Last Friday morning a young lawyer of this town arose from refreshing slumber and, after dressing with cheerful alacrity, ate his breakfast and proceeded with light and sirv step to his office. On arriving at that workshop of the brain he caught sight of a blood-cardling and terms to agents, Address H. A. King, 37 fear-inspiring document affixed to the door of his sanctum. With glaring eye-balls and perpendicular hair he read the mysterious paper; t was a warning-a solemn warning, having upon it a skull and cross bones, a pistol and a coffin-and commanded the legal gentleman to furthwith leave the scenes of his labors and hie to other climes. The fearful truth burst or him like a clap of thunder—the dreaded Moliy Magnirea were on his track and death stared him in the face. But he was not dismayed With nervous hand he tore the paper from the door and rushing to his desk eagerly scarched his books for the law concerning the carrying of concealed deadly weapons-and, incidentally, for the penalties attached to the robbery of grave yards, of which the skull reminded him. He is more tranquil now and his friends have

Funston was nominated for re-election, but positively declined to serve if elected, and his ame was therefore dropped. The old vestry w a continued with this exception, Mr. Edgar, being chosen in Mr. Funston's place. So far is expected that a Rector will be called soon.

MON, GRORGE SCOTT.

A death has not occurred in Pennsylvania hat will strike upon the public mind with a more sudden and powerful shock than that of the distinguished gentleman whose name heads this article. It was only yesterday or day before that a letter was mailed to him from this city, written by one of the officers on the hill, and conveying detailed information for which he asked and which necessarily contemplated a period for his life prolonged at least for five or ten years, and scarcely does that letter arrive at its destination, when the telegraph flashes back to the world a conclusion for him of all earthly

We at Harrisburg know only of Mr. Scott's public life. In 1856 he came here as canal ommissioner on one of the last boards of that commission that existed. This position he filled with honor to himself and credit to the State, nor was there ever heard a whisper of suspicion as to his integrity. For several periods thereafter Mr. Scott appeared in the Legislature and always with credit to himself and his constituents. At the time of his death he was Associate Judge in his inroads felt this season. By all means let the district. He was president of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Society and a prominent member of the Centennial Commission for his State; all these positions called for activity-nor did there seem to be a more active man of his age (about sixty) to be found anywhere, when a few weeks ago the writer of this notice saw him and greeted him as he passed through the city in the cars. Truly may it be repeated that it would be difficult to conceive a more sudden shock to the community than the announcement of Opinion. the death of so "living" a man, so to speak, as the Hon, George Scott. Addresses will be delivered by ex-Governor James Pollock, Dr. J. P. Wickersham, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and others. The citizens of Bloomsburg and all friends of education are cordially invited to be present. The spring term will open on Thursday, April 27th, and continue twelve weeks.

Periodically their appears an article in the "Columbian" on "our post-office." Had the chronic fault-finder anything to do with the issue of last week? Or it is an article clipped from some of the back files of the "Columbian" in the columbiant of the columbiant o man?" It reads very much like some of them.

The fault finding with regard to the posoffice in this place is "chronic," truly, but it is not confined to an individual. If the post ence from an article in the COLUMBIAN to master were occasionally to drop in to the post office, he would speedily ascertain that the feela Republican paper, is not without honesty, and ing is almost unanimous among the better class of citizens, that the post office as at present conducted is a nuisance. This opinion has been expressed time and time again, and by persons whose utterances are entitled to respectful consideration. The post master is either too lazy or too indifferent to do any share of the office work, and puts the entire business on the shoulders of his clerk. For this cause mails which ought to be distributed in fifteen minutes, require from half to three quarters of an hour to assort, and business men are compelled to lose valuable time in needless waiting. Mr. Keefer, the clerk, is willing and obliging and does his work well, but he has are facts which are not to be denied. Another bjectionable feature is the teleration of crowds f boys, who do not get mail, but who by crowding into the small and uncomfortable room renler those in waiting, miserable. If the postmaster made less frequent visits to Harrisburg and Washington on political errands and devoted less time to the manipulation of party affairs at home, the people would be beter served, and he would be about as far ahead at the end of the year as he is under the present system. We state distinctly that if the post master would assist in the distribution of mails, and keep his inconvenient office free from crowds of children,he would greatly oblige the public and the post office would cease to be what it is now, most decidedly-a nuisance.

TO THE AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUquire more experience to treat successfully than those of a private character. Muny physicians suppose that when the prihary symptoms are removed, the disorder or poison has been derectine. Such is not the case. The difficulties, or the various stages of the disease are then to succeed. The parts first attacked are the throat, nose, mouth, tongue, skin, tendons, bones, figaments, ears, eyes, &c. Frequentty threes symptoms are treated by physicians as simpic discrations, until some of the important organs of the body become involved, when quart refeves the sufferer. Dif. H. W. Loffil, having made all private discasses a study, guarantees a speedy and permanent cure with purely vegetable medicines. Medcial offices and drug store. No. 39 North Fifteenth
