Communicated. CENTRALIA AUGUST, 21st 1872. EDITOR COLUMBIAN.—Dear Sir.—It is with regret, and I may say shame that I take the pen to inform the readers of the Columbian of the state of affairs here.

The past year in the history of Centralia and vicinity is proverbial for crime, and defiance of law. Strangers visiting or passing through here on business or otherwise are perfectly safe, in fact all citizens are lavish of their kindness and respect for them. All the ness and respect for them. All the villainy and rascality carried on is di-rected against our own citizens and this prominent the man is, the more scoun-drel he is, and this is exhibited but too break in his house at night by throwing stones through the windows or lay in wait and beat almost to death, the unfortunate fellow that dare to express himself against them. Continental. Some time age for some cause Mr. Gerrell stopped the Hazlegot employment repairing the gang way. None of the idle men worked a way. None of the idlo men worked at the repairing of said gang-way previous to this but were allowed to go idle and these men brought in from another Colifery belonging to the same man.

This is an argument in favor of the workmen's union for had it been in force here these men would not be allowed to work while the men belonging to the Colliery were idle and thus this bloodshed and almost murder would be avoided. But suppose they did work in other men's places, this cause would not certainly justify this disbulled action which might have left widows and orphans without a penny

The character of all the men is cod as peaceable inoffensive citizens The question arises how is this state fallairs to be ended and how can honest citizens breathe more freely and feel safe, some say "stop the works for a year or so and the Ku-Klux Klan will clear out." Foolish suggestion; they would come back at the first blow of the whistle and honest citizens and busiwhiste and honest citizens and business men would have to go also. Another says "discharge all the suspicious characters," this is very well, but honest men would also be victims of the suspicion and perhaps prompt them, the roughs, to deeds of more violence.

Singular to state but one of the children was injured and that not seriously. The frightened horse then ran out Rock street and down to Main then up Main and was stopped in front of the new hotel, not much hurt. The double team of John Dialy which was standing in front of McKelvy, Neal and Co's warehouse, becoming frightened at the clatter of the runaway started at a furious rate down Market, making the turn at Main and throwing out the son of Mr. Dialy compelled to entertain any information showed that there was in his heart much ly. The horses in their course down held, the other took the pavement a is really surprising that, with so man children playing in front of the houses there is no loss of life to chronicle. I view of the probability of such event occurring it might be well for the parents of small children to take care that their little ones do not wander far from the gates.

NOVEL CAMPAIGN DOCUMENTS,-The radical Press for want of more important matter have got to publishing the private letters of Fred and Nellie Grant. We expect shortly to see a volume of Grant's love letters published by the Radical Central Committee as a campaign document.

When J. D. Cox was Secretary of the Interior, under Grant, he had some hard contests with"Ring"swindlers and speculators. They wished to rob the Treasury. Mr. Cox was determined they should not. When the fight was at its flercest, and the "Ring" forces were put in line for the flual charge, Mr. Cox wrote to General Grant as follows: "I am fighting fraud to the best of my ability, and must have your support, or I will fall." Such an appeal should have brought the President to his side at once. As an honest man ; as an officer, sworn to see the law executed, to protect the Treasury from spoliation, Gen. Grant was bound to aid and assist Mr. Cox, his secretary .- He did no such thing. On the contrary, he turned Mr. treespective of their standing or social status in the community.
