Cannors For Horses,-Practical experiodes has demonstrated beyond a doubt that horses are benefited by liberal root feeding. The action of this bilind, and the other lame. Still they kind of diet upon the animal is to keep his digestive organs in a healthful conhis digestive organs in a healthful condition. There are those who do not hesitate to assert that a bushel of carrots is equal to two bushels of oats for a horse. Now, while my own experience horse. Now, while my own experience has fully satisfied me of the great value of carrots for horse food and especially for the patient livery stable horses, that are kept on dry food the whole year round, I am not prepared to place year round, I am not prepared to place quite as high an estimate upon their "Yes," was the blind man's reply; value as that. That they do possess "but you know we cannot pick them. extraordinary medical qualities, none who have tried them will deny. For livery stable keepers they would, it appears to me possess a double value. -Horses kept the year round in large cites, and especially livery stable horses, rarely get a mouth of green food. Dry hay and grain, without grass is their yearly and daily food. I can very well imagine how grateful to the poor beasts an occasional feed of roots must be, and how strongly humanity appeals for them. As carrots can be grown as cheap as corn, and yield five times as many bushels per acre, I cannot conceive of any good reason why they should not form a part of livery stable provender.-Farm Journal.

Increase the Manure Heap. A prize essay of the Illinois Agricultural Society for 1871, by R. Giddings. details the cheapest and most practical plan of increasing the farm manure pile, and saving its elements from waste, and which should be adopted by every farmer. His plan is simply to save evey particle of the animal excrements, liquid and solid, with all its fertilizing elements in fact, free from wast by washing, evaporation, or fire fang. To do this, he fills a stall, or large bin, in his stable during dry weather, with pulverized clay road scrapings, or com: mon soil. With this he covers the floor of each stall three luches deep, and then places the litter for the animals bedding on it. By this means, all the urine will be absorbed, and its wealth of nitrogen saved; and such is the absorbing power of dried earth, that one three-inch flooring will not be so thoroughly saturated in a long time as to need replacing. He says that his experment required but one large bin of pulverized earth to absorb the urine often or twelve cattle during the stabling season, and that two men with a team filled the bin in one day. Dried clay was applied also to the pig pen and hen roost, with the same ammonia-saving results, and if applied to the privy or earth closet,

The inducements for the use of dry earth are: 1. That it requires no apparatus or eash outlay. 2. That the liquid manure of cattle is worth more liquid manure of cattle is worth more acting in a very unusual manner; but the liquid manure of cattle is worth more liquid manure of cattle is worth more acting in a very unusual manner; but the liquid manure of cattle is worth more liquid manure of cattle is worth than the solid and is usually lost, but The dry earth retains within it all the So the pony again wheeled and gallop third is lost by fermentations, leaching, er bulk of manure, each load of which is of double the value of ordinary farm yard manure, 5. OILING AXLES .- Much is lost for want of attention to wagon axles .-They should be examined about once a week, if in constant use, and properly olled. Lard is not suitable, for it penetrates through the hub and loosens the spokes. We know of nothing better than castor oil, and a rancid article, which can be had at cheap rates at the apothecary's, is just as good for this purpose as the best. A small quantity, applied upon the bearings of the axle, Just as good as to oil the whole surface. If the oiling is neglected, there is much friction, which has to be overcome by the increased exertion of the team. The boxes and axles both wear wheel-jack will greatly facilitate the oil-Ing process. said that according to the registration report of deaths in Massachusetts, published now for about thirty years, and preserved with more accuracy and completeness than anywhere else in the country, the greatest longevity is found to obtain in agricultural life. In the ten different occupations as given in the these reports, the cultivators of the earth stand, as a class, at the head, reaching, on an average, the age of nearly 65 years, while that of the next class, merchants, is only about 49 years; that of mechanics of all kinds, about 48 years, and that of shoemakers about 44 years. Thus there is an advantage of about 15 years on the side of farmers as compar ed with merchants, and they reach an average age but little short of the three score years and ten allotted by the Psalmist for human life.

MANURE is like money. The more you have, the easier it is to make more. You cannot grow a big crop of mangolds without thorough cultivation, and a heavy dressing of manure. But when you have got the mangolds the land is not only in a splendid condition for future crops, but the consumption of the mangolds, besides being of great benefit to stock, leaves a splendid lot of rich manure. We can raise just as good mangolds here as they can in Englaud-in fact, rather better, as our hotter climate matures them more perfectly, and renders them more nutritious. We can easily grow twenty-five tons per acre, and as the manure from a ton Thompson a rowdy, and Peter Jones a of mangolds is worth $1 07, we have left from each acre of mangolds, besides the leaves, manure worth $26 75.

Not long since I visited a frend, who HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC, ives on a fine farm in a pleasant town in Southern New Hampshire. While there one evening, we role to the village to attend a meeting, and on our way back my friend told me the following anecdote about the noble horse he was driving; and I thought it was worth repeating to the young readers of the Columbian. Vegetable Cathartic known,

It is not necessary to take a handfull of these Pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quelty and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bawels of all impurities. The principle ingredient is Pedophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleaning it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoodiand's German Bitters or Tonic should be used it, connection with the Pills.
