POP THE COLUMNIAN. Come Thou and All Thy House into the Ark BY THELE LAUBACIL

Come thou, O, come into the ark! The sky is lowering—the air grows dark, Thou dost not see it, then thine eyes are blind, There is danger! danger! mark! The sky is lowering, and the air grows dark,

Come thou, O, come toto the ark i Say not it is in the valley a sweet mark, For angry forcests, and storm tool's wrath,— To beat their fury, and the trail bark Would let thee to period in the current dark. Come thou, and thy house in the ark!

The Bightnings than, the thunders, bark! Come thou, 'tis large enough, 'tis strong enough The a cure safe ark.

R has been collines safely through the dark. Come than, o, come into the ark?
The flends will rate and not one spark

Of light he left to guide the thry saff, Even on the mountain top, O, hark! The flood will raise to stak such barks. Come with all the house fate the ark ! The sale and sure, and will thou mark? Not one of millions e're was lost, Who stayed aboard that good old ark,

Come thou, come all, within the ark! Where all is light and sought is bliss,

Come Goot, O, come within the ark! Stay not without in outer thric.
There is nothing olds can bear thee safe,
Then come into this good old ark,
And then shall be no more in the dark.

The Father of Waters.

The Mississippi river is the guardian and ledge of the union of the States of America. Had they been confined to the eastern slopes of the Alleghenies, there would have been no geographical unity between them, and the thread of connection between lands that merely fringed the Atlantic must soon have seen sundered. The Father of Rivers gathers his waters from all! the clouds that break between the Alleghenies and the furthest ranges of the Rock Mountains. The ridges of the eastern chain bow their heads at the north and at the south; so that, long before science became the companion of man, nature herself pointed out to the barbarous races how short portages join his tributary rivers to the shores of the Atlantic coast. At the other side his mightiest arms interlock with the arms of Oregon and Colorado, and by the highways to the Pacific. From his remotest springs he refuses to suffer his waters to be divided; but, as he bears them all to the bosom of the ocean, the myriads of flags that wave above the head are all the ensigns of one people. States, larger than kingdoms, flourish where he passes; and beneath his step cities start into being, more marvelous in their reality than the fabled creations of enchantment, His magnificient valley, lying in the best part of the temperate zone, dubrious and wonderfully fertile, is the shosen muster ground of the most various dements of human culture, brought together by men summoned from all the civilized nations of the earth, and joined in the bonds of common citizenship by the strong, invisible attraction of republican freedom. Now that science has come to be the household friend of trade and commerce and travel, alt that nature has lent to wealth and intellect the use of her constant forces, the hills, once walls of divisions, are scaled, or pierced, or eveled; and the two occans, between which the republic has unassailably entrenched itelf against the outer world, and bound tocether across the continent by friendly links of iron. How the Hindoos Regard Women .-The famous passage of the Padma Parana, translated by Abbe Dubois, has been part of the domestic code of the Hindoos four thousands of years. According to the Hindoo lawgiver, a woman has no God on earth but her husband, and no religion except to gratify, obey, and serve him. Let her husband be crooked, old, infirm, offensive; let him be irascible, irregular, a drunkard, a gambler, a debauchce; let him be reckless of his domestic attains, as if possessed by a devil: though he live in the world without bonor; though he be deaf or blind, and wholly weighed down by crime and infirmity-still shall his wife regard him as her God. With all her might shall she serve him, in all things obey him, see no defects in his character, and give him no cause of uneasiness. Nav. more; in every stage of her exper parents, next her husband and his parents, and in her old age she must be ruled by her children. Never during her whole life can she be under her own control. These are the general principles upon which the life of woman in India is to be conducted. The Hindoo writer was considerate enough to add a few particulars: "If er husband laughs, she ought to laugh; if ne weeps, she ought to weep; if he is disposed to speak, she ought to join in the conversation. Thus is the goodness of her nature displayed. What woman would eat till her husband had his fill? If he abstains, she will surely fast also; if he is sad, will she not be sorrowful? and if he is gay, will she not leap for joy? In the absence of her husband her raiment will be mean." Such has been the conception of woman's duty to man by all the half-developed races from time immemorial, and such to this day are the tacit demand and expectation of the brutal-

Do Right Everywhere, Man's own safety is in doing right at all imes, under all circumstances. It is Satan's trick to make our doing right depend on times and seasons, persons and places,-He who does wrong because no one will know it, will be terribly disappointed when his sins find him out. He who censes to be watchful and circumspect among friends, will politics, as if it were not already in; and find that those friends in whom he thus confided in an unguarded hour, will betray his confidence and become his foes-will resuke what they before have justified, and cease him of the very acts which they aided and encouraged him in. Do right everywhere. There is no safety in sin. Confide in no one; presume upon nothing sufficently to do that which is wrong, The watchful eye of God is upon us, when we depart from Him He has ten thousand rods with which to chasten us and correct our faults. Trust no friends; trust not in secresy; trust not in lies-do right everywhere, and trust to God to give victory and rest. Do not follow the multitude to be evil. Do not be a time-server nor a tool. Stand holdly up for the truth and righteousness, and ever live with a solemn conscience of direct and personal responsibility to God. Make no compromise with error, sin, and wrong; strike no bargains with Satan, everything which he proposes is a delusion and a snare, Man is weak, Satan wily, only God is true. Trust in him; do right everywhere, and He shall protect, direct, and save you at the

Thus all our wise ascertainments prove fallacious, and we might as well stop prophpeeting their past, and much more as we are the dark respecting their future, several hings may be put down as certain and othrs as probable, and taken together, these icts and probabilities present a most apalling view of the situation : 1. The American locust will acclimate winter as last winter was in Minnesota and hey will endure any winter that will ever ccur on the continent. 2. They are increasing in numbers and bservation for the last thirteen years. 3. Wherever hatched, their custom is to ise up in swarms and migrate, when fully fledged. They cannot go against the wind and are disposed to yield to its course. But it seems quite plain that, when they once make a start with the wind, they will not materially change their course if the wind does change, but settle down and wait till it somes around again to favor their first direcion. After making a long journey they are liable te return over substantially the same sourse. Their principal havoc was made last
