AGRICULTURAL & DOMESTIC.

How to Have a Good Soll. The question of deep plowing which we had supposed definitely settled long since, is again being brought forward, and the discussions are assuming a very spirited style. Subsoil plows which grew rapidly in favor some years since have almost entirely disappeared though faith in deep plowing has taken a stronger hold than ever. Of course the depth of plowing should be in proportion to the depth of soil. It will not do to plow twelve inches deep where the surface soil is only six. This may be done in the course of time, but not at once. To make a good deep soil, the progress downward should be gradual. Let a proper portion of the subsoil be brought to the surface, and exposed to the action of the sun, rain, wind and frost, then add the manures necessary to render it fertile. By pursuing this plan for successive years, a fertile soil can be made—one that will resist the effects of severe drought, and be fitted also for the successful cultivation of all ordinary crops. By this means the mineral constituents of the subsoil become thoroughly intermixed with the soil of the surface, which in consequence of oft repeated shallow plowings has been depleted of them. To make a good soil by this method, the plowing should be done in the fall, in order that the newly turned up subsoil, may be subjected to the ameliorating influences of the winter's freezing and thawing. But after all this is done, it will be found that good crops cannot be produced unless there is a liberal application of manure. Plow deep and manure generously, and you will have a good soil and a bountiful

As this season of the year sometimes brings considerable sickness, a few remarks may be appropriate. When a friend or relative is taken down we all run to see what is the matter, and if they grow worse we run oftener and stay longer and get up dainty messes to Every Plano fully Warranted for 5 Years tempt them, to "try and eat just a little," "you really are so very weak," &c. And if they survive all this killing kindness and get a little on the mend, then we neglect them almost entirely, thinking they are "coming on nicely," "will soon be well again," &c.

We need reform in this matter. When persons are going into low fevers or other serious sickness, they generally need quiet, and can ill bear any excitement like company and conversation. And they seldom want food; even the necessary beef-tea and inevitable toast are sad trials. Let us leave the very sick in the hands of a doctor and a good nurse, aiding them as much as we can indirectly; but when the disease is conquered and nature begins to rally the weakened forces, our gentle ministra-tions should then begin. Then is the time to bring on thedainty repasts, (not sick victuals,) but good, nourishing food in small quantities. Then bring your sewing and sit awhile, but not too long, and tell all the pleasant news, and it will help much toward a safe and happy

A woman, just recovering from typhold fever, said to me, "While I was so bad, folks were running in all the time, and they talked and talked to each other that I thought I should go distracted with so much excitement, but I didn't like to say anything." She added, "Now that I am getting better, and would be so glad to see them, they seem to have forgotten me." And we fear this is the experience of many, therefore let us try to manage better in the future. - Germantown Telegraph.

Preserving Farm Tools. Every farmer should have a can of linseed oil and a brush on hand, and whenever he buys a new tool he should soak it well with oil and dry it by the fire or in the sun before using. The wood by this treatment is toughened and strengthened, and rendered impervious to water. Wet a new hav rake. and when it dries it will begin to be loose in the joints; but if well oiled, the wet will have but slight effect. Shovels and forks are preserved from checking and cracking in the top of the handle by oiling; the wood becomes as smooth as glass by use, and is far less liable to blister the hand when long used. Ax and hammer handles often break off where the wood enters the iron; this part particularly should be toughened with oil, to secure durability. Oiling the wood in the eye of an ax will prevent its swelling and shrinking, and sometimes getting loose. The tools on a large farm cost a large sum of money; they should be of the most approved kinds. It is poor economy at the present extravagant price of labor to set men to work with ordinary,old-fashioned implements. Laborers should be required to return their tools to the con venient places provided for them; after using, they should be put away clean and bright. The mould boards of plows are apt to get rusty from one season to another, even if sheltered; they should be brushed over with a few drops of oil when put away, and will then remain in good order till wanted.-Farm Jour-

TO RESTORE COLOR .-- It is well known that when the color on a fabric has been destroyed by acid, ammonia is applied to neutralize the same. But it is not so wel! known that after the application of ammonia, chloroform will, in almost all cases, restore the original color. Chloroform will also remove paint from a garment when almost everything else falls.

SMALL FARMS .- In England there are many farmers who more than support themselves and families on the product of six acres, besides paying beavy rents. Agriculturists in Ger- Mar.19.69-1y who are proprietors of five acres, support themselves on two, and lay up money on the product of the remain-

Having seen your preparations extensively advertised, I consulted with my family physician in regard to using your Extract Buchu.

I did this because I had used all kinds of adless, and, some quite injurious; in fact, I despaired of ever getting well, and determined to use no remedies hereafter unless I knew of the ingredients. It was this that prompted me to use your remedy. As you advertised that it was omposed of bushu, cabebs, and juniper berries, it occurred to me and my physician as an excel lent combination, and, with his advice, after an with the druggist, I concluded to try it. I commenced its use about eight months ago, at which time I was confined to my room. From the first bottle I was astonished and gratified at the benexamination of the article, and consulting again eficial effect, and after using it three weeks, was able to walk out. I felt much like writing you a full statement of my case at that time, but thought my improvement might only be temporary, and therefore concluded to defer and see if it would effect a perfect cure, knowing then i would be of greater value to you and more satisfactory to me.

I am now able to report that a cure is effected

I have not used any now for three months and feel as well in all respects as I ever did.
