The action is naid and soliting to the irritated stomach and bewels, promoting digestion and preventing flattiency, naises, headschaft and all intestinal irregularities. A wineglassful before meals greatly assists digestion. The convalencent may use them with great benefit, as a means of assorting size agit and obserfulness.

DYSPEPSIA, DYSPEPSIA, DYSPEPSIA. Dyspepsia is the most perptexing of all human at by speppils is the most perptesting of all human art ments. He symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forform and despondent victims of the discase often fancy themselves the prey, in turns of every known mainly. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brein, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function access arily disorders the liver, the bowels and the nervous sys-tem, and effects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

THE GREAT ANTEPERIODIC The certainty and promptitude with which Hoster's Stomach Bitters conquer the most obstinat ases of malarial disease, and the complete process ion which they afford the system against the mis-natic poison which impregnates the air of low-lying marshy localities stamp them as the foremost of American antiperiodics. We erever on this continent fever and ague is a regular ristant—in the bottom lands of the South, the new clearings and mixing districts of the West, and in all localities in the East rn and Middle States where malaria provales, the litters are recognized as the only true specific for the disease, and its most reliable preventive. They are, moreover, a safe and agreeable as well as a certain remedy, and on this account are immeasurably superior to the preparations of quinthe, are most bisnet, and other mineiral poisons mistakenty adminstered as curatives for maladies caused by miaston, and which if persisted in work irreparable injury to he constitution.

Unfortunately, fever and ague, and the other febrile complaints generated by minsma, are not the only vits which result from it. A great variety of disor-lers are superinduced by the irritation which it causes. Among these are neuralgin rheumatien, gout, periodical headache palpitation paintui affections of the specia, and various devaugements of the stomach. When traceable to making the above affections are upt to assume. Her the disease which eriginated them, an intermittent type; that is to say they recur at regular intervals. Hostetter's futters, however, obviates them all, by banishing the mina-matic virus from the units.cs very organs that caused the cough. Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia are the causes of two-thirds of the cases of Consumption. Many persons complain of a dull pain in the side, constipation, coated tongue, pain in the shoulder blade feelings of drowslasss and restlessness, the too lying heavily on the stomach, accompained with aci dily and beiching up of wind. These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver, Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy olds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenty checked, will find the stomach and liver clorged, remathing torpid and inactive, and almost before they are aware the lungs are a mass of sares, and discrated the result of which is death. Schenek's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant which does not contain optim or mything calculated o check a cough suddenly.
