THE CURIOUS .- Some people are fond of puzzling over curious items, and for the benefit of all such persons the following conundrum or riddle or puzzle is inserted among the records of the reading-room. In the first place, an impossibility must be supposed possi ble, namely, that a man thirty-five years old marries a girl of five, which makes the groom seven times as old as the bride. When the girl is ten years old the man is forty, and four times as old as his wife; when she is fifteen the man is forty-five, that is three times as old. When she is thirty, the man is sixty, that is twice as old as his wife, and now will somebody be good enough man! It is just barely possible that an answer to this question is as impossible as the hypothesis on which the whole thing is based. That is for the curious to ascertain, however. All answers should be sent to the office of the San Francisco Bulletin, and the success ful individual, whether by actual experiment or not is unimportant, will find his or her name recorded in the obituary column of the aforesaid journal.

IT WAS DONE .- Piggy got into a large yard where he did not belong, and trying to get out again he stuck fast under a high board fence, and there began to hold of the grave; they met, and from kick and squeal in the good old way. The "Herald's" reasons for objecting are that such action on the part of human beings is discouraging to the hens.

In a law-suit, the other day, between two members of the same church, counthey both slept at a country inn, near Redediff, with his throat cut.

Creel had always protested his innocence, declaring that the deed was perpetrated by some one while he was asleep; but the circumstances were against him; and although the money

AN INCIDENT IN PENNSYLVANIA. The mist of the morning still hung heavily on the mountain-top above the village of Redeliff, but the roads which led toward it were crowded with the country from far and near. At Aylesbury the shops were closed; the hammer of the blacksmith lay upon its anvil; not a wagon of any description was to be seen in the street; and even the bar of the tavern was locked, and the key gone with its proprietor toward which was without a parallel in the up house, with an air of sad disappointwere heard, betokening that in the general flight, it had been left in unskillful

Nothing could be done with her-she tricts of Pennsylvania.

The village itself was crowded to overflowing long before the sun had gained a sufficient altitude to throw its rays upon the deep valley, in which it lay. There the bar of an inn was crowded, and the fumes of tobacco and whisky, jingling of small change, and the perpetual clamor of the throng, were sufficient to rack a brain of common flexibility. In the streets, there was a greeting of old and long-parted acquaintances; the bartering of horses; the settling of old accounts; the buffoonery of half intoxicated men; the looing of children and boys, and the barking and quarreling of stranger dogs. There chained to a stake in the miserable dungeon, damp, and scarcely illuminated by one ray of light, now lay the emaciated form of one whose final doom seemed near at hand. A few hours before, his wife and little daughter had traveled a hundred miles to meet him once more on the thresthat gloomy vault the hymn ascended with the ascending sun; and the jailer, as he listened to the melodious voices
