The Gubernatorial Nomination. In view of the momentous issues a stake in the pending elections, the duty of the Democratic party is too plain to admit of doubt; and we deem it the duty of the press to speak out boidly and plainly before the meeting of the Reading Convention in order to prevent an irreparable mistake. We had better prevent the nom untion of weak men, than be called upon to defend them

Our candidate should be a man of reputation, unquestioned integrity, and of such ability as to throw in strong contrast the weak and corrupt nominee of the Republicans. We have such men, and duty as well as necessity compels us to select from among them.

We say frankly that we do not believe Gen, Cass to be such a man. For years he has been closely connected with our mammoth corporations, and is too intimately identified with them

How Gushing!

We clip from the Washington correspondent of the Press the following deectable piece of news: WASHINGTON, May 8, 1872.

Colonel J. S. Mosby, ex-Confederate ranger, called to day upon the President in company with Senator Lewis, of Vir ginia, and was kindly received. They talked for some time upon public affairs, and during the interview Colonel J. W. Forney, of Philadelphia, came in to pay his respects to the President. He was, of course, introduced to Col. Mosby. The latter had his little son with him, to whom he introduced Col. Forney, saying: "Here is the man who has abused your father in his newspaper;" to which Col. Forney responded: "Not that as much as you deserved." "Well," said Mosby, "what are you going to do about the Cincinnati Convention?" A PLEASANT INTERVIEW.

To which Col. Forney replied:

To which Col. Forney replied:

"I am going to stand by the old flag and follow the old leader, Gen. Grant. We shall settle our difficulties in Pennsylvania, if there is any wisdom in our party leaders, and so help to secure a good editor for the New York Tribune and a good President for the country."

Then said Mosby, turning to Grant:
"I will never vote for Horace Greeley. I will undoubtedly support a Democratic candidate if my party nominates one, and if it don't I will vote for President Grant."

The President was very much pleased with the interview, and after Mosby left remarked that "he looked like a man who could ride a horse boildy and

Colonel Forney says "Mosby is undoubtedly a good speaker, as he was a good fighter. His bearing is easy and

History of a Legislative Fraud. The people of this State have heard with surprise and doubt the assertion that there are acts of the Legislature upon our statute books which, in fact, were never passed. We assert and can prove that this is so. Not only do wicked and corrupt men accomplish their purposes in this way, but even great corporations lend their assistance by debauching clerks, and purchasing our rulers. The Legislature, instead of being a body representing the people, is a mere piece of machinery for carrying out the designs of corrupt men. will give as an instance the legislation

"Grade Bill." Some thirty years ago, after overcoming almost insuperable difficulties, the Catawissa Railroad was completed from near Tamaqua to Milton. Some time after, the Sunbury & Erie was constructed, and both being under serious financial embarrassment a mutual arrangement was made by which cars from the Catawissa road could pass from Milton to Williamsport, At that time the Sunbury & Erie had no eastern connection at Sunbury. Subsequently the Catawissa road procured authority to extend its road to Williamsport, but

After the adjournment. however, one of them was ascertained to be in the hands of the Governor for approval. I have no knowledge whatever of any such bill. I am sure an important bill like that would have engaged the attention of some of the vigilant eyes of the Senate. Its No. indicates that it must have been introduced at the last of the session and the journal should state by whom. This bill, if it passed at all, must be classed with hasty legislation and is a proper subject for the Is a proper subject for the Governor.

True, the Catawissa Company have completed their road, and the facts above stated were fully shown at Harrisburg last winter, yet the paid agents of the Pa. R.
