The money lost by Mrs. Hennessey at the Con agham and Centralia Poor House, an account of which appeared in the Columnian last week, has been recovered. The boy stole the money on Sunday, and on Tkursday following Mr. Hennessy received a dispatch from n Clinton, Mass., signed by Rev. J. Patterson, stating that the boy had been caught and the money could be returned. The boy evidently made good use of his time, and spent some of his ill-gotten greenbacks for rail road fare. Court met December 6th, 1875, at ten o'clock m., His Honor, William Elwell on the Bench. E. B. Bidleman, John K. Girton, Sam uel Appleman, N. B. Fowler and George Shoemaker were appointed tip-taves.

The Grand Jury being called and sworn, were charged by his Honor William Elwell at but natural that the announcement of this per- length on the crimes of Homicide and Infanticide, there being cases of that character to be flowing. Mr. E. Jacoby was the stage manager, laid before them. The following is the sub-indictment, it becomes a tens at tire in the indictment, it becomes necessary for the Court to explain to the juriors the difference between the offense of murder and that of manslaughter. Murder is the killing of a reasonable creature and being, in the peace of the Commonwealth, with malice afor thought expressed or implied. The essential ingredient in the crime barons act by one person towards another which act eventuates in the death of one, may be con-sidered to have originated in malice. The difference between the crimes of murder and man-slaughter is this—that in the latter, malice does not exist, is not to be found. Thus, if in a quarwhile the passion is up, so that there is both provection and passion, and on the moment, without deliberation, one slays the other, the crime may be reduced from murder to man-

The fact of malice existing is often inferred from the character of the weapon used. If a deadly weapon is used without provocation, in that case the crime is murder. The provocation isproportion to the provocation. If it does, he crime may be murder, as, if, for a triffing offense, one man should shoot another down, although there might be some provocation, it would not be enough to reduce the offense to manslaughter. In this state, the crime of mur-

of killing with malice, and without such provo-cation and reason as reduce it to manslaughter, then they find a true bill for murder, and the traverse jury, under the direction of the Court. more fully given ascertains the degree, so that I need not trouble the grand jury with any nice distinctions between nurder in the first and in the second degree. Where there is a charge of both morder and manslaughter, I deem it my luty to explain to you the difference between the two, and that, in order to reduce an unlawful killing from murder to man-laughter, there must be an absence of malice—the killing must have been done with sufficient provocation, when passion was excited and the killing was in the ker of the sufficient provocation.

In another case which will come before you, containing two counts, there is a charge against a mother for killing her bastard chid—charging the crime of murder. The same principles ap-ply in such a case as apply in every other case

There is in that indictment also a second count, charging the concealment or endeavoring to conceal the death of a child, which, if born alive, would be a bastard, so that it could not be known whether the child was born alive or not. The law does not make it a poenal offense to conceal the birth. The offense is the con-cealing the death of a child, which, if born alive, would be a bastard; and in order to find is to satisfy the jury that the child was born dive—that it was born into the world alive and with an independent circulation from that of the
