Choice Poetry.
"My Grace is Sufficient for You." When in temptation's trying hour, When assailed by Satan's power, When I feel upon my brow, Tempted Satan's draught of drink;
When my strength begins to fail,
And Satan's eloquence prevail; Then, slow and low, I kneel and pray, That "thy grace is sufficient for me."

From the throne of life-making,
Tried and true, and not forsaking,
Where the angels sing their praise,
Mortals, I have come to meet you,
And to tell you of the glory
That is yours, and of the glory
That is mine.

As one heart yearns for another,
As a child yearns for its mother,
From the golden gates of glory,
From the golden gates of glory,
I have come to meet you,
And to tell you of the glory
That is yours, and of the glory
That is mine.

Here the harp and the raven, Human vapors, sorrow, and pain,
Tried and true, and not forsaking,
Where the angels sing their praise,
Mortals, I have come to meet you,
And to tell you of the glory
That is yours, and of the glory
That is mine.

But while living, striving, dying, Never did I see the light of day,
When I was in the land of the living,
When I was in the land of the living,
I have come to meet you,
And to tell you of the glory
That is yours, and of the glory
That is mine.

Then this fervent aspiration Found my fainting soul salvation—
"I will give you a hundred and fifty,
I will give you a hundred and fifty."

Like the breath of heaven's blessing,
Like the breath of heaven's blessing,
I have come to meet you,
And to tell you of the glory
That is yours, and of the glory
That is mine.

Oh, my mortal friends and brothers,
Oh, my mortal friends and brothers,
I have come to meet you,
And to tell you of the glory
That is yours, and of the glory
That is mine.

At first the gentleman would not listen not himself a professor, and could not well afford to keep such a valuable instrument. He would sell it for $175—not a penny less.

An Adroit Sell.
One day a gentleman called in at the store of Mr. Solomon Jacobs, in Pastucket, with a violin under his arm.
He purchased a necktie for which he paid fifty cents, and then asked permission to leave his box while he did a few errands down town. Old Jacobs—a dealer in new and second-hand clothing—had no objection.

"It is a violin," said the gentleman, "which I prize very highly. It was given me by an Italian, who died at my father's house. I beg of you to be careful of it, sir."

Toward noon, while the old clothing dealer was very deeply engaged in the work of selling a suit of shoddy for a bang up Prussian tricolor, a stranger entered the store—a remarkably well-dressed man, with a distinguished look.
The violin bow was in sight upon the shelf, and no one was near to prevent, the new-comer slipped around and opened the box and took out the instrument, a very dark hued and ancient looking one.

"Hullo, Jerry Jacobs, when he heard the sound of the violin, 'what for you touch that, eh?'"

The stranger explained that he was a professor—that he was leader of an orchestra—and that he could never see a violin without trying it. And then he drew the bow across the strings, playing a few passages of a fine old German waltz.

"My soul!" he cried, after he had run his fingers over the instrument awhile, "that is the best violin I ever saw! It is not a better one in the city—a perfectly genuine old Cremona!
I will give you a hundred dollars for it."

Jacobs said it was not his.
Two hundred."

Mr. Jacobs was forced to explain how the violin came to be left in the store.
The stranger had taken out his pocketbook, and drawn forth two one hundred dollar bank notes. He put them back, remarking: "He put them back, remarking: 'I will give you a hundred dollars for it.'"

Lost Arts.
In regard to the arts far behind the ancients. None of the colors of the Egyptians' paintings of thousands of years ago are in the least faded, except the green. The Tyrian purple of the entombed city of Pompeii is as fresh to-day as it was three thousand years ago. Some of the stucco, broken up and mixed, reverted to its original lustre.
And we pity the ignorance of the dark-skinned children of the Egypt. The colors upon the walls of Nero's festival vault are as fresh as if painted yesterday. So is the cheek of the Egyptian prince who was contemporaneous with Solomon, and Cleopatra, at whose feet Caesar laid the riches of his empire.

And in regard to metals, the edges of the statues of the obelisks of Egypt and of the ancient walls of Rome are sharp as if but newly manufactured.
The stones still remain as closely fitted together as when they were first laid, and their surfaces are exceedingly hard, so that when the French sappers engraved two lines upon the dark-skinned children of the
the Egyptian prince who was contem-
poraneous with Solomon, and Cleopatra,
his empire.

The strong attachment of subscribers to a well conducted newspaper is fully confirmed by publishers. "Stop my words of dread to new beginners, lose their terror after a journal has been established a term of years. So long as a paper pursues a just and honorable course, meeting the wants of its customers in all respects, the ties of friendship between the subscribers and the paper are as difficult to break by any outside or third party as the links which bind old friends in business or social life. Occasional defects and errors in a newspaper, are overlooked by those who have become attached to it through its perusal for years. They may sometimes become dissatisfied with it on account of something which has slipped into its columns and may faintly suggest it, but the absence of a few weeks becomes an insupportable deprivation, and they hasten to renewal of the subscription. This is the common experience in the history of all established papers. No friendship on earth is more constant than that contracted by the readers for a journal which makes an honest and earnest effort to merit their continued support."

"The cold water" is said to be excellent as a preventive of "temper fits" in children. A cup of the liquid dashed smartly over the whimperingly untractable usually does the business. If "starling precious" is far advanced toward chronic spasmodic doses of the corrective may be necessary to effect a permanent reformation. It is said that children never set up an unnecessary howling about domestic trifles when they are assured that the nuisance will be removed by a sudden shower administered by a determined heart and a firm hand.
The experiment is worth trying. A wet dust or so will do no harm, and a good night rest is secured in the household. Children can be taught to cry for anything which is denied them, and they know exactly how the chances of success depend upon the pertinacity with which they yell. Cold water is a harmless remedy for such a disorder.

The crown diamonds belonging to the dignity of Emperor of Germany, together with the Iron crown of the Empire, are in the possession of Austria, and the Prussian journals are agitating the question whether they should not be demanded from Austria for the coronation of the Emperor William.
The place of coronation will, it is thought, be Berlin, although the historical choice lies between Frankfurt-on-the-Main and Aix-la-Chapelle. Frankfurt claims the honor, and the great majority of German princes are in favor of the city of the Rhine, which will be the new Emperor should be crowned there rather than in Berlin.

A LONDON despatch gives the points of M. Thiers' asserted plan to elect a king for France. He proposes, it is said, after the signing of peace on the German terms, to exchange the prisoners of war. The French prisoners, after crossing the Rhine, will be placed under the command of Gen. Changarnier, the veteran Orleansist, and will march against the place of sitting of the national Assembly, whether at Bordeaux or Paris, and then "demonstrate" in favor of the Count of Paris for king.
This sounds apocryphal, but there may be something in it.

BORROWING TROUBLE.—How many thousands are there, whose energies are paralyzed by borrowing trouble? If they are not very unfortunate to day, they are certain they will be so tomorrow. They spend so much of their time groaning, that they have but little left for the performance of the duties of their station. Such are not the men to whom the world commits important trusts, and whom it is ready to assist. If you all the world that you are going to fail in any undertaking, it will take you a long time to get on your feet, and you will be unable to do anything to help yourself. If you are weak, do your best to be cheerful.

CHATEAUX has changed garrisons six times during the last two months, and with every change, says a correspondent, there comes a pang of some sort. One day the Germans, stay a week and go; then come the French, take what the Germans have left, scold the inhabitants for giving the Germans anything, and go; back come the Germans the same evening, squeeze the sponge for the last drop, and live upon the inhabitants until it is a mystery how anybody in the wretched place lives at all, only to make way once more for the French, and so on.

With Alsace and Lorraine, the new German Empire will have the largest population of any country in Europe next to Russia. Russia has about 65, 000,000. Next come France, then Austria, then Great Britain and Ireland, and then Italy.

A YANKEE farmer, whose load of hay was found to develop several healthy boulders, remembered that he "drew pretty close to a stun wall," on his way to market.

THE REVENUE RING.
ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE.
The tobacco merchant whose arrest we noticed last week has been taken to Williamsport and held in five hundred dollars for his appearance before the United States court in June next, for "packing cigars in boxes that had been used for other irregularities." He has now struck the outer circle of the revenue vortex. If he is not swallowed up he'll make an escape as narrow as old Tom O'Shanter's mare Maggie did from the clutches of the witches, and his purse will come out of the scrape as short as Maggie's tail. Greenbacks are the "open sesame" to the magic circle, and a speedy solvent of the fetters that hold men in its power.

"The usual way" is the way that this unfortunate will have to tread. Which way that is can be easily learned by consulting with any one who has ever been caught on the revenue hook. As there are several around these parts the information will not be difficult to obtain.

It is a shame, an outrage, that we should have foul nests of corruption spread over the country such as these revenue rings are. It matters not whether a man is guilty or innocent.
Once in the meshes of the ring, he has to pay heavily to get out. If a rascal ever gets out of the ring, he has suffered punishment is caught he can compensate his felony and get back among honest people whitewashed by these so-called administrators of the law. If a man commits a mere technical violation, without any intent to do wrong—as seems to have been the case in this instance—he is held as a bandit would hold a captive until his ransom is paid. The criminal is allowed to escape—the innocent man is made to suffer.—Clinton Democrat.

BEEF SOUP.—Take a shin of a beef weighing about six pounds, chop the bone in two or three pieces, and lay in a kettle; add two carrots, two turnips, two large onions, and if possible a head of celery, all chopped fine. Sprinkle in a dozen peppercorns, the same of allspice, four cloves, and salt to taste.
Cover the whole with cold water, set over a brisk fire until it boils well, skim off the foam that will rise, then strain gently at the back of the stove for four hours. Remove the meat to serve with potatoes for dinner. If a thick soup is desired mix a tablespoonful of potato or corn starch in cold water, and stir into the soup; let it boil up and serve.
If preferred some of the meat can be cut up in the soup.

THE FIRST KISS.—"O Woman! but It's Gude!"—The Rev. John Brown courted a lady upward of six years, and was so singularly modest and bashful that he had never ventured to kiss her.
One day it occurred to him that it would not be a bad thing to do. So, it an, we've been acquainted now for years, an'—I've never got a kiss yet. D'ye think I may take one, my bonnie lass?" The reply was wonderfully characteristic of the Scottish maiden. "Just as ye like, John," said she,
"only be leavin' an' proper et' it."
"Surely, Janet," said John, "we'll kiss a blessing." The blessing was asked, and the kiss exchanged. "O woman!" said the enraptured but still devout minister, "O woman, but it was gude.
We'll no return thanks." And they did.

NAOMI, the daughter of Elimelech, was five hundred and eighty years old when she was married. So don't be discouraged, girls!

There never was a more art gray than that of my dear mother's hair.
And look for her hair!
To avoid all such a thing, I beg you will pay what is due.
If you don't, you'll lose your hair—
if you don't, you'll lose your hair.

VON MOLTRIE proclaims that he knows nothing about the American civil war, saying: "I have purposefully kept myself ignorant of the progress because there was nothing to be learned from it. War is a science, and any record of the mere scrambling of two armed mobs can only produce confusion in the mind."

A BACHELOR editor, thus, in his spite, comments on a recent moonlight night:
"We left our sanctum at midnight last night, and on our way home we saw a young lady and gentleman holding a gate on his hip. They were evidently indignant at being kept out so late, as we saw them bite each other several times."

Of all the annoying men in this world, the good Lord preserve us from him who thinks himself more righteous than his neighbors—who imagines that his way to Heaven is the only true way, and that those who don't believe in him disbelieve in God.
