LET THE WORLD ADMIRE

Our party challenges the admiration the world for its punishment of fraud.

The administration of Gen. Grant has written for itself a grand record in the atterance "Let no guilty one escape."-Re-

Any reader can see at once that the show was written by an editor who holds a postoffice and for years has feasted on the patronage of his party. Of course his statement is not true, but then the man is paid for saying it.

It is a remarkable fact that fraud has been less ferreted out and punished, and that ministration than from the time of Wash-

The long list of defaulters in every Department in numbers and amounts stolen is officially shown to be double that from 1789, when our Government was inaugurated, to the accession to power of the Republican party in 1861.

The coormous frauds by the Whisky Ring were committed by Republican officials and Grant's bosom friends, and when an active Secretary of the Treasury began to unearth them, and investigation was reaching the White House, the faithful prosecuting attorney was dismissed, because he knew too much, and a more subservient officer placed in his stoad.

The "admiration of the world" has been challenged. Let the world consider the above facts, which are but a tithe of those we could mention'

THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

While Grant is endeavoring to foment sectarian bitterness, and is aided by a few addle-headed ministers, the body of the Christian Church resent the proposed attempt of the Government to meddle with religious matters. The Pacific Churchman speaks as follows:

Religious training for the young is an admitted necessity by all who are believers in religion of any form, whether Protestants, Romanists Israelites, or Mohammedans. How such religious training can be besgiven without violating the conscientious scruples and religious liberty of any, is the important problem to solve. That no sectarian teaching of any kind can consistently with our republican institutions, be taught in our public schools, is admitted by the most liberal-minded persons. In justice to the rights of a large number of those whose children attend our schools, and who contribute to their support, no particular religious training should be enforced in the system of public education. Yet as an exercise of the inherent right of self-protection which society possesses to guard itself from crime, there should be some means provided for the religious teaching of the young.

Moral training, such as can be given un der our public school system, should be supplemented by religious training in the home and by the Church. It is within the power of the parents of the land, with few exceptions, to say for themselves whether the young minds entrused to their care, shall be taught religious principles, or whether this great been shall be withheld from them. Re ligion need not depend for an instant upon the public school for its perpetuation. If we insist upon a broad, liberal standard of moratity, comprehensive enough to embrace the whole duty of the citizen to society and the State, and full enough to exclude the bitterness of theological wrangling, our duty as Churchmen in the premises should be done. If there is not enough vitality in the Christian Church to preserve it intact without the organized aid of the State through its schools and otherwise, nothing of the kind will save it from dying out. But the great truths of the Church do not depend upon such artificial aids for their support. It is in the family that the church deadliest blow.

The education given by our public schools of itself, will injure the religious principles of no child who has been taught beside a weak tissue of sophisms under the name of religion. "Truth is mighty and will prevail," and if the teachings of religion are true, there need be no danger in exposing them to the crucial action of an in telligent, educated mind. The highest at tainable human knowledge is compatible with the strongest and most beautiful Christian feith.

The report of the Agricultural Bureau for November and December states that the corn crop is one of the largest ever grown in this country, probably equalling the crops of 1870 and 1872; that the potato is extraordimary, both in product and quality, the total yield being fully one-fourth larger than last year; that the cotton crop will pass the limit of 4,000,000 bales; and that there is an increase of 75 per cent. in the yield of tobacco over that of last year.

The "Mysterious Pilgrims,"it is said have dissolved their organization. They will reappear again in a new guise. Scoundrels have a natural attraction towards each other, and will combine in the future as they have in the past. "What's in a name? That

A BLACK EYE FOR GRANT. Third Termism was actually plening strength especially among the bigoted porion of our population.

But the following resolution in Congress offered by Mr. Springer, a Democrat, is a evere blow to the scheme : Removed. That in the opinion of this house the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States in retiring from the presidential office after their second term, has become, by neighbor the concurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that any departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peru-to our free institutions.

Under operation of the previous question this resolution was alopted by a vote of two hundred and thirty-two to seventeen.

Among the negative vote we find the name of one Democrat' and one "inder inder" Republican, but not one leading Republican recorded with them.

This has placed the Republican party in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and other important States have declared against it, and can bardly be dragooned into a reversal more guilty have escaped under Grant's ad- of their decision. Still, Grant is shrewd, and he may make the "exigency arise," mentioned in his Harry White letter, either by war with Spain, or an attempt to forcibly for speculation, and "Black Friday" was annex Cuba, in the hope of arous ng the now slumbering war passions of our people, But as Congress must vote the necessary apengaged in Indian frauds which were clearly propriations, and is the war making power, proven, and neither his brother Orville nor a Democratic House will save us from such other persons engaged in the transaction evils, if attempted, So, Good Bye Grant and

A Bank Teller Taught a Lesson. A singular case was decided last week the circuit court for Washington county, Md It was given as evidence on the trial that in 1871 Mrs. Susan Weckler saked the First National bank of Hagerstown to cash a draft on New York for $1,047. The teller of the that she wished to invest $1,000 in Wash ington county bonds, advised her that a better investment could be made in Northern Pacific bonds, which bonds have since depreciated to about fifteen cents on the dollar. nvestment that Dr. John F. Smith, Mrs. the Northern Pacific, and this assurance demust either receive its best support or its cided her. Robert O. Nymar, the son-in-law man distinguished in letters, art, or politics. of Mrs. Weekler, confirmed the testimony, motion for a new trial.

Danger of Coal Gas. Persons who have stoves in their bed room or in rooms connected with their sleeping apart ments cannot be too careful in arranging the fire at night. At Shamokin a widow and ber two daughters came near losing their lives from an inhalation of coal gas. They put some fresh coal in the cook stove, and having partly re noved the lids from the store and turned the damper, they retired for the night, the doors of damper, they retired for the night, the doors of the various rooms in the house having been left open. Next morning the mother awake feeling very sick and weak, but managed to get out of the bouse to call in several neighbors. When they arrived they found the youngest daughter, aged about twelve years, almost unconscious, and the oldest daughter, about eighteen years of age, terribly sick. A doctor was immediately nent for, and succeeded in saving the lives of all, but fand it safe not to push the prosecution against Babcock with too much rigor. The tennal of the White House is extremely seen according to the house to call in several neighbors. When the doctor was immediately nent for, and succeeded in saving the lives of all, but says that it would have taken but a little while longer until the youngest daughter would have been dead. When the doctor arrived about twelve years, almost unconscious, and the oldest daughter, about eighteen years of age, terribly sick. When the doctor arrived about twelve years, almost unconscious, and the oldest daughter, about eighteen years of age, terribly sick. A doctor was immediately nent down to the common sense of every-day life. Dr. Pierce is a noble specimen of American manhood. He has sprung from the people; and, with unany sympathies in common with the managed to get out of the house to call in several neighbors. NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

The Adjourned Session. The session of the Pennsylvania legisla-ture, says the Patriot, which will meet on the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad first Tuesday in January next is known to the constitution as an "adjourned annual session." It will not be a new legislature because one-third of the senators is renewed but an adjourned session of the legislature which was chosen for two years in November, 1874, and which will therefore remain in existence until its successor shall be chosen in 1876. With the exception of a member or two elected to fill vacancies, the house remains the same, and the renewal of onethird of the members of the senate does not affect the identity of that body. Analogies of this kind are rarely complete, but if one were needed it is found in the congress of the United States. The officers of the house elected at the opening of the present session will hold their positions until the dissolution of the Forty-fourth congress on the Fourth ongress squarely against the project. Not of March, 1877, no matter how many adnly that but the Republican Conventions journed sessions may be held in the meantime. Such legislation as may remain unfinished at the close of the present session of ongress will go over to the next session > acss of the first session of the present legislature of Pennsylvania. At the close of the last session of the leg islature it was proposed by the senate that all the unfinished legislation should fall with the adjournment of the session. The house did not take this view of the case, but held that, the next being an adjourned session, all legislation not finally disposed of would ance with the provisions of the constitution This seems to be the sensible and practical action of the house a calendar has been prepared and printed by the clerk showing the condition of the unfinished legislation.

when it will be considered. This is what is

The house calendar shows that when the first session of the present legislature adjourned last spring about two hundred bills remained undisposed of in that branch. Upwards of forty of these bills are on third reading. Much of this legislation is important and the whole of it can soon be disposed of in one way or another. But if the work o last session is to be begun anew, and all the bills, good, bad and indifferent, thrown again into the legislative hopper to be ground over there will be double toil and trouble. For what good? Some of this legislation is of a ocal and private character, and due notice has been given according to law. If it must be started afresh the notices must also be resewed to the great trouble and expense of all concerned.

It is intimated that the courts might decide this legislation unconstitutional on the ground that the renewal of one third of the senate makes the next session of the legislature a new body. But the constitution disposed of the objection in describing the next s an"adjourned annual session." If any one hould be disposed, however, to test the constitutionality of an act of assembly on this question that would be attended with much oss trouble than the renewal of all the incomplete work of last session and the consequent protraction of next session and the delay of the public business. In the passage of the bills now standing on the calenders of the senate and the house all the requirements of the constitution will have been complied with as fully as if this proposition should prevail. They will have received a constitutional majority of the duly chosen representatives of the people. But there is a number of these bills that will not pass and ought not to pass. If they are not dispatched at once they will be started again on their weary round. Some of the bills on third reading on the house calendar have already passed the senate and unless amended they will not again come under the control of the latter body. When any of the important house bills of last session shall be sent to the senate it will not be in the province of the senate to inquire into their regularity. The senate will hardly committan act of parliamentary discourtesy by refusing to consider them. But should the senate decline to resume the unfinished legislation of last session on the ground taken at the adjournment, the responsibility of embarrassing the public business will not rest with the house. If two or three unfinished measures of last session happen to be in a condition that is not agreeable to parties interested in them, this is a consideration which should not be permitted to obstruct legislation of the whole state. The real or imaginary interest of individuals must yield to the right and interests of the public. ECLECTIC MAGAZINE.—The January number, beginning a new volume and a new year, is a good specimen of the magazine, and offers a favorable opportunity for new subscribers to begin. It is embellished with two fine steel-engravings, "The Flower Gatherers" and "George Washington and his Family." The first is a child-piece, very beautiful in bank, John D.
