Tom Sawyer, having offended his sole guardian, Aunt Polly, is by that sternly-afectionate dame punished by being set to whitewash the fence in front of the garden. The world seemed a hollow mockery to Tom, drugs that he was sick a long time after he who had planned fun for that day, and who got well. knew that they would be the laughing stock of all the boys as they came past and saw. him set to work like a "nigger." But a great inspiration burst upon him and he went | ripe enough to pick. tranquilly to work. What that inspiration was will appear from what follows. One of the boys, Ben Rogers, comes by and pauses, eating a particularly fine apple. Tom does not see him. Ben stared a moment and then

"Hi-yi! You're up a stump, ain't you?" No answer. Tom surveyed his last touch with the aye of an artist, then he gave another gentle sweep, and surveyed the result, as before. Ben ranged up alongside of him. Tom's mouth watered for the apple, but he stuck to his work. Ben said : "Hello, old chap; you got to work,

"Why, it's you, Ben ; I wasn't noticing . "Say, I'm going in swimming, I am. Don't you wish you could? But, of course, you'd druther work, wouldn't you? Course you would!" Tom contemplated the boy a bit, and said : "What do you call work ?"

"Why, ain't that work ?" Tom resumed his whitewashing, and au swered carelessly: "Well, maybe it is, and maybe it ain't. All I know is, it suits Tom Sawyer."

"Oh, come now, you don't mean to let or that you like it?" The brush continued to move. "Like it? Well, I don't see why I oughn't to like it. Does a boy get a chance to whitewash a fence every day?" That put the thing in a new light. Ber stopped nibbling the apple. Tom swept his brush daintily back and forth-stepped back to note the effect-added a touch here and there-criticised the effect again, Ben watching every move and getting more interested more and more absorbed. Presently he "Say, Tom, let me whitewash a little." Tom considered; was about to consent, but he altered bls mind : "No no : I reckon it wouldn't hardly do, Ben. You see, Aunt Polly's awful particular about th's fenceright here on the street, you know-but if it was on the back fence I wouldn't mind, and she wouldn't. Yes, she's awful particular it the way it's got to be done." "No-is that so? Oh, come now; lemme just try, only just a little. I'd let you, if

If you was to tackle this fence, anything was to happen to it"----"Oh shucks ; I'll be just as careful. Now lemme try. Say-I'll give you the core of my

Well, here. No, Ben ; now dou't i'm afeared"-

"I'll give you all of it !"

Tom gave up the brush with reluctance in his face, but alacrity in his heart. And while Ben worked and sweated in the sun, the retired artist sat on a barrel in the shade close by dangling his legs, munched his apple, and planned the slaughter of more innocents. There was no lack of material : boys happened along every little while; they came to jest but remained to whitewash. By the time Ben was fagged out Tom had traded the next chance to Billy Fisher for a kite in good repair; and when he played out, Jonney Miller brought in for a dead rat and a string to swing it with ; and so on, and so on, hour after hour. And when the middle of the afternoon came, from being a poor poverty-stricken boy in the morning, Tom was literally rolling in wealth. He had, beside the things I have mentioned, twelve marbles, part of a jewsharp, a piece of blue bottle glass to look through, a spool cannon, a key that wouldn't unlock anything, a fragment of chalk, a glass stopper of a decanter, a tin soldier, a couple of tadpoles, six firecrackers, a kitten with only one eye, a brass door-knob, a dog collar-but no dog-the handle of a knife, four peices of orange peel and a dilapidated old window sash. He three coats of whitewash on it! If he hadn't pipe hats and smoke cigars." run out of whitewash he would have bank- changed, sir." - Chicago Journal. rupted every boy in the village.

"Take care of the pennies." Look well to your spending. No matter what comes in, if more goes out you will always be poor. The art is not in making money but in keeping it. Little expenses, like mice in a barn, when they are many make great waste. Hair by hair heads get bald; straw by straw the thatch goes off the cottage, and drop by drop the rain comes into the chamber. The barrel is soon empty if the tap leaks but a drop a minute. When you mean to save, begin with your mouth; many thieves pass down the red lane. The ale jug is a great waste. In all other things keep within compass. Never stretch your legs further than your blankets will choose suitable and lasting stuff, and not tawdry fineries. To be warm is the main thing, never mind and board there is nothing left for the savings bank. Fare hard and work hard when you are young and you will have a chance to rest when you are old.
