In many instances, a horse can be induced to swallow thick grael when he will not drink hay tea, or tea of linceed meal. Wheat flour can sometimes be mingled with water so that a horse will swallow all that may be desirable for him to take. Tea made linseed meal, or oil-meal, or even cotton seed meal, may be employed to make an excellent liquid for a horse that cannot swallow food. Let a quart of the meal he put into a tin pail, with about two gallons or more of hot water, and let it be stirred rapididly as the meal is put in. Then allow the mass to stand for half an hour in the pail covered closely. Dilute with cold water, and hold up to the animal's nose. If a horse ever refuses to drink the liquid, let his eyes be blindfolded .-- If horses have been accustomed to eat linseed meal they will

PRUNING FRUIT TREES .- A great deal has been said about the best time for pruning trees, and we are ready to conclude that the Summer months are the best, that the wounds will then heal over the quickest, and that the least injury is done to the tree. If the tree raisers will make experiments, as all ought to do, he will find in which months wounds are healed over the quickest.

There is a good deal of truth in the rule, however-to prune in Winter for wood growth, and in Summer for fruit -but the wounds in Wister do not heal over so quickly, and water shoots are very apt to be thrown out when amputation has taken place.

The true theory of all pruning howover, is to guide the growth of limbs as to have no severe pruning at any the gourd.

Start the head of the tree right in its infancy, and if any branches are going astray cut them off with your pocket in derision. "Only look ! I have knife at any time. No larger instrument should go into the orchard at any time than a prunning knife; and no longer one is needed, if used in the "I know that very well," the palm
