Hardly a Norwegian farmhouse is without an immense old-fashioned loom, upon which all the cloth and linen used in the family is woven.

One of the pioneers in California emigration, who went across the plains in '49, tells this story that begins on the plains, and has just ended in San Francisco.

They were all men who had faced death many a year before they had reached the West. They knew the importance of the work they had been sent to perform, and they marched up that slope with a firmness and steadfastness which told plainly enough that fear held no place in their ranks.
