Dickinson Seminary.

Commencement exercises at Dickinson Seminary Williamsport, on the 22d ult. The large hall of the Academy of Music was filled with the friends of the Seminary and the graduating class. From the proceedings as published in the Williamsport Standard we extract the following, with the remark that the other papers of the city give similar expression :
"Ambilion a National Characteristic,"

"Ambition a National Characteristic," was ably and earnestly handled by WARREN J. BUCKALEW of Bloomsburg, Pa. Although Mr. BUCKALEW had been seriously ill for some time previous to these exercises, and was still indisposed during commencement, he did not permit physical suffering to prevent him from appearing on the stage and performing his duty. His oration was vigorous, the argument clear, expression elegant, sentiment patriotic, and the gestures of the speaker peculiarly graceful.

1st. The Mechanics' Band of Catawissa, 17 pieces, finely uniformed and well instructed, thanks to the constant instruction of Mr. Sechler.

2d. The Friendship Fire Company of this place, in full numbers, and pulling with pride their new hose carriage. Their beautiful and costly flags attracted much attention.

3d. The Washington Fire Company of Danville, a stalwart body of men, Mr. Drehr lost nearly all his household thorough firemen, and proud of their calling. An excellent drum corps ac companied them.

4th. The Luzerne Fire Company of Kingston, with a drum corps, composed of intelligent and well disciplined men. 5th. Next, the Williamsport Grays. commanded by Capt. Stead completely uniformed, well disciplined and numbering about 50 men. Their fine military display excited the admiration of all, and revived ideas of 1861.

COMMUNICATIONS

That " Hop." EDITOR COLUMBIAN:-

Far beyond the memory of the oldest inhabitant it has been a common remark that but little sociability existed in Bloomsburg. Intercourse was re- the school. On Thursday evening of last week, the old barriers were effectually broken. Through the enterprise of a few of our citizens, a "hop" was projected, the and the General and Staff moved on only restriction on attendance being through our principal streets, while the that the participants should be gentlemen and ladies.

The place was selected at Rupert; not only because of the beautiful natural scenery surrounding it, but because it was equally convenient to the Catawissians, who had also been invited. About sunset the finest gathering of maids and matrons, youths and men, ever assembled in Columbia County for a like purpose, were to be seen at the base of Prospect Mountain,—numbering nearly one hundred. The air was delightfully cool. On the slope, and under the trees a platform had been erceted for the Terpsichoreans. Higher up rose terraces of seats for the use of the band, the dancers, and the spectators. Those tired of the dance, or of a sufficient sentimental tuan to prefer a moonlight stroll could be gratified by following the mazy walks through the grove, prepared by the watchful care of Mr. Tubbs. True, the gnarled root very pleasant festival held on the 16th grain-a picture of peace and repose. Bloomsburg in the distance, with its Normal School prominent, and the spires glittering in the sunlight, found new beauty in our eyes. And then the winding Susquehanna-river of story and song-of thee has a native poet well said :-

The earth has nowhere greener fields Than thy refreshing moisture yields; Though loftler mountains crown the Rhine, None are more beautiful than thine: itealth through thy fertile valleys roams And virtue blesses all thy homes With pure felicity."

The border to this picture is equally beautiful; the bold ridge stretching from the Mifflin valley to the quaint town of Catawissa, and towering beyoud, with sky-like aspirations, are the nobler forms of the Catawissa mountains. The eye at last rests on the bluff now called "The Lover's Leap," from which, the legend bath it, an Indian maiden and her youthful lover cast themselves into the placid waters of the Susquehanna, when pursued by a long after its authors and kind benefac vengeful father. > Mr. Editor one had his or sewing Machines which has been progressing for the past four weeks at the Maryland Institute, terminated on Wednesday evening last, resulting in favor of the Weed Machine, which was awarded the Gold Medai over the Wheeler & Wilson, and Howe. Public opinion had already pointed to such a result, so the verdict was not altogether a surprise to those who have watched the struggle from the beginning. The Howe exhibited some good qualities, yet its more cumurous proportions and reduced rate of spreed, made it evident, at the outset, that the real conflict would be between the Weed and Wheeler & Wilson. It seemed to be an even race upon light work, both machines making beautiful specimens of hemming, felling, ruffling and the like; but when it came to variety or heavy work, the Weed astonished every one by flying through everything hefore it, passing from a dainty ruffle, through thirty thicknesses of dressed muslin, then to lace, and finally winding up by stitching with No. 200 cotton and No. 50 linen thread, upon the same material without change of needle or tension during the trial. A machine posgrand contest for superiority between Sewing Machines which has been promaterial without change of needle or ten-sion during the trial. A machine pos-sessing such an adaptability and versa-tility of power, is not only wonderful
