CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE. nany of the women belonged to families of the better class whom the war had left destitute. In March, 1655, the order was revoked, and the trade ceased. In 1655, however, Jamaica baving been conquered, and colonists and a garrison being wanted for it, Cromwell ngaged 1,500 men of the English troops in Ireland to go there to settle, and ordered "1,000 Irish wenches" to be sent with them. Henry Cromwell, then commanding the forces in Ireland, an-swered that he would have to take the "wenches" by force, and suggested that from 1,500 to 2,000 boys, from twelve to fourteen years of age, should be sent out also. One thousand of each were accordingly sent, with the pious hope that they would be made " Christians" of in Jamaica. In the meantime, the process of divid-ing the lands was going on actively. There was due to the "Society of Adventurers," or persons who had lent money to the government for the expenses of the war in Ireland, a sum of £360,000. This was paid off by liberal grants of land, drawn by lot at a public lottery held at the Grocers' Hall in London, in July, 1653, in ten counties. The whole of the rest of Ireland-except the province of Connaught-was set apart for the payment of £1,550,000,due as arrears to the officers and soldiers, and of £1,750,000 of floating debt, incurred by the government for supplies furnished during the war. On the 26th of September, 1653, all ancient estates and farms of the people of Ireland were declared to belong to the Adventurers and Army of England, and all Irish were ordered to "transplant" to Connaught-a howling wilderness of bog and rock-with their families, before the first of May following, on pain of death, if found east of the Shannon after that date, the trial to be by military commission. The exceptions to this rule were the Irish wives of English Protestants embracing their husbands' faith ; boys and girls, under fourteen in the service of Protestants, and Irish Catholics who could offer satisfactory proof of having shown "Constant Good Affection" to the Parliament as against the king during the previous ten years. The decree was an awful one, and it struck the unhappy people just as they were gather-ing in their harvest, and this the first tolerable harvest they had had since the war began. "Constant Good Affection" was almost impossible to prove, for mere passiveness would not support the plea. Moreover, the order covered not only the "Irish enemy," but the descendants of the English settlers of the Elizabethan period-men English in blood and speech and manners, the Comynses, Stackpoles, Morrises, Hamiltons, Fitzgeralds, Butlers, Plunkets, Cheevers, Barnewalls, Talbots, Archers and Atkinsons, just as much as the Tooles, Donohoes, Mores, Kavanaghs and Keoghs. It was just as hard for the one as the other to prove "Constant Good Affection," and their land was just as valuable. The work before them was so horri-

Agricultural. (From the American Stock Jourost.) Horse Back Riding---A Few Hints for the Ladies. "With the advent of the bright Sum mer days, the delightful and healthful exercise of horse-back riding again be-comes possible. As it is every year be-coming more fashionable, the follow-ing hints will help many who are nov-ice in the art of managing a horse, and some who think they know all about it. "There are few prettier sights than fair equestrians, provided they know how to ride ; and although it seems par-adoxical to say so, yet it is not every fair equestrian who can ride. No lady fair equestrian who can ride. No hady ernor, but the whole humber of detec-can use a spur without damaging her habit more than her horse. Extreme neatness is the desideratum in a rider's make up. No flying ribbons or feath-III. Until the next election for Gov-make up. No flying ribbons or feathers, but a plainly made, well fitting cloth habit, with a white linnen collar and cuffs, fastened without ribbon or color, unless it be of a silk handkerchief round the throat. A top hat with a lace veil, for use as well as ornament, twisted round it and over the hair, black gloves, and nothing can look better than any lady when so attired.

"Your horse is at the door, and now omes the tug of war. You have got to arrive at the top of fifteen it may be sixteen hands. Puzzling as the performance appears as you stand on the ground by his side, and the monster towers above you, nothing but knack is wanted. Do not be in a hurry. Place the right hand firmly on the left pommel, and the left hand on the squire's or servant's shoulder. Stand steadily on the right leg, and place the left foot in his right hand. Wait one minute, until you are both sure that the other is ready, and if you spring at the moment that he lifts his hand you are mounted gracefully, without an appearance even of difficulty. It is quite unnecessary to send a man's hat flying into the road, or to put your knees into his eyes; nor need he grasp you fast, as I you were a sack of flour fixed to a ointed crane, while you clutch and scramble up your saddle as if you were climbing the side of a man-of-war out of a cuddy-boat. Nothing can be more nelegant.

"People tuink they cannot help it and rather than look so ridiculous they have a chair or step brought and 'get on themselves.' It is much better to 'get on ' properly ; besides that, when you do, your habit is properly placed and straight. Once mounted, take up your reins and have your stirrup long enough ; that is have it so long that the leg is almost straight before the toe can reach it. Be sure all is right; then let your horse slip off quietly. Nothing is a sign of worse riding than to flurry and fluster to get off in a grand commotion, like froth, that subsides into flatness very soon. Sit square, the right knee pointing in a straight line between the horse's ears; ride on the snaffle if you use a double-rein bridle.

A horse walks, trots or gallops, of "the sick, aged, lame, and impotent," those who had aided and sheltered English soldiers, and who should manifest a desire to turn Protestant. But the work went on very slowly still; the Commissioners were loin to hang the recusants-although they did it in some cases-and an in mense force would have been required to carry it out by means of arrest and transportation ; so they tarried and granted indulgence ; the trosps all the while clammoring for then lands and reproaching the Commissioners with their slothfulness in the execution of the Lord's will. At last, however, the work was accomplished eatisfactorily. The bulk of the Irish from all districts, the land of which was needed, were caged up in Connaught. The old homes of the landed proprietors were taken posses-sion of by the English officers; the privates settled down under them as ten ants, somewhat discontentedly, for Ireland contained neither beer nor cheese, horses hor.
