After this they continued their journey. The sun was burning hot. Neither house nor tree nor spring was anywhere to be seen. Thomas suffered with thirst, and had great difficulty in keeping up with his father.

The latter, then, as if by accident, let fall a cherry. Thomas picked it up with as much eagerness as if it had been gold, and put it in his mouth. This game continued until all the cherries had been picked up. When the last had been eaten, the father turned to his son, smiling, and sald to him :

"You see now that if you had been willing to stoop once to pick up the horse shoe, you would not have been obliged to do it a hundred times for the cherries."
