DRIFTING AWAY. Drifting away from each other, Drifting away from each other, Drifting away from each other.

THE OLD FRIENDS. Where are they scattered now, My feet are drifting where the angels glow, And many streams through sorrow's forest flow.

What Has the House Done? This is a fair question and deserves a fair answer. "Nothing," is the answer if you read the Republican papers.

HEAVY CARRIAGE HIRE.—The new Secretary of War, in reply to a letter from Mr. Clynner, the chairman of the War Expenditure Committee, says that it cost the government $115,000 for the hire of carriage for the Secretary of War from the beginning of his administration to Belknap's resignation on March 24 last.

First, it has not elected a Speaker like Schuyler Colfax, who used his high office to enrich himself. It has not elected a Speaker like James G. Blaine, who used his position to influence legislation in favor of railroad subsidies.

Second, it has not legislated a freeman's bank into existence and placed in the power of a lot of men to steal the savings of the poor millions of the South, amounting to billions of dollars.

Third, it has not legislated a freeman's bank into existence and placed in the power of a lot of men to steal the savings of the poor millions of the South, amounting to billions of dollars.

Fourth, it has gone into President Grant's cabinet and dragged out of it one of his trusted advisers, who abused his high place, who robbed the dead veterans of the war, who aided in cheating the living soldiers on the plains, who demanded money for every appointment he made, and brought him to trial for his many crimes.

Fifth, it has shown how the funds of the several departments of justice have been used for the purpose of controlling elections in the South and in the North; how the President put his hand in the public Treasury and took out money to aid in his own reelection. It has exposed the villainy of Williams, the rascality of Davenport, and the general corruption of that entire branch of the public service.

Sixth, it has stretched its hand across the water to London and saved the honor of the country by collaring the minister and ambassador extraordinary, who was using his influence as our representative to "haul" a worthless minkie stock and rob the English people.

Our Flag.

Every nation has its flag. Every ship in foreign waters is known by the colors she shows at the peak. The French frigate hoists her hunting of three vertical stripes, red, white and blue; the English man-of-war shows a red field with the cross of St. Andrew and St. George on a blue union in the upper left hand corner.

In 1811 Samuel J. Tilden began his brilliant and successful campaign against the Tweed ring which had ended in stripping them of their spoils and sending them to prison or exile. In his speech at Cooper Institute in November of that year he made the following pledge to the people of New York: "By the blessing of God according to the strength that is given to me, if you will not grow weary and faint, and falter on the way, I will stand by your side until not only the city of New York but the State of New York shall once more have a pure and irreproachable Judiciary, and until the example of this great State shall be set up to be followed by all the other States."

GENERAL HOOKER ON TILDEN'S NOMINATION.—Governor Tilden has received the following letter of congratulation from Gen. Joseph Hooker: "I cannot refrain from offering you my sincere congratulations on your nomination to the exalted office of President of the United States. As a quiet observer of the political events of the nation I know of no man in my day who has labored me so much satisfaction, and sincerely hope and believe that the wisdom shown in the selection at St. Louis will be fully ratified by the great masses of the people in November next. We require reforms in politics, religion and morals, and I am convinced that we will fare generously at your hands. The whole government of the nation is corrupt—deplorably corrupt—and the honor and glory of applying the antidote I am convinced will belong to you. If the fact of your nomination does not enhance the material value of the nation, I am sure your election will do it. Already I seem to breathe a new atmosphere, as is the case of every well-wisher of his country."

The Emperor of Brazil.

HOW HE ASCENDED THE BUNKER HILL MONUMENT. The janitor who had charge of Bunker Hill monument, arriving at about half past seven Friday morning to open the premises, found two strangers in waiting. One a tall gray bearded man in a slouch hat, asked if they could ascend the monument view from the summit, after which they descended, and "Yes," said the custodian, "you can for twenty-five cents." (holding out his hand.)

The stranger produced the money, and the custodian unlocked the door, and forthwith paying no special attention to his visitor who was looking around him curiously, until half closed with dust, he inquired "if these were the steps?" "Yes, all right, go right up till you get to the top."

The visitor and his companion did as they were bid, and stayed some half an hour enjoying the beautiful panoramic view from the summit, after which they descended, and were quietly walking away, when they were hailed by the custodian with: "Hurry, just write your names in this book, all the visitors who go up the monument sign their names here."

The gray-bearded man laughed and signed his name, and the two departed. The custodian never looked at the book, but some hours afterward was electrified by one of the officers of the monument association, who changed to come in asking him, in the most agitated manner, when Dom Pedro, the emperor of Brazil, had been there.

"Hasn't been here at all," was the reply. "Hasn't been here! Why here is his signature on your visitors' book. What does this mean?" "What?" said the custodian, rushing up to the volume. "Why, good gracious! that was written by a tall man with a slouch hat."

And so it was; but the tall man was the Emperor of Brazil, and this was the way he ascended Bunker Hill monument, just like "any other man."

GERMAN WIVES.—The culinary art forms a part of the education of women in Germany. The well-to-do tradesman, like the mechanic, takes pride in seeing his daughters good housekeepers. To effect this object, he gets on leaving school, which she does about fourteen years of age, through the ceremony of confirmation, and then is placed by her parents with a country gentleman or in a large family, where she remains one or two years, filling what may almost be termed the post of servant, and doing the work of one. This is looked upon as an apprenticeship to domestic economy. She differs from a servant, however, in this—she receives no wages; on the contrary, her parents often pay for the care taken of her, as well as for her clothing.

This is the first step in her education as housekeeper. She next passes, on the same condition, into the kitchen of a rich private family, or into that of a hotel of good repute. Here she has control of the expenditures of the servants employed in it, and assists personally in cooking, but is always addressed as fraulein or miss, and is treated by the family with deference and consideration. Many daughters of rich families receive similar training, with this difference, however, that they receive in a princely mansion or a royal residence. There is a reigning queen in Germany at the present time who was trained in this way. Commonly the women in Germany are perfect models of economy.

Very Remarkable. "It is indeed remarkable," said the noble Jenkins, sitting in his parlor conversing with a few visitors, "most remarkable that in all ages, the record of which are bright with the glorious names of masters whose names are written on every page of the world's history in letters of gold, a woman has ever written an opera, composed an oration that could link her name to undying fame. In the very walks of art, where one would expect to find woman shunning a man's undivided throne, she is little more than a menial, an humble attendant, waiting upon and subject to the whims of her master."

Just then a woman's voice, from the back yard, split the June air like the sweep of a sabre—"John Jenkins! you just come out here and keep this ere baby out of the soap suds while I hang out the clothes, or I'll cut you down like hay!" And then the committee rose, and the noble Jenkins, being excused by unanimous consent, the House soon after adjourned.
