolicking and fro

Another point, and we leave this question for the present. Chalfant finding that his efforts in this matter were worse than useless, concluded to take a pleasure trip to Philadelphia. In order that the good people of Danville, however, should remain under the impression that he was at his post, and that he was the mighty instrument which controlled Legislatares, he induced our good-natured Senator to agree that upon the passage of the Appropriation Bill a telegram announcing the fact should be sent to Danville in his (Chalfant's)name. This was done, and up to this time our neighbors have been under the impression that Chalfant se cured the appropriation, staid in the lobbies until it was done, and then triuniphantly announced the result to his wondering countrymen.
