Agricultural. Those who can grow quinces well, find them one of the most profitable of all fruit crops. Unfortunately those who can grow them well, seem to be the very great exceptions to the general rule.

WHIPPING HORSES DANGEROUS.—I would caution those who train horses or use them upon another point, viz: that of exciting the ill-will of the animal.

Don't Use the Hatchet on Saw.—Of all the blunders, says the Gardener's Monthly, that the common farmer and some other make with their trees, none is so common or hurtful, and which he is so long finding out, and which he might so certainly do away with, as the practice of cutting off lower limbs.

THE CHERRY FOR SHADE.—For ornamental purposes and for shade, the cherry is superior to almost any other fruit-bearing tree. Its beautiful and graceful form...

Incendiaries are on the increase lately and large fires are reported from various parts of the country involving serious losses.

The Wyoming historical and geological society of Wilkesbarre has forwarded its 7,000 pound petrified tree-stump to the centennial grounds.

The new forest sentiment: If you wish for the forest's ease, don't look to marigold. Horticultural.

JERUSALEM. The population of modern Jerusalem has been very differently estimated—and no doubt it increases by some thousands at the season of the annual religious fairs—18,000 appears to be the most probable average population; and while the Moham-medans are the masters, the Jews form the decided majority, being, it is likely, not far short of 8,000.

Thus, it was curious to notice the close resemblance between the order of religious service in these two synagogues. While the Scriptures for the day was being recited, both the reader himself and the congregation stood up; but at the close of the reading all the people took their seats, and the reader, seated also, proceeded with his mingled exhortation and exhortation.

A French money lender complained to Baron Rothschild that a nobleman to whom he had loaned ten thousand francs had gone off and left no acknowledgment of the debt.

A class of ragged boys in a school had learned to answer the question in the catechism by rote. One day a stranger entered to examine them, but, unfortunately the boy who was always at the head of the class was absent.

A case has been referred to the law courts of Toulouse, France, which is worth mention. It seems that an oyster opener at the above place found an oyster magnificent pearl, worth several thousand dollars, and she kept it; but the person who ordered the oyster insisted that the pearl belonged to him.

A popular Georgia editor speaks of "the shirt of Nessor." His memory serves him right; and he might have added that Adam killed Nessor with a rolling pin for asserting that Venus had a wart under her left arm.

A story is told of a venerable negro in Iowa who was on trial for an offence against the state. When the case was announced in court, "The State of Iowa versus Sampson Caesar," the aged African exclaimed: "What is the whole State of Iowa doing to do with me? I surrender."
