THE COLUMBIAN AND DEMOCRAT, BLOOMSBURG, COLUMBIA COUNTY, PA.

nounced.

The Columbian.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

Friday October 6, 1871.

The Columbian This Week. The number of any newspaper issued the week preceeding the election we regard as of no importance politically except to make explanation and to contradict misstatements. Any new matter brought forward at that late date to influence the election may justly be looked upon with suspleton and no prudont man will act upon it unless it is backed up with the clearest and most substantial proof of its accuracy and truth. We know that "LAST CARDS ? are often resorted to, and that the eve of the election is the time usually adopted to put forth the most groundless faisehoods, but we repeat that any prudent man will receive these with suspicion if not positive unbelief, unless supported by proof so sure that it cannot be doubted.

The Republicans, and their assistants, the volunteers, will probably resort to every subterfuge and most probably to the trick of issuing some publication intended to cheat and mislead the votors, so near the election day (or on that day) as to prevent contradic tion, for want of time. Against this old trick we have only to say BE ON YOUR GUARD, and treat all such tricks with the contempt they deserve. Every honest thing that can be said was put before the public in ample time to be considered, investigated and discussed before election day. There is nothing fair left to be done except PER-SONAL EFFORT and to GET OUT THE VOTE. Let these not be neelected.

New Leaf in Natural History.

The species of the genus politician known as the habitual Bolter perhaps needa description as well as other pecutiar inhabitants of earth. He is peculiar from other politicians in that he has nothing to do but to find fault, to slander, to hatch up ill-feeling and jealousy, to engender envy, hatred and suspicion. He never works for any party-he has no time to spend in that way-his sole business is to work mischief, and he buttonholes every body to that sole end. Mr. SIMON C. We do not propose to spend much time or waste much paper on SIMON or his position as the tool and lackey of the Radical office-holders' ring of Bloomsburg but will refer to a point or two in his manifesto by way of exhibiting him to the public. He has the hardihood to say that he was not pledged to abide the decision of the Democratic Convention. What business had he in it then 5 He worked hard for delegates and got a very few. He stood a batlot. Had he received the nomination he would have accepted and would have expected every Democrat to support him. He published his card in the COLUMBIAN mmediately under the general pledge o abide by the nominations, and paid his money to get his name placell there. It was so published for two months If he did not intend to abide by that pledge why did he not say so before the

Is it important to him to get two dollars every day for three years for marching down to the Court House and back again? An anxiety so extraordinary as he exhibits, for such an office, indicates most extraordinary and selfish reasons, and a truthful explanation would be quite entertaining to the voters of the county.
